DRY LAW ISSUE INSPIRES BITTER DEBATE AS DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMEN MEET

Radio Equipment Bought for Atlanta Police

400-WATT SYSTEM TO AID IN WARFARE ON LOCAL CROOKS

Police Committee Again Fails To Demote Captain as Impasse in Body Continues.

BOROUGHS TO JOIN IN RADIO HOOK-UP

Police Automobiles, Equipped With Receiving Sets, To Cruise Streets, Act on Reports.

Police radio as an auxiliary of the Atlanta police department in its war against crime was a step closer Thursday night when members of the police committee voted unanimously to buy a Western Electric 400 watt broadcasting unit from the Graybar Electric Company.

The committee again sidestepped demotion of one of the four captains, it being indicated that the impasse in which the body has found itself for the past several weeks still exists.

Application for permit for operation of the Atlanta radio system will be made out today by O. H. Pendley and will be forwarded at once to the federal radio commission at Washington, with an urgent request that the commission rush the permit at the earliest possible moment.

Radio equipment for the department was first championed by The Constitution, and Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, former chairman of the police committee and at present a member of that body, made the motion that the purchase be made.

It is expected that the system will be in actual operation within the next 60 days.

To Cost $7,231.

Cost of the equipment was listed at $7,231 for the entire broadcasting unit. Police automobiles will be equipped with receiving sets and cruising around Atlanta streets as science's latest threat to the underworld and its operations within the next few weeks, barring complications.

Action of the committee Thursday night is final as the committee was commissioned by council to make the purchase.

The 400-watt unit contemplates ultimate participation by Fulton and DeKalb counties and all other boroughs comprising Greater Atlanta in a concerned radio hook-up in the effort to stamp out lawlessness.

Alderman Alvin Richards, chairman of the police committee, declared he will call a conference of law enforcement and executive officials of the surrounding boroughs and counties after details of the Atlanta station have been worked out. It is expected that the system will be operated on a community basis, with all those participating bearing a portion of the expense.

Purchase of the equipment was made on recommendations of Professors I. H. Gerks and T. W. Fitzgerald, of Georgia Tech, who sat in the police committee session, heard the bids and the arguments of those offering bids. Three companies bid on the equipment.

The price includes installation, erection of aerials and all other equipment to put the broadcasting station in actual operation.

Mr. Richards announced that former Councilman Wiley L. Moore Thursday renewed his offer to contribute $1,000 to the radio fund, which it regarded as exceedingly limited with only $8,500 set up for the equipment. Receiving sets are yet to be bought.

Councilman Claude L. Barnwell, member of the board of firemasters, announced he will seek to have Fire Chief John Terrell's car equipped with a receiving set.

Can Two Blue-Eyed Parents Have Brown-Eyed Children?

GEORGE ADAIR LONGLEY.

BY ERNEST RUBIN.

"There's danger in your eyes, Cherie," may become something more than just the refrain of a song if the question "Can blue-eyed parents have brown-eyed children?" continues to puzzle jurists and experts of biology.

The danger of having to make a lengthy and involved explanation if your child happens to have brown eyes while both parents have blue eyes seems to be growing more threatening.

J. G. Mendel, an Austrian monk who has been buried for something like a half century, is credited with a theory that when both parents have true blue eyes they are incapable of transmitting eyes of brown or other pigmentation to their progeny.

The whole disturbing question start-

EMORY PHYSICIANS TO HEAD ALL UNITS AT GRADY HOSPITAL

Drastic Changes in Operation of Institution in Recommendations by Dr. Burt Caldwell.

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Complete reorganization of Grady hospital, in which Emory University would be given all the teaching privileges exercised heretofore by the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, will be the major recommendation of Dr. W. Burt Caldwell, of Chicago, executive secretary of the American Hospital Association. All three units of the hospital are involved in the sweeping changes proposed by Dr. Caldwell.

This became known Thursday on the heels of resignation of Steve R. Johnston, superintendent, and Asmon Lewis, assistant superintendent.

The report, which Dr. Caldwell is expected to have in the hands of the newly created Grady board within the next ten days, will be considered at a special called meeting, it was announced by Samuel C. Dobbs, chairman.

A feature of the report is that an Emory University instructor be selected as one of the chiefs of staff for each of the services of the white unit and the Albert Steiner cancer clinic, so that teaching privileges of all units will be available to the university. Emory now has teaching privileges at the negro unit.

At the present time there are a minimum of four chiefs of staff for each of the major divisions, and under the Caldwell plan one of the chiefs' places would be accorded to an Emory professor in each division.

Among other principal recommendations which the Caldwell report is expected to make will be the following:

1. Reorganization of the executive committees of the three units so that one member from each of the units will be elected to a central committee to form the directing body for the medical and other services.

2. Many changes in purchase of equipment and supplies designed to effect economies in operation.

3. Greater contributions from Fulton county. In the past Fulton commissioners have contributed $10,000 annually to support of the institution and reports were that Dr. Caldwell, who made a minute survey of Grady at the request of trustees was "astounded" that the county did not give a larger sum to its support.

4. Remodeling of the old dental building so that it will be a white receiving ward for all white patients, and also establishment in that building of an adequate maternity ward for white persons.

Storm Center.

The Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons has been operated by doctors at the institution for the past several years and several times has been the storm center of bitter political fights among doctors.

Police Obtain Confessions From Five of Six Youths Held for Series of Holdups Here

Six men, five of whom admit participation in 16 holdups, are being held by the city and county police as a result of a long investigation into the robberies of stores and pedestrians in the outlying district within the last several months. The arrests, made within the last few days, but withheld until all of the alleged members of the gang were rounded up, were announced Thursday night by Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole. The men held and their captors are shown in the above photograph. The prisoners are in front. From left to right they are John Moore, Ernest Leathers, J. A. Munro, E. W. Spratlin, C. W. Etheridge, Jr., and Harold Gann. In the rear are the city and county policemen who worked on the case. From left to right they are E. W. Wilson, county patrolman; C. L. Taylor, city detective; George Barrett, city detective; G. B. Scoggins, city detective, and L. P. Higgins, city detective. George Cornett, Constitution staff photographer, made the picture.

BY L. A. FARRELL.

What the police term the most relentless and most strategic coup against bandits in years was climaxed Thursday with the arrest of six youthful alleged members of a ring of holdup men that has been preying on outlying storekeepers and pedestrians for months.

Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole, in announcing the arrests, said confessions had been obtained from five of the men and that the sixth had admitted being present when robberies were committed, though he denied any participation therein.

The men held are:

J. P. Moore, 22 years old, Westlake avenue; John Munro, 21, Bankhead highway; Ernest Leathers, 20, 1541 Bankhead avenue; E. W. Spratlin, 26, 515 Griffin street; Cliff Etheridge, Jr., 502 Chestnut street, and Harold Gann, 18, 18 Gertrude place.

Chief Poole said the five who made confessions admitted participation in 16 robberies and "some others" they could not remember, including two on the same filling station at Spring and Nassau, which was visited the second time within one week.

The men to be credited with the arrests, Chief Poole said, are County Policemen E. W. Wilson and W. A. Vinson and City Detectives C. L. Taylor, George Barrett, C. B. Scoggins and L. P. Higgins.

The general roundup of the gang started more than a week ago when the two county policemen arrested Moore on a charge of stealing motor cars. He was taken to the tower and later released on bond. Chief Poole, scenting something sinister in the reports concerning Moore's activities, assigned two of his men to question him. With Vinson and Wilson they took Moore to the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, where after a long grilling he made a confession, admitted he had participated in a number of holdups and without revealing their identity unwittingly gave the police information which since his confession led to the rounding up of the other five men being held.

When the task of rounding up those suspected became too difficult for the

ROBINSON LEADS ATTACK ON RASKOB MODIFICATION PLEA

National Chairman Precipitates Tumult by Asking Committee To Consider Plan.

AL SMITH SPLITS WITH ARKANSAN

Tension Relieved Toward End of Meeting as Pleas for Party Unity Take Effect.

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—The prohibition powder keg exploded today at the meeting of the democratic national committee.

It tore asunder the democratic standard bearers of 1928 and left party workers groping for the road of harmony to which final pleas of the meeting beckoned.

Chairman Raskob touched off the spark with presentation of a platform for the committee's consideration which called for state liquor control, among other things.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the running mate of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, took the platform to roar his "repudiation" of the Raskob platform and his violent opposition to "bringing to the front a controversy that will divide the party."

Al Smith Smiles.

Alfred E. Smith, smiling through most of the row, came to the front in response to a plea from the floor and took Robinson to task for "jumping all over Raskob" because he had presented his own views.

Finally the veteran James M. Cox, presidential nominee of 1920, came forward with an appeal for consideration of the differences of the north and south on prohibition and for a united front.

Chairman Raskob, calm throughout, concluded with a reiteration of his right to ask the committee to consider issues; denied any collusion with any individual candidate; and put the committee on notice he would ask action on his recommendations at the next meeting in December or January.

Roars and hisses resounded as the prohibition furore reached its height but the democratic hosts left the meeting smiling and relieved. Pleas for unity against the common enemy were the keynote of the post-meeting discussions.

Still Opposed.

Nevertheless, Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, a vice chairman of the committee, predicted tonight that a majority of the committee was still against any declaration of policy.

Raskob, from the platform, declared the discussion healthy. Smith and Robinson went their respective ways from the committee room and each had nothing to add.

It was Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, who walked reso-

NEELY SAYS BRADY PAYMENT 'HOLDUP'

Bond Commissioner, Taylor Trial Witness, Says City Paid Knowing Amount Excessive.

The Atlanta bond commission knew payment of a $30,000 claim against the city in which Walter C. Taylor, then city clerk, is alleged to have shared to the extent of $9,000, was a "holdup" and without merit, Frank Neely, head of the bond commission, testified Thursday at Taylor's trial on a charge of bribery which is in progress before a jury in Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's court. Due to the exegencies of the situation, however, the commission felt that it was best to grant the claim and in so doing saved the city and viaduct property owners thousands of dollars, he explained.

Mr. Neely was called as a state's witness to detail negotiations with George Spence, attorney for the Brady estate, which obtained $30,000 from the city as a result of alleged damages to the Brady property growing out of the construction of the Pryor-Central viaducts. He was one of a number of witnesses called during the day in the state's fourth effort to convict Taylor of bribery, among the others being Spence and Channing Cope, who admitted being introduced to Spence as "Mr. Thompson" and who testified $9,000 given him by Spence at Taylor's request "disappeared from a drawer of a desk" in his office.

Taylor is facing three counts of bribery, one involving the Spence

PERU GETS THIRD BOSS IN 5 DAYS

Military Coup Drives Out Junta Which Unseated Sanchez Cerro.

LIMA, Peru, March 5.—(AP)—Lieutenant Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro returned to the government house tonight after troops loyal to him deposed a military junta that forced Sanchez Cerro out of office Sunday.

Apparently all troops in the Lima garrison supported this coup by Lieutenant Colonel Gustavo Jimenez, a loyal follower of Sanchez Cerro. Jimenez returned today with a division of troops which started southward last week to crush a rebellion at Arequipa but were held back after the navy forced Sanchez Cerro out.

Jimenez and his men landed at Callao this morning from the steamers Rimac and Apurimac and marched to the capital by the high road connecting the two cities.

At first there was no sign that a coup impended but when the troops reached their barracks in Lima they began to occupy strategic points and at 7:30 p. m. Jimenez took over the government house, forcing out the three-man junta which had ruled only five days.

As soon as the news flashed through the city that the junta had been upset several civilian parades were organized to acclaim Jimenez and many cheers were heard for Sanchez Cerro.

As soon as he had taken over the government Colonel Jimenez stated that the Lima garrison desired to fulfill the Arequipa manifesto issued by Sanchez Cerro August 22, 1930, saying the principal desire of the army was to end political controversy be-

FULTON MAKES BID FOR DECATUR BANK

Formal Offer Made Committee of Depositors To Be Answered Monday.

Offer of the Fulton National Bank to purchase a portion of the assets of the defunct Decatur Bank & Trust Company at face value and to reimburse depositors a percentage of their holdings at the time the Decatur institution was forced to close its doors early in January, was formally made Thursday night at a conference between a committee of depositors and Fulton officials.

The percentage offered was not divulged pending a meeting of depositors slated for 8 o'clock Monday night at the Decatur High school, at which time the proposition will be submitted formally to depositors at a mass meeting.

Negotiations were opened with Fulton bank officials soon after the failure, with a view of having the institution establish a branch at Decatur and if the projected adjustment of depositors' percentages meets with approval at the Monday night session, the new branch will become a reality.

Permission to establish the branch already has been granted. Establishment of the new office will mean that it would be added to those now operating at Buckhead, Peters and Walker streets in addition to the main office on Marietta street, the heart of the financial district of the borough of Atlanta.

Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton bank, stated that he felt the Decatur office would provide a convenience to the present depositors and widen the scope of Fulton service to other friends in Atlanta. The Fulton National Bank is said to be the largest independent bank in the state of Georgia preserving its original name and identity and has enjoyed a remarkable growth in the past few years, its resources now approximating $15,000,000.

SENATE CONTINUES RENTALS DEBATE

Telegram From Colonel Tate Urges Support of Discount Measure.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Continuation of the senate debate on the Western & Atlantic railroad rental discount bill Thursday was featured by the reading of a telegram from Colonel Sam Tate, former chairman of the highway board, urging support of the bill as "the easiest way out of our troubles now."

"Knowing Colonel Sam Tate as I do," Senator Clarence Vaughn, who read the message sent from Phoenix, Ariz., said, "I believe that he meant that this bill is the best way out of our troubles."

After a full day of argument on the measure, the senate quit late Thursday to meet this morning for the 60th day of its special session, having reached the constitutional limit of a regular session and entered the longest extraordinary session of the nine which have been convened since reconstruction days. Only one bill, to tax powdered milk, has passed both houses.

While the senate debate on the rental bills proceeded, with proponents and opponents taking it turn about, the house spent its day considering the Bennett bill to provide for the purchase of a new state farm for quartering convicts, a measure on which officials of the highway board and prison commission late Thursday announced they had reached an agreement favorable to the committee substitute.

Still another substitute, offered by Representative Hightower, would defer any definite action until the regular session in June but would create a commission of three members of the senate and five from the house to make an investigation as to the advisability, first, of purchasing and industrializing a new state farm; second,

WALTON CONVICTED AS BLACKMAILER

Jury Returns Guilty Verdict After Five Hours; To Be Sentenced Today.

H. C. Walton, East Point filling station operator, early Thursday night was found guilty for attempting to blackmail former Mayor I. N. Ragsdale. The verdict of the superior court jury, voted after nearly five hours of deliberation, carries with it a penalty of 12 months on the chain gang, a fine of $1,000, or both.

Judge John D. Humphries, who presided over the trial of the case, announced that he would pass sentence at 9 o'clock this morning.

The jury took the case shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and debated its issues until 6:30 before making a verdict. H. A. Allen, counsel for Walton, said he intended to file a motion for a new trial and failing in this contemplated carrying the case to the court of appeals.

Walton's defense was an alibi. He claimed that he was not in East Point the day the threatening letter is alleged to have been written to former Mayor Ragsdale demanding $1,000 from him "unless he wanted certain affidavits placed before Solicitor-General John A. Boykin," and that it was a matter of circumstance that he was in the vicinity of Lee street the day Mayor Ragsdale is supposed to have left the money in a package with a negro boy.

Walton was on the stand in his own defense late in Thursday morning's session. Earlier, Samuel Perry, 14-year-old negro boy, who led detectives to Walton when they found him at

Veterans Demand War Drafts Be Extended to Men at Home

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—Men who fought in the World War demanded today that if they are sent to war again those who stay at home be mobilized to prevent profiteering.

Representatives of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans appeared before the war policies commission to advocate legislation for universal draft in time of war.

The commission, composed of members of the cabinet, the senate and the house, was set up by congress to study "methods of equalizing the burdens and removing the profits of war."

The hearing today was the first of a series at which those charged with the conduct of the last war will be heard.

Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, urged the commission today to recommend legislation to insure the mobilization of men, money, materials and food in time of war.

O'Neil said the Legion does not want to draft capital or labor but wants the government to have absolute control of both. He suggested a plan for limiting profits to a fixed amount, such as 7 per cent and a far-reaching price fixing program under which the prices of commodities would

Travelers' Aid Official Exposes 'Job Racket' Used To Decoy Girls

BY WILLIAM O. KEY, JR.

Expose of the activities of unscrupulous sales promotion agents who lure young women from comfortable homes with meticulously-worded promises of gainful employment entailing travel opportunities, was made Thursday by Mrs. J. W. Payne, executive secretary of the Traveler's Aid Society here.

It is the well-known magazine subscription proposition, according to Mrs. Payne, whereby young girls solicit orders for periodicals on the plea that they are doing so to enable them to enter or finish college. As recorded in the official records of the local branch of the Travelers' Aid Society, the enterprise approaches perilously close to the "white slave" activities of the early part of the century, and in nearly every instance leaves the young women stranded in strange towns, without food, shelter or transportation back home.

Activities of the promoters of such enterprises came to notice when the national organization of the Travelers' Aid Society wrote the local division requesting information on the subject, together with information that the "magazine racket" is prevalent in virtually every city in the United States. Thousands of girls and young women are enticed from their homes during periods of unemployment by alluring advertisements offering travel, highly educational work, expenses and

TENNESSEE BANK LARCENY CHARGED

Investigating Committee Hears 'Stealing' Charge Hurled in Knoxville.

BY REX R. GOAD.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 5.—(UP)—Charges of larceny were made today as the Tennessee investigating committee resumed its hearings here and echoes of Tennessee's financial crisis sounded along three fronts and penetrated to another state.

Attorney Joe V. Williams for the committee which moved here from Nashville to look more deeply into alleged irregularities resulting in tieup of $6,000,000 of state funds in closed banks today characterized as "just plain stealing" certain methods pursued by J. B. Ramsay, president of the Holston Trust Company and the Holston Union National bank here, in his use of state deposits.

Testimony indicated Ramsay used part of a public deposit of $250,000 to buy, it was charged, a $25,000 note of the Knoxville Journal, then deposited the money to his own personal account.

At Nashville Governor Henry Horton was on record as refusing to "resign and run" in a statement issued in answer to one given out Tuesday by Ed Crump, congressman-elect from Shelby county, demanding ouster action against Governor Horton and several state departmental heads.

Branding Crump as an "impudent political boss," Horton declared he would "stay and fight to the end," pointing out he was elected by the largest majority ever given a gubernatorial candidate.

Crump followed with another statement from Memphis pointing out to the governor that his own 29 years' public service were without blemish and challenging Horton to a "truth-telling contest."

From Asheville, where failure of the Central Bank & Trust Company November 20 allegedly resulted partly from failure of banks affiliated with Caldwell & Co., Nashvile, Tenn., came reports that Tennessee citizens may be indicted by the forthcoming Buncombe county grand jury for responsibility in the failure here. Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles in a statement concerning possible indictments against Tennesseeans, declined to say who might be involved.

Asheville's city government holds collateral endorsed by Colonel Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, and other Caldwell interests, amounting to "several hundred thousands of dollars" given as security by the Central Bank and Trust Company for city money placed on deposit in the bank. The Central and affiliates, all closed, had nearly $8,000,000 of city and county funds at the time they failed.

F. C. Allen, assistant trust officer of the Holston company, first witness before the committee hearing here today described how the state's deposit of $250,000 was received June 30, 1930, how it was used on succeeding months to buy notes and bonds from banks and institutions associated with a syndicate formed by Caldwell and Company, in which Colonel Lea was interested. Allen described Ramsay's alleged manipulation of state funds to buy the Knoxville Journal note and later deposit the money to his own (Ramsay's) account.

Williams characterized the transaction as "legerdemain."

"Legerdemain means larceny, doesn't it?" asked Senator Speaker Scott Fitzhugh.

"Well, just plain stealing," Williams replied.

Direct investigation of the Holston-Union bank by the committee was blocked by objection of federal receivers.

the spot Mayor Ragsdale was to have left the money had appeared and told of being hired by Walton to get the package. He said he was to have received 50 cents for his work.

Mayor Ragsdale had been on the stand Wednesday, testifying to receiving the letter and to carrying out the instructions of Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole to take a dummy package to the corner in order that detectives might hide at the scene and arrest the alleged writer of the letter.

The case was prosecuted by John H. Hudson, assistant solicitor-general, who in his argument demanded a verdict of guilty to "show public officials that juries will back up their every effort to jail blackmailers."

"If this thing is allowed to go unnoticed all of our officeholders will become prey to such men as Walton," Mr. Hudson said. "He thought the mayor would hand over the money without a whimper, but I am proud to say that the first thing he thought of was prosecution, and the first thing he did was to go to Chief Poole."

Mr. Ragsdale said he had no comment to make after receiving news of the verdict.

SEARS, ROEBUCK PLANS DEMONSTRATION WEEK

Atlanta Retail Store Joins National Organization in Event.

Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s retail store here will join the company's national organization of 344 retail units located in all parts of the country in a value demonstration week, beginning today and continuing to March 14, Arthur Wasser, store manager, announces today.

"The idea of the demonstration originated in the national research department maintained by the company at Chicago," declared Mr. Wasser. "For many years the testing laboratories have torn merchandise to pieces, searching for possible defects. Thorough testing processes have been applied to merchandise before it was purchased for sale through our retail and mail organizations.

"The demonstrations will prove to the public what these tests have revealed to the Sears purchasing organization. There will be in most stores exhibits which will have educational value.

"Of course, it won't be possible to duplicate the processes used in the national testing laboratories where hundreds of intricate processes involving intricate machines are used; nevertheless, we expect to present interesting as well as instructive exhibits during the week."

Mr. Wasser described the operation of a relatively new division of the company's research department whose function is creative as well as analytic. Almost every variety of scientist from the statistical mathematician to the chemical engineer is employed in this division.

Its purpose is the development of new merchandise and the changing of standard merchandise to serve new demands produced by social, economic and industrial changes that affect the entire country. This division anticipates what the family of next year and the year after will want. It anticipates living conditions, movements of population and analyzes fundamental forms and features of merchandise from which no deviation is likely.

"Demands are constantly shifting, responding automatically to shifting social, economic an industrial influences. For example, a research department in possession of figures showing that the ratio of families living in small apartments to the families living in relatively roomy houses is shifting definitely in favor of the apartment dwellers, will know beyond doubt that there will be an expanding market for smaller furniture, for condensed kitchen equipment, for modified designing in respect to floor coverings and draperies.

"In designing new merchandise and redesigning standard merchandise, a research department has three ideals: (1) improved efficiency; (2) improved aesthetic or "eye" appeal, and (3) improved production methods in order t lower price without sacrifice of quality.

"Among the achievements of merchandise research at Sears, Roebuck during the last half decade are an automobile tire that jumped from sixteenth to first or second place in replacement sales in a period of less than five years; new economies in the development and production of electric refrigerators; electric washer improvements that increased not only its efficiency and introduced aesthetic value, but actually lowered the price of the machine; a new type of bicycle motor that was one of the real sensations of the Chicago Automobile Show and hundreds of other items, both new and redesigned for greater beauty utility and value."

Both men were charged with disorderly conduct after Ledbetter, it was said, slapped Rosenberg in the course of a dispute. They will be given hearings at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in police court.

Potlikker and Cornpone Placed On Menu of Smart St. Regis Hotel

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—That potlikker from the south boiled over today into the smart St. Regis hotel.

The French chef said "Mon Dieu! It's a new soup," and a group of early morning guests clamored for second helpings, some going so far as to dunk cornpone there in the snootiest of dining rooms.

This newest addition to the hotel menu—the maitre d'hotel has written the recipe in the book—got in through accident.

There was a debate, as radio listeners know, between Graham McNamee and Doctor Rockwell on whether to dunk or crumble. The National Broadcasting Company had a number of guests in their studios to witness the controversy and the company furnished cornpone.

But one can neither dunk nor crumble cornpone without potlikker. The hosts sensed this after a time. There across the street stood the St. Regis with a kitchen, pots and other wherewithal. To the hotel they went, demanding the brew and—after much explanation to the chef—they got it.

NEW WARFARE STARTS OVER FRIED CHICKEN

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—"Your true Hoosier takes his chicken when, where, as and if he can get it," whether it is fried in batter or in flour.

The adoption of such a resolution by a group of Hoosiers was designed today to stifle a feud over the relative merits of fried chicken a la Indiana and a la Maryland, which threatened to rival the now famous cornpone-potlikker controversy of the south.

The resolution was in answer to members of the Indiana Club, dining the other night, who declined Maryland style chicken and sent it back to be prepared the Wabash way. To a skeptical chef, Mrs. Medea G. Wager, head of the club, demonstrated that the former was encased in a batter before frying and the latter sprinkled with flour.

TIPPLING WARFARE RAGING IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 5.—(UP)—The great American dunking controversy has its parallel in the great English tippling controversy, which has agitated sportsmen from badmington to checker players throughout the United Kingdom.

Declaration by a crack oarsman that he was "never beaten by a teetotaller" has brought its floods of letters to newspapers, and with them the following which may or may not be genuine:

"My cousin and I were about equal at draughts (checkers) until he started drinking mixed vermouth. Now I beat him every time, which shows, I think, that alcoholic stimulants always have a deleterious effect upon athletic ability."

"My son and I were about equal at midget golf until we gave up drinking rum. Now neither of us can play the game at all."

CONSTITUTION READERS GIVE VIEWS ABOUT POTLIKKER

Potlikker Editor,
Atlanta Constitution:

I am 9 years old and have eaten potlikker and cornpone ever since I can remember. I always crumble. My father would run me from the table if I tried dunking my bread. We are also fond of chitterlings and always have them at Christmas time. We enjoy reading all the letters on the potlikker subject.

My father has been taking The Constitution for 15 years.

Very truly,
HAROLD WALTERS.

Seeks Knowledge at Source.

Potlikker Editor,
Atlanta Constitution:

I have been seeing a good deal in the papers recently about "dunking cornpone into potlikker, and in order that I may wise myself up on this subject I am writing to ask if you won't please publish in your paper the facts as to where this "cornpone dunker" business started and who started it.

I was born and brought up in Georgia, but until recently I had never heard of "dunking cornpone" into potlikker, or "dunking" anything else, for that matter. I see by the papers that you are at the table with the crumblers, so I don't suppose that you would mind telling me a few things about the "Long Dunkers' Association."

Until better informed I'll neither crumble nor dunk.

Yours,
A. R. PHILLIPS.

Tells of Old Days.

Potlikker Editor,
Atlanta Constitution.

It seems the wheels of progress are turning back to potlikker days, but people have and will drink potlikker that never heard of Governor Long. It was a choice dish before the governor was born, which all old-timers know about. Have only read last issue of the discussion, so don't know what has preceded, but back in my day the greens were cooked in an iron pot hung on potrack in big open fireplace, which gave a flavor unknown in these days of porcelain ware and quick cooking gas. Three hours to boil. We thought crumbling best method and while hot. Also we didn't drink black coffee. We had the calf beer seed or moss beer, which makes the finest drink with old-fashion ginger bread.

I still have beer seed. In fact, couldn't get along without it to go with cornpone and potlikker. This also being a supper dish, don't affect the nerves like coffee; also it is said to make thin and old people pick up, similar to persimmon beer. No alcohol.

So my vote is for crumbling and eat while hot, before the grease sets on top.

Black Mammy's Views.

Potlikker Editor,
Atlanta Constitution.

Your articles are most interesting and we crumble our bread today just as you indicated. I think you ought to hear, however, Black Mammy's views:

"Potlikker—whut you say, honey? Yes, I likes hit; ob co'se we crumbles bread in likker and eat hit, or drink hit. We fix hit jes' lak we do fur our babies. Mash de pone fine and poke a little in he mouf after hit soft in likker. Den we bathes him all over in de likker. Hit makes him healthy—"

"Oh, Mammy.—"

"Yes, we does, and many a white chile ben raised on potlikker when de fokes in de house didn't know hit. But, whut you tellin' me? Whut is dat you say some man say you mus' 'dunk' your pone? What is 'dunk,' Miss Effie? I knows de men has bunks at camp meetin's, and fish camps, but dis here 'dunk' soun' lak drunk. Whoeber sed dat ain't our nation er folks—he mus' be French or English.

"Jes let me get ere holt ob him an' I'll make a pone with water-ground meal thick an' brown an my fingerprints on top; den I'll bile some greens, young an' tender, an' I bet you he won't come erroun' here no mo' in dat curious English langridge about 'dunk.' Sho! I'd lak ter see dat man—dat I would!"

I think this is the most authentic explanation yet—for Mammy knows.

Pretzels and Cornpone.

Editor Potlikker Dept.,
Atlanta Constitution:

While I am not a potlikker hound, at the same time I have been very much amused over the controversy concerning handling of potlikker and cornpone.

If Governor Long will go to Germany he may find a lot of old, long-whiskered Germans dunking their coffee cake and other porous bread in their coffee. I do not believe he will see any of them dunking their pretzels in a glass of beer, because they would get no place in it by dunking as it would be impossible for the beer to enter the body of the pretzel on account of the slick coating of same, and the same applies to correctly made cornpone—you would get as much effect by dunking cornpone in the potlikker as you would dunking an ear of green corn in it.

I have been going to New Orleans for 40 years and I have eaten in a thousand different places, hotels, cafes, homes, and I have never yet seen any corn bread of any kind, much less a cornpone, and I have never yet seen any greens served on a bill of fare—to get potlikker you have to use greens and fat meat.

I'll bet there is more potlikker consumed in Georgia in one day than there is in Louisiana in ten years. We Georgians conclude that Governor Long's "dunk" is the "bunk."

Yours very truly,
O. L. MITCHELL.
Atlanta, Ga.

Suggests Bouillon Cups.

Potlikker Editor,
Atlanta Constitution:

As a South Carolinian and one who was reared in a home that speaks only the language of the old south, I would like to have a word in your controversy of whether to crumble or not. Back in the central part of the state in and around the little city of 18,000, potlikker, if served at all to the family might be in a cup or soup bowl, but in that case we crumbled.

Very often, though, you will find in a home a bowl, pot or pan closely covered, pushed back to the far side of a wood range, and if one has curiosity enough to raise the lid they will find corn bread over which has been poured the potlikker left from some vegetable cooked for the noonday meal, such as peas, beans, cabbage and collards, and to be served for supper.

I have never seen the dish served to a guest, but I have seen a guest arrive while the family was partaking of the said corn bread and potlikker, and they seem to enjoy the dish exceedingly well. Why no drink potlikker? We certainly drink other liquids and do not crumble or dunk our bread. I think that we might break a piece of bread, place it in our mouths and drink a bit of the liquor if the dish is to be eaten in public, and neither crumbling nor dunking if found to be correct because potlikker is in the nature of a soup, and we are told never to crumble or dunk our bread in our soup. In that instance why not use a soup plate and spoon, or bouillon cup and spoon?

Models in Cooking School Fashion Show

Attractive new styles in ready-to-wear are displayed on the stage at the Fox theater by Sears, Roebuck & Co. each morning preceding the sessions of The Atlanta Constitution's cooking and home-making school. The style show has been proving one of the most interesting parts of the school, and the dresses displayed have claimed all of their share of the interest. The final session of the school, which has been conducted by Miss Fannie Hamilton, will take place this morning, starting at 8:45. The models showing the dresses here are: Gene Sullivan, Julia Venable, Lyda Harris, Martha Fisher, Sarah Garrett and Peggy Reese.

Cooking School To Reach Climax At Closing Session This Morning

With three days of unprecedented crowds on record, The Atlanta Constitution's big free cooking school being held at the Fox theater will come to a climax at the closing session this morning.

Those in charge of the school are expecting the biggest crowd of the course to attend the final session. In many ways the closing session is considered the most interesting and the biggest attendance has always been on the final day in the past.

Near capacity houses have greeted Miss Fannie Hamilton, who is conducting the demonstrations, on each day of the school, which opened on Tuesday. Miss Hamilton is connected with the De Both Home-Makers Schools, one of the outstanding institutions of its kind in the country, and has made a most favorable impression on those attending the course.

The doors of the theater will open at 8:45 o'clock and every minute from then until the school is dismissed will be filled with entertainment and instruction, the actual demonstrations beginning at 9:30.

Each morning of the school large crowds have been waiting out in the lobby for the doors to open, in anticipation of getting the choice seats, and by the time Miss Hamilton starts her demonstrations the huge auditorium has been practically filled.

Eentertainment features are scheduled from the time the door opens until the demonstrations start. First on the program is a concert on a Stromberg-Carlson radio-phonograph combination, following which "Smiling" Al Evans, organist at the Fox, leads the audience in group singing. His selections are appropriate to the cooking school and the words are thrown on the screen.

At the session Thursday Mr. Evans sang a parody on "When It's Spring Time in the Rockies," treating with the question of dunking or crumbling cornpone in potlikker, much to the delight of the audience. Mr. Evans is using this number as his solo in the regular program at the theater this week.

Another feature of the entertainment program Thursday was a song by the theater's service staff. The number was staged with novel lighting effects and was well-received by the audience. The group was led by James Burdett, chief of the staff.

The latest fashions in women's ready-to-wear are displayed through the courtesy of Sears, Roebuck & Co., this feature having proved one of the most interesting on the entertainment program. Serving as models in the fashion show are: Gene Sullivan, Julia Venable, Lyda Harris, Martha Fisher, Sarah Garrett and Peggy Reese.

Mrs. Bernard Neal, president of the Young Matron's Circle of Tallulah Falls Industrial school, was hostess at the session Thursday, introducing Miss Hamilton. Assisting Mrs. Neal as hostess were the following members of the circle: Mrs. Eugene Harrington, Mrs. Jonathan Woody, Mrs. Julian Thomas, Mrs. Leonard Murray, Mrs. Joseph Walker and Mrs. Charles T. Winship.

In introducing Miss Hamilton, Mrs. Neal complimented The Constitution on what it was doing for the women of Atlanta, mentioning the service that the paper had performed in sponsoring the fashion and beauty extravaganza, which was staged as a benefit for the Tallulah Falls school.

Mrs. Oscar Palmour, prominent member of the College Park Women's Club, will preside as hostess and introduce Miss Hamilton today. Assisting Mrs. Palmour will be: Mesdames Edward G. Harris, George S. Longino, B. D. Gray, L. O. Freeman, A. T. Akers, B. D. Akers, D. C. Lyle, J. W. Houston, Douglas Lyle, W. E. Suttles, Ira Smith, Hoyt Trimble, D. R. Nesbitt, Frank G. Webb, E. W. Oliver, C. W. Wall, S. W. Jones, Paul Solomon, W. E. Lotspeich, R. L. Proctor, Leonard Robinson, T. H. Porch, E. N. Seymour, Harry Looney, H. J. Archer, Edward Richardson, A. L. Slade, C. W. Evarts, Charles Center, Leonard Martin, W. T. Thomas, E. S. Sitton, W. R. Hatchell and Wallis Sitton.

U. S. FINANCIERS SAID BACKING ITALIAN LOAN

PARIS, March 5.—(AP)—The Paris edition of Chicago Tribune today said that American financiers probably would be called upon to shoulder almost in its entirety a projected three billion-dollar loan to Italy, negotiations for which have been under way simultaneous with the naval conversations.

The Morgan interests were said to be taking a lead in plans for floating the loan in America, probably by popular bond issue.

Marital News 'Breaks' Fast In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 5.—(AP) Dixie Lee, featured film player, and "Bing" Crosby, orchestra and radio singer, have separated and she soon will sue for divorce.

Colonel Tim McCoy, war hero and star of western films, and Mrs. Agnes Miller McCoy, have separated but she will oppose divorce.

Lina Basquette, screen actress, and Peverell Marley, cinematographer, whose divorce has not become final, may be reunited.

Barbara Stanwyck, motion picture star, and Frank Fay, actor, deny a separation is even considered.

These were today's and yesterday's marital developments in the film colony.

"We have been married only about six months," said Miss Lee, who is 19 and came here from New York two years ago, "but already we have found we are not suited to each other. Our separation is an amicable one."

Francis B. Adams, attorney for Mrs. McCoy, said Colonel McCoy had written from his ranch at Thermopolis, Wyo., asking her to sue for a divorce. "We not only will not bring any court action," said Adams, "but we will fight to the limit anything the colonel starts."

Marley said he would meet Miss Basquette, who is driving to Hollywood from New York, at Yuma, Ariz., but he denied reports that they would remarry. "There is no need for it," he explained, "since our divorce is not until September, leaving us plenty of time to decide."

Miss Stanwyck was in the kitchen making tea and shortcake for her husband when questioned about a separation rumor. "Does this look like we're separated?" she countered.

ARBITRATION APPROVED BY FRENCH SENATORS

PARIS, March 5.—(AP)—The French senate today unanimously ratified the League of Nations' general arbitration act.

Aristide Briand, in advocating ratification, told the senate the general disarmament conference planned for 1932 was one reason why it could ratify without anxiety.

BANDITS BLAZE VIOLENCE TRAIL

Capture of Marauders Expected Soon Following Forays in Florida.

PANAMA CITY, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Capture of two bandits, who blazed a trail of shootings, kidnapings and holdups for more than 200 miles, across the northern tier of Florida counties, was believed imminent by authorities here late today. They said the bandits were last seen 16 miles north of here, headed for Panama City.

W. W. Cannon, chief deputy sheriff, said the bandits, armed with a machine gun and accompanied by two women, headed southward from Cottondale on Highway No. 20, after shooting two possemen near Chipley.

Headed by the sheriff here, approximately 20 deputies headed northward in an effort to apprehend the bandits, while other officers came south from Cottondale.

Cannon said he believed the bandits would be captured shortly unless they held up a passing motorist and escaped in another car over a side road.

Highways throughout the western part of the state were heavily guarded following a general broadcast of a description of the men.

Fleeing from Jacksonville last night after wounding a policeman, the bandits proceeded to Lake City, abandoned their car and fled into the woods.

This morning, on pretext of obtaining assistance for a disabled car, they seized a garage truck, compelled the garage man and his son to accompany them and set out westward. Near Chipley, 200 miles away, the garageman and his son escaped unhurt.

A posse, awaiting the men at Chipley, was fired upon by the bandits, who used a machine gun, Cannon said. One of the possemen, Gillis Malloy, a civilian, was seriously wounded, and D. J. Brock, chief deputy sheriff, was shot in the leg.

In an exchange of shots, one of the bandits was wounded. Halting a passing motorist, the men relieved him of his small coupe and made a wild dash for liberty, with one of the bandits and one of the women hanging on the running board.

Seven miles away, they halted another motorist, took away his car and continued eastward to Cottondale, where they turned southward toward Panama City.

ONE WOUNDED DEPUTY IN SERIOUS CONDITION

DOTHAN, Ala., March 5.—(AP)—Two Chipley, Fla., deputies who were wounded in an engagement with men believed to be bandits this afternoon, were brought to hospitals here, where the condition of one of them was described as serious. Gillis Malloy, one of the deputies, was shot through the chest, arm and leg and at Moody hospital his wounds were described as serious.

Referendum Plan Beaten.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 5.—(AP)—The Missouri house of representatives late today defeated a resolution proposing a state referendum in 1932 to determine sentiment on repeal or modification of prohibition laws. The vote was 78 to 51. The wets showed their greatest strength in recent years.

DRY LAW ISSUE STARTS DEBATE IN COMMITTEE

lutely to the platform to answer Robinson after he, in thunderous tones, criticised Raskob for "needlessly injecting" the prohibition issue into the party at this time.

Mrs. Norton insisted the women wanted modification of prohibition and accused Robinson of "changing his position" since she nominated him as the running mate of Smith in 1928.

Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, followed Mrs. Norton with another assault upon the proposal to inject prohibition at this time and called for the "democratic party of Joe Robinson and Jack Garner."

His fiery prohibition speech provoked constant interruption and Patrick H. Quinn, of Rhode Island, protested that it was out of order. Chairman Raskob, who recognized the North Carolinian while several others were seeking to talk, ruled he could proceed.

Hull Answers.

Senator Hull, of Tennessee, a former national chairman, was the first to respond to Raskob's invitation to discuss the platform proposal. In temperate words the Tennessean stated his belief that the committee was without authority to adopt policies, and that it was not its function either to recommend policies to the national convention.

All speakers agreed that only the national convention could commit the party on issues.

"All this talk about influencing the national convention is just bunk," snapped Smith.

"Atta boy," shouted a committeeman.

"I have been brought up in the democratic party to believe that the platform comes from the people," he continued.

Turning again to Senator Robinson, but this time with a smile, Smith said:

"I am sorry to think that my old-time traveling companion and political sparring partner, who traveled all over the state of New York in 1928 with a constitution in his hand explaining to the people that all this republican propaganda of what we would do couldn't happen, is going off here today without an understanding of what was said by our chairman.

Comfort to Hoover.

"If there is anything that could give greater comfort to President Hoover and his cohorts than what has happened here today I don't know what it could be.

"No one has said anything about repeal. In fact, something was said against repeal.

"As far as the principles enunciated by Mr. Raskob are concerned I want to say I never heard of them until today and I'm not sure that I'm for them all.

"But when the democratic party reaches the point where no one can express an opinion and its chairman is going to be dragged around the lot because he expressed his opinion we'd better stop talking and abandon free speech."

A rising ovation with several moments storming applause greeted Smith's conclusion:

"I didn't mean to make a speech. I'm not a member of the committee. I want to just be a plain worker in the ranks. Tell me what to do, and I'll be there."

Robinson was just as firm in his conviction that Raskob in bringing forward a platform at this time, including the liquor issue, had "paid back" to President Hoover "the aid rendered by him (Hoover) in his fi— two years of office to the democratic party."

Senator Joe Thunders.

Turning to Chairman Raskob, the Arkansas senator thundered:

"You cannot write on the banner of the democratic party the skull and crossbones emblematical of an outlawed trade and expect the party to accept your recommendations without resistance.

"If I had taken this platform either as a member of the committee or as a member of the party and suggested such a recommendation on the eighteenth amendment, it would have been taken by the chairman as needless interference. This is a subject on which both political parties are divided. The only way in which the republican party can hope for victory is to rely on the lack of wisdom of those who lead the democratic party.

"I repudiate in so far as I as a member of the party can repudiate the effort of the national chairman to submerge all other issues and to bring prominently to the front one about which he knows the democrats entertain conflicting opinions.

"When the chairman talks about modifying the anti-trust law so as to give big business absolute immunity, let it be recalled that under such a present rule now our country has come to the worst situation in its history.

"Is the democratic convention to be urged to adopt a policy that cannot be distinguished from the policy of the party now in power? It may be done. I do not think it will be done by the members with proxies gathered from the windswept corners of the earth."

After Cox had spoken, Chairman Raskob declared the discussion at an end. He called for any other recommendations that might be submitted and none was offered.

But when he then brought up the plan for raising the committee's half million dollar debt there was such an exodus from the room that it required almost 30 minutes to restore order and bring the committee back to the serious talk of money.

A plan for raising $1,500,000 prior to the next convention was submitted and approved.

When Arthur Mullen, of Nebraska, offered a resolution of thanks to Mr. Raskob and Jouett Shouse, executive director of the committee, it was with Senator Morrison alone voicing an objection.

The morning session of the committee gave no indication of the coming blow off. Raskob at the outset informed the meeting he did not want any resolutions to be pressed for action.

The tenseness of the gathering noticeably lessened but the afternoon speech of the chairman in which he presented his recommendations for action at the next meeting touched off the explosion.

Smith and Cox sat on the platform at the afternoon session.

Jouett Shouse in following Raskob said the sentiment of the country demanded that the party face "courageously the problems confronting the people."

HARDMAN DISAPPROVES ANY DRY LAW CHANGE

ATHENS, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Governor L. G. Hardman, here attending the Georgia social work conference, said he was opposed to any change in the prohibition law. "We have laws against murder and they are violated, and the only way to stop the violation of laws is to stop making laws," he said. He had just read John J. Raskob's statement on state control of liquor.

POLLARD HITS RASKOB FOR MODIFICATION PLAN

RICHMOND, Va., March 5.—(AP) "Mr. Raskob does not seem to know what the national committee is for," Governor Pollard, dry, democratic Virginia executive, said today when asked to comment on the party chairman's prohibition plan. He continued: "It (the committee) was not chosen for the purpose of advising the representatives of the democratic party in convention assembled what platform they should adopt. The committee is the servant of the convention, to carry out the convention's will. "Mr. Raskob, in his wet zeal, has violated all precedent and has given aid and comfort to the enemy."

GIRLS TRAPPED, MRS. PAYNE SAYS

bonuses, it was said, and Travelers' Aid Socities all over the country are being appealed to for assistance where a vast majority of such girls are stranded.

Mrs. Payne revealed that within recent weeks the local division has handled 17 such cases, each of which it has investigated and every one of which has proved to be identical, although the "crew" managers or promotion superintendents have been different persons. The executive secretary of the local society used an advertisement which several of the girls had answered, as an example. Here it is:

GIRLS—2, collegiate appearance, not over 23, to travel with manager and wife. Commercial advertising. $18 wkly., bonus, traveling expenses. Apply ——.

In each case, Mrs. Payne pointed out, the advertisement is composed in a most dignified manner, setting forth the promise of a regular weekly stipend, an added bonus, payment of all traveling expenses, and congenial employment. Thus the victims of such a scheme are persuaded to leave their homes, travel hundreds of miles to the designated city, where they sign a "contract." It is then that the victim discovers the first of a series of bitter disillusionments that usually end in circumstances too sordid for public information.

MRS. J. W. PAYNE.

The first of these disillusionments comes when the girl appears for a business meeting with the "crew" manager, according to Mrs. Payne's records. She is told that before she can become affiliated with the "company" she must post a bond of $10. If this security is forthcoming, and the young woman applicant requests reimbursement for travel expenses, as promised in the advertisement, she is informed that first it will be necessary for her to sell a certain number of subscriptions.

Following her initial contact with the crew manager and his wife, Mrs. Payne explained, the new girl is herded into a hotel room with several other girls who have responded to the advertisement. Commonly it is the practice of the crew manager to place four or five girls in one hotel room, usually of the cheaper type, where they are closely guarded, as well as their baggage, which is subsequently used as a threat to prevent the girls from deserting the "racket."

Case reports in the files of the local Travelers' Aid Society reveal that these young women are given only their meals and a place to sleep; that they are paid no salary whatever, and that they are sent out in pairs to "work" the office buildings in the cities where the "crew" happens to be.

Following is the case report of a 17-year-old girl from Greenville, S. C., which happened in Atlanta:

Case Report.

Arriving here in response to an advertisement, she was sent out with several other young girls to canvass the office buildings. Boys of collegiate appearance who had applied for employment were dispatched to residential sections. The young girl from Greenville that night protested to her manager that many of the men in the office buildings had affronted her. One of them had told her, she said, that he would buy a subscription. "I'll buy two subscriptions," the girl reported he had promised. "Meet me here at 10 o'clock tonight." Upon reporting this to her manager, the record shows, he ordered her to "go for a subscription whenever you can get one." The Travelers' Aid Society took up the matter, succeeded in getting enough money from the manager to send the girl home, and turned over several misleading letters the manager had written the young woman to federal officers who discovered, when they called at his hotel the next day, that he and his wife had left town.

Mrs. Payne described another case that she investigated.

"White with fright, and trembling, a 20-year-old girl, looking much younger, came into the Travelers' Aid office. She was seeking a way out of what was a serious dilemma. For several weeks she had been with a magazine crew, a man and wife, ostensibly. The crew had 'made' Chattanooga, Birmingham and were then in Atlanta.

"Many experiences had opened her eyes since she had answered an advertisement in West Virginia, had signed a contract and paid down $10, to be returned when she left the service. In Birmingham a man, apparently ready to sign her contract for magazines, had taken her fountain pen, and when she refused to meet him later in his office, he said he would keep the pen and sign the subscription when she did return. He kept the pen and the unsigned contract. This girl reported these improprieties to her manager, who told her, 'Go on back. You've got to work. Be a sport.'

"The next day the girl informed the manager's wife she was leaving, and asked for her $10 deposit. The money was refused, the manager and his wife threatening to hold the girl's baggage at the hotel if she left. On the following morning she was ordered to work jointly with the manager's wife in downtown office buildings. The girl succeeded in evading her companion and came to the Travelers' Aid Society with her story. Assistance of the Legal Aid Society was summoned by the travelers' organization, and after a visit to the hotel and an interview with the manager, the girl's clothing and her $10 deposit were obtained."

Many Left Stranded.

So enticing are the promises of the magazine promotion racketeers, Mrs. Payne said, that not only are young, unsophisticated girls ensnared, but women who already have wholesome positions give them up and answer the advertisements. One girl from Jackson, Miss., gave up a steady position as school teacher. She was found in destitute circumstances at a cheap hotel in Atlanta.

Another case reported dealt with the plight of four girls in a local hotel room who had answered an advertisement offering "high type educational work." The clerk of the hotel one night notified them that their manager and his wife had checked out and that the room occupied by the girls had been paid up for only one night. The next day all four girls were left on the streets—stranded.

Often such girls are literally left "on the street," Mrs. Payne said. Too proud to appeal to their parents for aid, they shift for themselves; and the once bright-eyed eager young girl who answered the false offer of golden opportunities becomes hardened to disillusionment and hardened to life.

STAND FOR PEACE TAKEN IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 5.—(UP)—The protocol for the adherence of France to the permanent court of international justice at The Hague was adopted unanimously in the senate today.

The senate also, by raised hands, unanimously adopted the general act of arbitration. Both acts previously had been adopted in the chamber of deputies.

Aristide Briand, foreign minister, and Henri De Jouvenel, former delegate to the League of Nations, spoke in support of the acts.

"France once more shows her sincerity, good faith and willingness to make sacrifices for peace in her desire to put peace measures into operation," Briand said.

NEW PLOTS OUTLINED AT TRIAL OF RUSSIANS

Audience Seems Bored as Government Approaches End of Case.

MOSCOW, March 5.—(AP)—New "plots" to overthrow communism in the soviet union were outlined today as the government's case against 14 leaders of the menshevik (social democratic party) approached an end. But the audience seemed rather bored.

Today's principal witnesses were two other mensheviki who were brought from jail where they also are awaiting trial. All 14 of the accused have confessed to activities designed to overthrow the government.

K. Gvozdyoff, known as one of the oldest mensheviki and a former minister in the Kerensky cabinet, who is awaiting trial, told the court of committing sabotage on instructions of the defendants.

Alex Nekrasov, once vice president of the duma and later a minister in the Kerensky cabinet, testified that he also committed sabotage, not as a member of the social democratic party but as an official of the central cooperative society. He said his acts were committed merely because he was antagonistic to the present government.

Marvin Underwood Sworn In As Federal District Judge

With little ceremony, but witnessed by a large throng of members of the Atlanta bar, friends and relatives, E. Marvin Underwood (left) was sworn in Thursday afternoon by Jon Dean Steward (right), chief deputy clerk, as United States judge for the northern district of Georgia. The oath was administered in United States district court at 2:45 p. m. Staff photo by George Cornett.

E. Marvin Underwood, prominent Atlanta barrister, became judge of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, in simple ceremonies held in the federal court Thursday afternoon, in which he was sworn in by Chief Deputy Clerk Jon Dean Steward.

Judge Underwood ascended to the bench and his first official act was to sign several orders, both in the equity and criminal division of court, including three or four petitions for transfer of cases from Gainesville to Atlanta. The oath was administered in the presence of a large gathering of members of the legal fraternity of Atlanta, officials of the federal court, Mrs. Underwood and other relatives.

Saturday Judges Underwood, Sibley and Barrett will sit here in a three-judge hearing into the Florida log rate cases.

City Club Acclaims Editorial Convention as Boon to State

Acclaiming the annual convention of the National Editorial Association, which is to open in Atlanta June 1, as the greatest opportunity ever offered for securing nation-wide publicity for Georgia, the City Club of Atlanta at its weekly meeting Thursday afternoon, at the Piedmont hotel, appointed a committee to assist the Georgia Press Association in making the convention a success and in publicizing Georgia. The plans of the Georgia Press Association for securing nation-wide publicity designed to increase tourist business, attract new capital, and to encourage trade in Georgia products, were outlined at the request of President Walter McElreath by Russell Whitman, of Whitman and Starr, public relations counsellors, who have been appointed to direct the convention publicity.

Mr. Whitman, a newly elected member of the City Club, outlined the benefits possible to Georgia as set forth in a pamphlet by Louie L. Morris, president of the Georgia Press Association. Following Mr. Whitman's talk, the club ananimously voted to support the National Editorial convention in every way possible, indorsed the publicity program and voted to invite one of the many distinguished editors, who will be delegates to the convention, to address the City Club while in Atlanta.

President McElreath appointed Mr. Whitman as chairman of the committee, the members of which are Charles J. Haden, Fritz R. Jones, Russell R. Whitman, J. Frank Beck and Robert P. McLarty. The committee is expected to meet in a few days to form the program under which the City Club can be of assistance in publicizing Georgia. Mr. McElreath, in speaking of the publicity program, told how California, Wyoming, Tennessee and other states having already entertained the National Editorial Association, were stiff competitors in efforts to secure the 1931 convention and how each state realized publicity in the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars at a comparatively small cost.

"I consider," said Mr. McElreath, "the convention of the National Editorial Association, whose membership comprises more than 5,000 of the leading newspaper and magazine editors of the country, as the greatest opportunity Georgia has ever had for not only telling the world of the attractions of our state, but also in selling Georgia to Georgians.

"The plans of the Georgia Press Association contemplate the publication of booklets and general information suited to newspaper and magazine publication about not only the state at large but also about every one of the communities to be visited by the editors.

"The experience of other states has shown that if this information is properly prepared it will give publicity of unestimable value. The publicity material should result in the compilation of the most complete illustrative library of Georgia history, attractions and resources that has ever been gotten together. I know of nothing the City Club could possibly get behind and support that would be of greater value to our city."

71ST CONGRESS CALLS ON U. S. FOR 10 BILLION

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The seventy-first congress, which adjourned Wednesday, broke all records for federal appropriations, except those made in war time, calling upon the treasury of the United States for a little more than $10,000,000,000. This amount compares with the following expenditures made in recent years:

Sixty-fourth congress $3,587,000,000; sixty-fifth congress and the first session of the sixty-sixth (war sessions) $43,467,000,000.

Sixty-sixth congress, second session, $4,789,000,000.

Sixty-seventh congress $7,647,000,000.

Sixty-eighth congress $7,688,000,000.

Sixty-ninth congress $8,664,000,00.

Seventieth congress $9,291,000,000.

There is just one silver lining to the cloud of expense, however, brought by Representative Will Wood, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who says that he believes that economies may be effected in the future and calls attention to the fact many of the large expenditures of the recent congress were unusual and are hardly likely to be duplicated in the coming years.

In particular, Mr. Wood cited such items as the $166,000,000 of emergency funds for federal buildings, appropriated as a measure for unemployment relief and the half billion for the federal farm board.

A summary of the major appropriation bills passed by the recent congress include:

Agricultural department $215,578,860.

District of Columbia $45,672,838.

Executive and independent office $1,052,777,010.

Interior department $87,247,606.

Legislative establishment (congress, congressional library, government printing office, etc.) $26,973,185; navy department $358,253,952.

Departments of state, justice, commerce and labor $137,423,954.

Treasury and postoffice departments $1,083,148,923.

War department $445,765,735.

All the amounts mentioned, with the exception of a few items of approximately $30,000,000 are for the next fiscal year, commencing on July 1. In addition to these and other appropriations already mentioned there were two deficiency bills passed, which carried $109,303,822 and $83,990,967, respectively.

2 ADMIRALS SHIFTED BY NAVY DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—Reassignment of two admirals was announced today by the navy department.

Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves, commander of the air force, will be relieved about May 29 by Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, whose title will be commander of air craft of the battle force. He also will have charge of all aircraft of the fleet.

The new post of Rear Admiral Reeves is undecided.

GIN PARTY DEFENDANT ENGAGED, JURY HEARS

Youth on Trial for Girl's Death Was To Wed Her, Is Testimony.

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 5.—(AP)—Two weeks before Arlene Draves' death at Gary, Ind., she and Virgil Kirkland, on trial here for her murder, attended a party intended to celebrate their projected marriage, Evan Madera testified today at Kirkland's trial.

Madera, a 24-year-old steel mill employe, was a guest at the drinking party that ended in the 18-year-old Arlene's death.

The state halted Madera's narration after he had declared "the party was for Virgil and Babe to get married."

The defense virtually exhausted its list of witnesses excepting young Kirkland, who will be called tomorrow.

Dr. Joseph Springer, of Chicago, the first of two defense medical experts, who yesterday examined Miss Draves' body, asserted there was no evidence of the girl having been attacked. Springer, formerly coroner's physician in Chicago, said he had performed more than 25,000 post mortems.

Dr. Herman O. Seipel, of Valparaiso, former Porter county coroner, apparently became confused while being cross-examined, locating the cerebrum in the back of the head and the medulla in the middle. Asked by Prosecutor John Underwood who had such a brain, Seipel said he had.

"Don't you know the cerebrum is the front of the brain and the medulla is the rear?" shouted Underwood.

Seipel admitted his error.

The dress that Arlene was buried in was the subject of testimony by Martin Briar, 20, a fellow football player of Kirkland's.

Briar said Miss Draves obtained the money to pay for the dress from Kirkland, but the prosecutor asked Briar, if he didn't know Kirkland was carrying Arlene's money, given to her by a brother. Briar, a pallbearer for Arlene, didn't know.

Briar, an embarrassed youth, wearing glasses, said he was on a "double date" with Virgil and Arlene when the dress was purchased.

Hunch Saves Manager's Money From Thieves

BROOKLYN, March 5.—When Nicholas Koenig, manager of a shoe store in Brooklyn, closed for the night he had a hunch that it was about time for the roving bandits in that city to visit his store and acted accordingly. His hunch was right. The bandits arrived early the next morning and forced the boss, Louis Albert, to open the safe. The thieves seized the "money drawer" of the safe and hastily departed. When Nicholas arrived, Albert ruefully described the hold-up and said, "they got everything."

"Oh, no," replied Nicholas, taking out a shoe box from among the others and disclosing the full receipts of the day before. Nicholas had placed the money in an empty box, thinking that safer than the safe. All the thieves got was a bundle of unpaid tradesmen's bills.

The leagues newly affiliated are located at St. Petersburg, Fla., Mobile, Ala., Elmira, N. Y., and Des Moines, Iowa.

HOOVER'S BAD YEARS.

On Wednesday President Hoover entered upon the second half of the term to which he was elected in 1928. The record of his first two years, with congress now in adjournment, is before the country for appraisal. The period is always a crucial one for a president serving a first, and possibly only, term.

Judging impartially from the comments in public life, in partisan, press and business circles, these two Hoover years have been ragged and unsatisfying in substantial achievements. Great hopes that accompanied his entry upon the office, based upon his known abilities in lesser public services and upon his popular prestige, have very signally failed of realization. President Hoover stands today as the most pathetically stripped personality in his high station that the country has looked upon in many years.

That he is a man of conspicuous talents, of earnest convictions, and a sincere desire to serve his country usefully and acceptably, cannot be questioned by any just person. To what, then, can be attributed his failures to meet the expectations of his countrymen? It must be assigned to the mistake he has made in trying to play politics in his office when he is manifestly no adept in political craft.

And the prospect ahead of him for the next two years, with a nearly evenly-divided congress on his back, is not one that he can view with equanimity. From now on he must "watch his step" for the country will be carefully and critically watching him.

FORBID THE FILIBUSTER.

The failure of some quite important legislation to be perfected by the senate in its last hours was due to the pestiferous filibuster of Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, in retaliation upon the senate for refusing to adopt a resolution he wished passed in the interest of certain independent oil producers among his constituents.

He furnished a glaring case of the inane and indefensible liberties allowed to a single senator among ninety-six, representing all the states, to monkey-wrench the wheels of national legislation and prevent needed benefits to millions of citizens in the special interest of a localized few.

There are feasible and national ways by which the senate can manage its rules of debate so as to prevent such an aggravating performance as that which was staged by Senator Thomas. There can be devised perfectly safe ways to remove from the floor such a "bull in the gap" as he was in the last hours of the expiring senate.

It is often pleaded in justification of the senate filibuster privilege that it once prevented the enactment of the odious and unforgettable Lodge force bill which would have set up a military despotism over the electoral liberties of the southern states in particular. But the analogy thus sought is fictitious. The rights of a large and earnest minority to obstruct rabidly partisan or destructive legislation in its opinion can be adequately preserved without giving to one senator the right to halt all legislation at a critical juncture and work disappointment and wrong to a vast majority of the people.

There can be no doubt that the people would generally applaud a senate that would end the abnormal solecism of allowing one of its members to defeat its constitutional legislative power.

THE OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL.

The Atlanta Opportunity school celebrates at a banquet tonight the completion of ten years of accomplishment which has attracted the attention of educational circles in cities all over the country.

Amongst the first schools of this nature to be established in the United States, its splendid record of worth-while achievement has caused many other cities, some of them the largest in the country, to launch similar institutions.

The school was established in 1921, through the activity of J. F. Cannon, state supervisor of trade and industrial education, and former Superintendent of Schools Dykes. During its first term its sessions were held in one small room and it had only one teacher and 106 students.

Later it moved to a small frame building near the Commercial High school and in 1928 occupied an entire floor of a modern building on Spring street. Now it has classes in 60 different points in the city, with an enrollment of 3,262. The excellent faculty is composed of 45 teachers.

Such a growth has been unequaled by any other department of the city government. It sets up a record of service that is a shining mark to be aimed at by all divisions of the municipal government coming in direct daily touch with the people of the city.

Designed primarily to give opportunity to home-makers, wage-earners and those temporarily out of jobs to make them more efficient, this school has within the ten years of its life increased the earning ability of thousands of Atlantans.

It is one of the city's most unique and meritorious institutions and should as such receive the full cooperation and support of all classes of our citizens.

OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM.

Congress has passed and the president has signed into law an act saying "that the composition consisting of the words and music known as the Star Spangled Banner is designated the national anthem of the United States of America."

Thus, after some hundred and sixteen years from its writing, the famous war song of Francis Scott Key becomes officially stamped as our national anthem. In spite of its belatedness the act is well done and will be practically unanimously accepted by the people of the United States.

All around the earth now the music of the song is recognized as that of our national anthem and respected accordingly. And wherever Americans assemble, either in civil or military formations, they stand in respect and honor the national ensign by formal salute.

Extreme pacifists deprecate the war spirit that pervades the words of the song, but that objection finds scant response from patriotic millions who have inherited the traditions of their war-born nation and the spirit of defending it—primarily for peace, but always for self-preservation.

Now that the Star Spangled Banner, by definite enactment is made the official anthem of the nation, it behooves all patriotic associations and individuals to promote that respect for its rendition in public which is becoming. There is constant need to cultivate the spirit of the flag that the freedom it symbolizes and that the song voices shall not degenerate among our people.

Congress has adjourned! Now, peal out joy-bells to a joyful land. Yea, let joy be unconfined!

Bobbie Jones at Hollywood has had to put on grease-paint. But he has been slick enough just so everywhere else on the planet.

Sovietism hopes to succeed by making all its subjects afraid to favor anything else.

A woman magistrate raised a thousand dollars out of a yeast company for the use of her picture in their advertisements.

Jefferson called the presidency "a splendid misery." We wonder what Hoover calls it.

Too many farmers, when they plow, scratch Mother Earth as if she has the itch.

The moral reformation of the movies is so Haysy that scarcely anybody can see it.

The new congress apportionment is now fixed and legislators will now have a hot time trying to fit 12 old members into 10 new holes.

The legislature is still playing basketball between the two houses and missing the basket at every shot.

The senate adjourned in the midst of a filibuster, but anything that would bust it was doubly welcome.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW
BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Progress Of Civilization.

Most records are made in America, of course. But from time to time European newspapers publish accounts of incidents which show that the Old World has also been seized with the record-making and record-breaking passion. In Berlin, for instance, we learn a gentleman undertook recently to sing for 55 hours without stopping. He did not succeed, however. But over in Sofia, one of the social lions of that gay capital broke the record of cigaret smoking. He consumed 294 cigarets in 15 hours, the world-record. A Czecho-Slovak gentleman built up an entirely new record in Prague when he consumed 101 pig-knuckles without drinking once. The feat does not consist in the formidable eating in this case, but in the man's noble resistance to thirst.

By the side of our own champion, whose name we have unfortunately forgotten, who carried a peanut in his nose all the way up to the top of Pike's Peak, may now be placed the gent who walked from Land's End to John O'Groats in England with a dozen peas in each shoe.

Another individual made public the fact that he had swallowed 226,934 pills in 21 years, and cited the reputable testimony of "The Lancet," the well-known medical journal in substantiation of his claim. Still with all Europe trying to catch up on us, America undoubtedly maintains her lead. That is, unless that Neapolitan, Signor Maniculli, carries out his threat to improve upon the record of his friend Signor Narduzzi, who, the papers solemnly state, managed to stow away three yards of spaghetti per minute and kept this up for 105 minutes, without pausing for breath, so to speak.

Another little mater in which we will have to look out for our laurels is this desire to be the first in pulling off some stunt. We have had at least one couple that had the knot tied while flying in an airplane. But a Berlin couple has just been the first to carry the judge on high to hand them their divorce decree way up in the clouds.

Health Talks
BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CRYOPHOBIA STILL RAGING IN THE PROFESSION.

Far from my good friend Dr. Webster and rather out of grace at the moment with the professor, whose neurasthenia I candidly pooh-poohed, I can only take Dr. Alfred B. Olsen's word for it, that cryophobia is abnormal fear of cold. Dr. Olsen is one of the associates of Dr. John H. Kellogg at Battle Creek, which sufficiently determines his standing. He complains that dread of cold air is still prevalent among civilized people. I submit that doctors are civilized people.

Dr. Olsen points out that children, if not frightened and terrorized by their elders against cold, take to cold air and cold water baths as naturally as ducks take to water. A healthy child, he avers, will stand and laugh while being douched with cold water. Children prefer cool to warm baths, and if not prevented will climb out of the bath and run and play without drying and without taking cold (sic), a practice to be encouraged. On a winter day they will run out and play in the snow and race about without the usual "bundling up," if they can escape. Children that are allowed to enjoy direct contact with the fresh outdoor life and sunshine are usually free from colds (sic again) because their skin is functioning in a normal way. "But if a child goes near an open widow (I'm here quoting Dr. Olsen verbatim) or attempts to go out 'unwrapped' in winter the mother or nurse calls it back in alarm, saying 'Come in or you will catch your "death of cold."'"

I submit that mothers and nurses who would fail to behave like that would not be carrying out the implied or actual instructions of the great majority of the best doctors and child specialists of our day.

This cryophobia prevails at least as widely in the medical profession as it does in any other class. I have encountered all kinds of ideas on the subject among physicians and specialists, and it is with no slight chagrin that I confess I would be in a quandary to point out for you a single good physician or pediatrist who is entirely in accord with me in the belief that exposure to cold or wet is quite harmless.

BOSTON TIDAL STORM ABATES, WATER FALLS

BOSTON, March 5.—(AP)—Force of the tidal storm which smote the New England coast yesterday had abated and moved northeastward, it became apparent today when the noon tide failed to reach predicted height.

As the sea rolled back, residents of shore communities set about work of restoration and repair of damage which seemed likely to total millions of dollars.

The maximum height of tide today was placed at 12 feet 6 inches at 11:45 a. m. by Commander R. F. Luce, of the United States coast geodetic survey, more than a foot short of yesterday's record high tide.

The Conning Tower
BY F. P. A.

AFTER A SPANISH PROVERB.

Oh, mercifullest one of all,
Oh, generous as dear,
None lived so lonely, none so small,
Thou couldst withhold thy tear;

How swift, in pure compassion,
How meek in charity,
To offer friendship to the one
Who begged but love of thee!

Oh, gentle word, and sweetest said!
Oh, tender hand, and first
To hold a warm, delicious bread
To lips burned black of thirst.

DOROTHY PARKER.

It may be said that "The Conning Tower" has acquired toleration with the passing of the years. Time was when we insisted that the newspaper that printed us conformed with our views and opinions. We no longer demand that. We allow our papers the utmost freedom of expression in opinions about art, politics, literature and the stage. We are not, however, responsible for the opinions expressed in any newspaper that is fortunate enough to publish our material; or, to put it better, that is generous enough to give us a job.

Mrs. Maude Bouldin, a social secretary, had something to say yesterday about men with receding chins. "The man with the r. c.," Mrs. Bouldin said, "is quick on the conversation. He has charm, he listens well, and his repartee cannot be excelled." We want more than that, Mrs. Bouldin. We want to know (a) why quick conversation is an asset; (b) two examples of (1) protruding chin repartee and of (2) receding chin repartee; and (c) a photograph of Mr. Bouldin. For we can't for the life of us tell, by Mrs. B.'s observations, whether his chin protrudes or recedes.

As usual, there is no subsolar novelty. The two-line play is Old Stuff. For the slippered pantaloons among us remember well the days when, at Weber and Field's Music hall Mr. William Collier used to say to Mrs. Louise Allen Collier, "I have something to say to you," and she would say, "Something to say to me?" and he would say, "I am going away from here." And the first thing you knew it was nearly 11 o'clock.

Of course, we don't believe that the New England milk industry offered Mr. Coolidge $1,000,000 for five years to become what the copyreaders would call Milk Czar. After all, that is only $200,000 a year. It would take all his time, and he would have to abandon writing, a profession that won't mix with anything else, and one that pays Mr. Coolidge, so rumor says, at least that handsome sum. About the only lacteal job a writer could take up would be that of a professional Spilled-Milk Crier, of which this complaining universe is full.

Joe Tinker, once the great shortstop of the Cubs, has written a baseball epic covering his 35 years in the national game. It is entitled "Tinker to Evers to Chance."—Philadelphia Ledger syndicate advertisement in the Editor and Publisher.

And an excellent title, too, though we say it that should.

Credit it or no, yesterday a letter was received in what, for want of a better name, may be called the World office to the effect that a suit was about to be brought by a former reader. "I was interested in General Pershing's story," the letter ran, "and now I'll never know how the war came out."

It seems that the trouble in Peru has arisen from dissension about silver mines. So maybe what that country needs is a good nickel-plate revolution.

To Many Writers of Telegrams and Letters:

Thank you, and you, to the n-teenth power.

The Constitution in 1787 and Today
BY RANDOLPH LEIGH, M. A.,
Director, International Oratorical Contest.

HAMILTON'S PLAN.

(This is the sixth of a series of articles dealing with the making and expansion of the constitution and designed to aid participants in securing a background for their work in the national oratorical contest.)

Hamilton, in beginning his memorable speech of June 18, explained his long silence in the convention by two facts—first, his unwillingness to advance views so dissimilar to those held by older and abler men whose opinions he regarded with such high esteem, and, secondly, the lack of sentiment in his state favorable to a strong central government.

He then proceeded to attack both the Virginia and the New Jersey plans. The New Jersey plan seemed to him to be utterly worthless and even vicious, because it marked no real advance beyond the confederation ideas of the Articles. He did not feel that any compromise on representation in one branch of the legislative department could possibly meet the situation. His idea was that the whole structure of the central government needed strengthening. By strengthening the government, he meant the removal of all its functions from the immediate whims of the people.

Accepting the Virginia plan as the only one having sufficient virility to furnish a working system, he directed his argument toward urging delegates to go beyond Randolph's plan and accept the principle of aristocratic control in all branches of the government.

After an hour of close reasoning on the Virginia plan, he presented his own ideas. His plan called for the following:

1. A supreme legislative department in two branches, one, the assembly, to be popularly elected for a three-year term, and the other, the senate, to be elected by electors and to serve for life.

2. A supreme executive, chosen by electors designated by the people, and serving for life. The executive to carry into execution those laws which he had approved and to negative those laws not approved by him. He was also to have the direction of war, when it had been authorized by the senate; to make treaties, with the advice and approbation of the senate; to appoint his own aides and to nominate all other officers, subject to senatorial approval.

3. A supreme judicial authority, its members serving for life.

4. All officers subject to impeachment.

5. The states to be entirely subservient to the national government—their governors being appointed by the national executive and their laws subject to the central authority's approval.

Hamilton foresaw a government by demagogs unless something could be done to "tone up" the Virginia plan, "as high as possible." He thought that if the weak New Jersey plan prevailed, the national representatives would be men who would not receive more than $3 a day from the government and who would be overpaid at that rate.

Foreseeing the extent of territory and the divergent interests to be embraced in the new government, he expressed alarm at the outlook. "Consider," he said, "what such a state as Virginia will be in a few years, a few compared with the life of nations. How strongly will it feel its importance and self-sufficiency! For solution he looked to an adaptation of the British system, which he regarded as the only government in the world "which unites public strength with individual security."

The chief effect of his address was to strengthen the national sentiment and to weaken that of the federationists. Hamilton, realizing that his ideas could not prevail, took little part thereafter in the convention, retiring to New York and only returning to sign the document as finally agreed upon by the delegates. It even seems that he deliberately made his demands more reactionary than he himself felt to be desirable, in order to offset the weak government arguments of certain elements in the gathering. His was a case of overstatement as a prelude to compromise. The proof of this is in his strenuous and decisive efforts in behalf of the constitution a few months later, when it was up for ratification by the New York convention.

Charles Pinckney made a vigorous reply to Hamilton's British plan, and in so doing placed on record a remarkable presentation of the point of view of the Virginia and South Carolina leaders of the most conservative type. His address also contained a searching analysis of the British system.

"A governmental system," he said, "must be suited to the habits and genius of the people it is to govern, and must grow out of them. The people of the United States may be divided into three groups, professional men, commercial men and the landed interests—the last named of whom, the owners and cultivators of the soil, are and ought ever to be the governing spring in the system. . . . These three groups, however distinct in their pursuits, are individually equal in the political scale, and may be easily proved to have but one interest.

"For a people thus circumstanced are we to form a government, and the question is, What sort of a government? Will it be the British government? No. Why? Because Great Britain contains three orders of people, distinct in their situations, their possessions and their principles. Each must be represented by itself, or the sign of itself. This accidental mixture has certainly formed in England a government admirably balanced. But the United States contains but one order that can be assimilated to the British nation, the commons. Why, then, attempt to form a government of three branches so constituted that two of them will have nothing to represent? Why shall we try and set up an hereditary executive and senate, merely because the king and lords of England are so? We must suit our government to the people it is to direct. These, I believe, are as active, intelligent and susceptible of good government as any people in the world."

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON
BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 5.—(NANA)—If Paramount wanted adequate revenge on Ruth Chatterton for going over to Warner Brothers, they have it in "Unfaithful," the John Van Druten entertainment in which she makes her most recent appearance.

John Van Druten turns "The Green Hat" inside out and doesn't do very much with the lining. It's another tale of a girl who does wrong by herself to safeguard the mythical nobility of her husband. The husband is a mean old thing who takes the Isotta Fraschini and leaves his wife nothing but the Mercedes to drive out in. Just a nassy man. He says "Hel—lo!" when he loses his cigarette case. When his wife finds it he says "Hel—lo!" again. He falls back on this expression once more when he loses his wife. And, at a conservative estimate, this brilliant expletive dots the dialogue from time to time at five-minute intervals.

From the very first shot when we learn that "Old Ronny has married at last" we know it's going to be devilishly British to the very end and we are not disappointed. Despite the fact that we are told this offering is "Ruth Chatterton in 'Unfaithful' with Paul Lukas," we find it is the husband w is unfaithful with Juliette Compton. And, because Juliette Compton is married to the heroine's brother, there is nothing to do about it but go to the devil a la Van Druten for the other six reels.

Despite the fact that this story forces Ruth Chatterton to begin her career of disillusioned profligacy by ordering one cocktail and downing it were coming together to fetch her from the arms of her artist-lover. At this last stage we began to see the seams in the lining of the "Green Hat."

Ruth Chatterton's sincerity and ability in the emotional scenes, the excellence of Paul Lukas and the very fine acting of Paul Cavanaugh were the mitigating factors. Juliette Compton, as the deep-eyed villainess, acted the part well enough but her clothes made her look like Beatrice condemned to an age-long hunt for Dante instead of a very modern exponent of very modern vice.

BOROUGH TO PUSH TAX DODGER DRIVE

Mayor Key Approves Addition of Four Delinquent Seekers to Force.

While a special committee of borough officials study a proposal to substitute an income tax for the present ad valorem system, the drive against tax delinquents will be pressed with renewed vigor and augmented forces, it was assured Thursday when Mayor James L. Key approved council papers providing for both.

Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, is author of the revised tax plan, and under the council resolution Mayor Key will head the committee. Other committee members are: Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of the finance committee; Councilman Claude L. Barnwell, chairman of the tax committee; B. Graham West, city comptroller, and one of the three tax assessors to be selected by the other four members of the committee.

The drive against tax dodgers will be carried on by four new policemen who will augment the four now in that service. Mr. Key approved a measure providing salaries for eight supernumeraries to take the places of those assigned to the tax campaign. Authorities hope to raise a minimum of $500,000 through the drive.

Mayor Key also approved all other council measures sent to him from Monday's sessions of council and the aldermanic board.

EMORY DOCTORS TO HEAD ALL GRADY UNITS

institution, in connection with the white unit, were Frank Eskridge, T. C. Davison and Garnett Quillian.

Instructional service in the white unit would be assured through placing of one of the Emory professors on each of the various services.

Establishment of the central executive committee composed of representatives from the white, negro units and the Albert Steiner clinic would assure more co-operation between the various branches and would react to stamp out politics among doctors, which in the past has been one of the most serious problems confronting governing boards.

Changes in supply purchases and equipment will be based on a theory of Dr. Caldwell, it is said, that annual contracts would save large sums of money and to a great extent eliminate emergency purchases, which have been found to be expensive.

Fulton Situation.

Mayor James L. Key has insisted that Fulton county pay half the cost of operation and maintenance of the institution, which would amount to nearly $300,000 a year. Members of the commission have expressed a willingness to co-operate as far as possible, but have added that the financial condition of the county would prohibit any such contributions at this time.

Concentration of receiving of patients, X-ray equipment and other facilities at Grady as far as is feasible while yet segregating the races will be among other recommendations of the Caldwell report and the committee is expected to do everything possible to effect this and thus eliminate as far as is practicable duplication of effort.

Mr. Johnston, for nearly 13 years superintendent, resigned from Grady of his own free will, in order that the institution might have a reign of peace for the best interests of Atlantans.

Had Mayson Ruling.

He had a ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson to the effect that he held a contract on the basis of his former election for a four-year term and that the only way he could be fired from his position would be to place him on trial and convict him of some offense or of incompetency.

That ruling was obtained by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, but despite this he elected to quit, scoring his political foes with the statement that "political factions who could never dominate the conduct of the hospital under my management will continue their attacks" so long as he was at the helm.

Mr. Dobbs declared Thursday that no one had yet been considered for Mr. Johnston's post, nor had a successor been selected to take Mr. Lewis' position. Johnston quit, effective July 1, while Lewis relinquished his position, effective April 1.

"These are matters which we will consider at the proper time," he stated. "We will attempt, of course, to secure the ideal, a good medical man and a good business man to succeed Mr. Johnston. That will be a hard job."

Johnston Letter.

Text of Mr. Johnston's letter of resignation follows:

March 2, 1931.

Hon. James L. Key, Mayor,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir: I have served the city of Atlanta for twelve years as superintendent of Grady hospital, during which period I have had the support and confidence of most of the municipal officials with whom the duties of my position brought me in contact.

In my purpose to discharge my duties honestly and fearlessly it was inevitable that friction would occasionally result from disappointed hopes or frustrated ambitions of those whose personal interest was paramount.

Periodical investigations of Grady hospital and its administration, invariably refuted the charges made, from time to time, against practically every department of the institution, but malevolence is unabating, and these renewed attacks upon the administration have done much to hamper the usefulness of the institution.

Under these circumstances, I am convinced that political factions who could never dominate the conduct of the hospital, under my management, will continue their relentless attacks as long as my hand is at the helm.

In the hope that the severance of my relations with Grady hospital, whose interests I hold above my own, will bring about a cessation of the political plots which have so seriously impaired the efficiency of the institution, I respectfully submit this, my resignation as superintendent, to take effect on July 1, 1931.

With grateful appreciation of the co-operation you have always extended, I beg to remain,

Sincerely your friend,
STEVE R. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

It Isn't Stealing To Take What Your Pal Would Gladly Give
By Robert Quillen

A well-known publicist, wishing to reveal the hopeless depravity of the younger generation, tells the story of a spoiled and prodigal youth who signed his father's name on a check and thus escaped an embarrassing situation by sacrificing his honor and shaming his illustrious family.

The young hellion—he was not yet twenty—had ventured abroad after nightfall in one of his father's cars; had picked up others of his age and kind, both male and female, and shortly after midnight, being then in the midst of a sleeping village many miles from home, had run into and damaged another car driven by an ancient villager who loved a dollar and recognized opportunity when he saw it.

The young people had not been drinking, but they had been noisy. And when a policeman and other witnesses appeared, as though by magic, it quickly became evident that the young man and his guests would finish the night in jail and subsequently endure much unpleasant publicity unless money could be found to placate the law and satisfy the noisy demands of the old fellow whose fenders were crumpled.

A hasty inventory and pooling of resources squared matters with the policeman, but there remained the clamor for damages and the threat of attachment and suit. In desperation the young man offered a check in settlement.

It did not occur to him to sign his own name. That would have been a trick. He signed a name that was potent, being careful to explain that it was his father's. And thus he delivered himself into the hands of his enemy.

That was the sin that revealed his hopeless depravity. He was a forger! Without permission or authority he had pledged a fraction of his father's millions.

Next morning, in company with a fellow culprit, he entered his father's office to confess. He was uneasy and repentant, for he had damaged a new car and wasted money; but he felt guilty of nothing more.

The father—so the outraged publicist tells us—was shocked to his marrow. His son a forger! A criminal in the family! A shame he could never outlive or forget!

Well, forgery is a serious crime. And $200 is a lot of money—to some people. But is $200 worth more than a son?

This father was ashamed of his son, but the son was ashamed of his father, also. He said to himself: "I thought he would stand by me. I depended on him, and now he shames me before my friends. He thinks more of money than he does of me. Now all the fellows will know the kind of father I have."

The moral, as you see, is somewhat obscure.

Worthless sons have ruined their fathers by means of forgery. But a decent boy is not depraved merely because he expects his dad to stand by him in an emergency.

transaction, a second which alleges that he received $2,500 from Samuel Evins, attorney for the Atlantic Steel Company, for excluding the company's property from a proposed annexation ordinance, and the third which alleges that he obtained $500 from Marvin C. Roane for having a sidewalk restored in front of Roane's East Peachtree street and Porter place property.

The prosecution, headed by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard, completed presentation of its direct testimony on the Spence-Brady transaction and put before the jury the testimony of Mr. Evins, who admitted paying the $2,500 to Taylor but insisted that the city clerk was employed as a lobbyist and not in his official capacity as an employe of the city government.

The testimony of Spence and Cope, heard immediately after the jury was completed at the morning session proved to be the high light of the day's proceedings.

Spence caused a mild sensation in court when he testified that Cope, a well known civic leader, had been introduced to him as "Thompson" as did Mr. Neely later in the session when he testified as to the entire transaction being a "holdup" to which the bond commission submitted as a matter of good business.

Mr. Neely was called to tell of being approached by Taylor who sought to introduce Spence and pave the way for a settlement of the Brady estate claim.

"Spence had filed on behalf of the Brady estate a claim against the city in federal court and though it had been dismissed by Judge Sibley he had taken an appeal and threatened to hold up the sale of bonds totalling $8,000,000 voted for the viaducts, schools and other purposes," Mr. Neely said. "Bonds were selling at an excellent premium and because of the litigation we could not dispose of them. Moreover the property owners in the viaduct area were suffering huge losses by the delay. We knew the Brady claim had no merit and that we eventually would win out in court, but we felt that we saved the citizens thousands of dollars by paying the claim and making Spence agree that he would not act for other property owners in further litigation."

The bond commission head followed James M. Mayson, borough counselor, to the stand. Mr. Mayson testified that as attorney for the municipality he had opposed payment of the claim, saying that he felt the court action would be won.

Just what stand the Taylor defense intends to take in the Spence matter was not indicated during Thursday's sessions when his attorneys, Reuben and Lowry Arnold, made little effort to bring out anything in cross-examination. In cross-examining Mr. Evins, Reuben Arnold indicated that the original contention of Taylor, made known in his defense on similar charges, will be stood on and that he will claim he was acting solely in his individual capacity when he interested himself in the Atlantic Steel Company matter.

Until Cope's name was brought out in the testimony the "Mr. Thompson" referred to by Spence in his direct examination added a new air of mystery to Taylor's activities, Spence testifying that he had been told by Taylor to pay the $9,000 contracted for for settling the Brady claim to "Thompson."

Amount Reduced.

After negotiating with Taylor and obtaining the settlement of the claim he was to pay $10,000 but the heirs to the estate claimed the fee was too high and it was agreed that only $9,000 would be paid, Spence testified.

"At the Candler building a day or so after I had received funds from the city's payment I met Taylor and another man whom Taylor introduced as Mr. Thompson but who I later learned was Channing Cope. Taylor instructed me to give him the money. I handed the package to Mr. Cope and heard no more about the deal."

Cope then was called to the stand. He testified that he had had malaria fever and that his memory was bad as to details of the deal with Taylor but he insisted that the money had disappeared from his desk and that he did not know whether or not Taylor got it.

"I had been a friend of Mr. Taylor's for more than 12 years," Cope said. "One day in 1928 I met him on the street and he asked me to do him a favor and of course I agreed. I then went with him to the Candler building, where we met a group of men. Mr. Taylor introduced me to Mr. Spence but I did not catch the name he introduced me under. He told Spence to pay me the money and said something about $14,000. Mr. Spence gave me a bundle but I did not count it and do not know if it was $9,000 or $14,000 or what it was."

Cope then said he took the money to his office and put it in the drawer of his desk.

Money Had Gone.

"A few minutes later I went into an outer office to meet an advertising salesman and when I returned the money was gone from the desk," Cope said.

On redirect examination by Mr. Boykin Cope testified that he had not made a report of his loss nor a complaint to anyone connected with the management of the office or the building.

Mr. Evins was the last witness called during the day. His testimony was brief, he merely stating that he had summoned Taylor to his office, employed him as a lobbyist and after the council had included in the annexation resolution exclusion of the steel company's property, summoned the clerk again and paid him the amount stipulated, $2,500.

In answer to Mr. Boykin's questions, the attorney insisted that the duties of Taylor were not discussed in the negotiations between them.

PERU GETS THIRD BOSS IN 5 DAYS

tween southern, northern and central Peru.

It was because of this Arequipa manifesto of last August that the Arequipans rebelled against Sanchez Cerro February 20. In it he declared that the country would be restored to normality and that a president would be chosen in free elections. When the elections were delayed and Sanchez Cerro himself became a candidate for president, unrest spread and the recent revolutions resulted. When the crowds heard of this coup they rushed to the Lima Country Club, where Sanchez Cerro has been staying for several days, and carried him in a jubilant march to the government house.

As soon as the deposed president arrived he began conferring with Colonel Jimenez while the throngs outside shouted "Viva Sanchez Cerro!" and urged him to come out for a speech.

About an hour after his arrival Sanchez Cerro left the palace and returned to the country club. There were no indications as to the result of his conference with Colonel Jimenez.

In an official bulletin Colonel Jimenez stated that he was organizing a temporary junta until a permanent government could be appointed and added that the purpose of the coup d'etat was to carry out the Arequipa manifesto—a return to constitutional government.

Colonel Roberto Lopez was commissioned to confer with northern and southern revolutionary troops in an effort to reach an agreement for a firm government.

VETERANS DEMAND UNIVERSAL DRAFT be fixed not only for the government but for the civil population.

"With a universal draft law," he said, "there will be no people in America who can profit in case we go to war. There will be no one in this country who will seek to draw this county into war in order that he may personally profit."

O'Neil said prices should be fixed during the war period on the level with prices before the war. If prices are controlled, he added, there will be no labor trouble.

Universal conscription in the next war was advocated by Thomas Kirby, legislative representative of the Disabled Veterans. Kirby said such a program would "make other nations slow to strike."

Paul C. Wolam, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said his organization "believes the economic burden of war should fall equally upon the shoulders of capital, industry and man power, and that each should be required to contribute his respective share.

At the opening of the session, Secretary of the War Department Hurley, chairman of the commission, announced it would attempt to learn "why in the government's effort to supply its needs in all past wars, opportunity has been presented to some individuals to reap extraordinary financial profit while others have been called upon to bear more than a proportionate share of the burdens."

PUBLIC ENEMIES TO BE DEPORTED

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—Three of Chicago's "public enemies" arrived o Ellis island today and will be deported as soon as possible, immigration officials said. The men are Frank Covelli, Guiseppe de Lantis and Nick Bernadini.

Covelli, alias Frank Kelly, is known as a counterfeiter of government bonds, labels and seals. De Lantis was proprietor of vice houses in Cicero, police said, and had been deported once before only to steal back through Canada. Bernadini was convicted of violating the Mann act and is said by police to have carried on an extensive white slave traffic between Chicago and Mexico City.

Last week 251 were deported in a campaign against aliens.

Indian Peace Terms Revealed As Britain Hails Agreement

Accord in Turbulent Possession Rests on 21 Points of Understanding, Wedgwood Benn Says.

BY WEBB MILLER.

LONDON, March 5.—(UP)—The house of commons cheered vociferously tonight when Captain William Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, reading the terms of the Gandhi-Irwin accord on peace in India, said that the government intended to release most political prisoners immediately.

Wedgwood Benn, amid a scene of remarkable enthusiasm, hailed the agreement ending the civil disobedience campaig against British rule in India as "inaugurating a new era of co-operation and good will."

Laborites lauded the accord, liberals paid tribute to its significance, and conservatives acknowledged the high importance of the move in Great Britain's efforts to pacify the peoples in its vast Indian empire.

Stanley Baldwin, conservative leader, however, refrained from further comment, but asked that the government grant the house the opportunity to debate the agreement at the soonest opportunity.

The terms of the agreement, issued by the India office, is a statement from Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, comprised 21 points. It was significantly stressed that the government's withdrawal of the ordinances against the nationalists' activities, such as boycotts and picketing, are not to be effective until the Indians see to it that the civil disobedience campaign is effectively discontinued.

Furthermore, on the salt tax question—vital to the Indian nationalists, who demanded the right to manufacture and sell salt—it was clearly explained that the government is not able to condone breaches of the original salt law, and owing to "financial conditions," it is unable to modify that act, which creates a government monopoly in India.

The compromise is found in the clause, however, that for "the sake of relief of the poor" the government will permit the inhabitants along the seashores to collect and sell salt in restricted districts.

The amnesty provisions also list a number of exceptions, including soldiers and police jailed during the campaign for joining the movement last spring and summer. Exceptions were noted to the agreement to return confiscated property to political prisoners.

NEW PEACE GOES INTO EFFECT IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, March 5. (UP)—The new peace in India went into effect today when the nationalist all-India congress dispatched telegrams to its branches throughout the country ordering them to call an immediate truce in the civil disobedience campaign.

Lord Irwin, the viceroy, reciprocated by announcing that the India government planned to order the release of some 25,000 political prisoners, followers of the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, independence leader. The order will be issued tomorrow.

The viceroy further declared that the ordinances regarding restrictions on the press and instigation and holding of unlawful association would be withdrawn.

The congress ordered discontinuance of the campaign against payments of the taxes.

These moves on both sides were in accordance with the agreement reached between Lord Irwin and Gandhi earlier this week, and approved by the government and the all-India congress.

Nevertheless, the provisional nature of the accord was stressed. The circular telegram dispatched by the congress leaders referred to it as the "provisional accord," and there was no doubt but that the termination of the campaign led by Gandhi was looked upon by the nationalists as purely a compromise born of present exigencies.

Gandhi himself declared to native and foreign correspondents that while the settlement would give "irresistible prestige" to the congress, the efforts so far were far from their goal.

Gandhi paid tribute to Lord Irwin, for his "patience and frankness," but in the same breath declared that the recent India round table conference in London had not carried India half way to its goal of independence. He appealed to the Indian princes, the nationalists and the radical anarchists all to unite in a common accord to permit him to attain that goal without violence. An atmosphere far from complete optimism, hence, prevailed in New Delhi, despite the general significance of the move.

The congress committee's telegram called on all other sectional committees to "act immediately and in accordance" with the Irwin-Gandhi accord, stressing that the "strict fulfilment of our obligations is essential for the advance of India toward swaraj (independence).

The boycotts on everything except liquor and foreign cloth were cancelled. The India government agreed to permit picketing under certain conditions.

The all-India congress will participate in the proposed second India round table conference as a result of the accord, and the headquarters was busy this evening with plans for the program to be followed.

The majority of the congress executives departed, however, during the day.

Gandhi and Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, influential woman poet and nationalist leader, remained to tackle the irritating Hindu-Moslem discord, which presents one of the major problems now among the peoples of India in their effort to present a united front in the continuance of their move toward a responsible government and ultimate independence.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts. This remedy has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sufferers.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of an operation until you have tried a bottle of HEM-ROID tablets. Jacobs' Pharmacy guarantees money back if they do not end Piles in any form.—(adv.)

'WOMAN WHO KNOWS' GORDON CLUE HUNTED

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—The World-Telegram says today that the police are looking for a "female Al Capone" who knows so much about the city's night life that she could give material assistance in solving the murder of Vivian Gordon, blackmailer and vice inquiry witness.

"Were this woman to appear and tell all she knows," the newspaper says, "she would wreck the homes and lives of numberless men in the judicial, political and business world of this and other cities, she knows them all intimately."

The best of male nocturnal revelers have been entertained in the upper west side establishment of the woman, the World-Telegram says, and an infallible system was worked out to keep her identity secret. She is reported now to be out of town "until everything blows over."

Variously known as "Molly A" and "Phyllis D" the woman specialized in entertaining out of town buyers in New York on business.

Gandhi in Interview Tells of Facts Leading to Pact With Lord Irwin

BY JAMES A. MILLS.
(Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Press.)

NEW DELHI, India, March 5.—(AP)—While he sipped hot goat's milk from a battered can brought from his recent prison, Mahatma Gandhi gave a notable interview today based on the results of his agreement with Lord Irwin.

He admitted the settlement had given much to the nationalists, but served notice anew on Britain that complete independence is the goal of India.

"That is the birthright of India as it is of every nation worthy of the name," he said. "If the all-India congress has shown a readiness to participate in the second round table conference, it is because it seeks to make federation an Indian responsibility, with such safeguards and reservations as will promote the real growth of the country along political, social, economic and moral lines.

"If the congress succeeds in making its position acceptable to the conference then I claim the fruits of that effort will complete independence, but I know the way to that goal is weary and there are many rocks and pitfalls. But if the congressmen undertake with confidence and courage the new tasks to which they have been assigned I have no misgivings about the result."

The mahatma appealed for aid from the princes of native Indian states and from moderate Indian political groups, Englishmen generally, the United States and other countries which value liberty.

"The Indian princes' acceptance of the idea of federation was certainly a surprise for me but if they will become equal partners in a federal India I venture to suggest that of their own free will they should advance toward the position which British India has for all these years been seeking to occupy.

"An undiluted autocracy, however benevolent it may be, and an almost undiluted democracy are an incompatible mixture, bound to result in explosion. It is therefore necessary, I think, for the princes not to assume an uncompromising attitude and refuse impatiently to listen to an appeal from or on behalf of the would-be partner. If they refuse any such appeal they will make the position of the congress party untenable and even most awkward."

FLORIDA CONVICT HELD AS NICARAGUA KILLER

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 5. (AP)—William O. Chesser, escaped Florida convict, has been captured in Nicaragua and is being held by military authorities who charge him with murder and banditry.

Florida officials were advised today that Chesser will be deported in irons and will be delivered to New Orleans if the state wishes to claim him there. He is now in jail at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.

AMERICAN PUBLISHER SENTENCED IN PARIS

PARIS, March 5.—(AP)—Sime Silvermann, owner and publisher of the American theatrical journal, Variety, failing to appear in a Paris appeal court today had the sentence of a lower court of 50,000 francs damages (about $2,000) and a year's imprisonment confirmed. He previously had been convicted of a charge of libelling the French actor, Pierre Meyer.

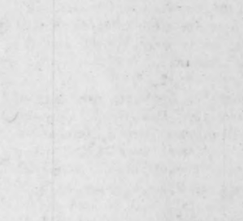

The article in Variety alleged that Meyer had paid the theatrical manager to allow him to appear with a famous star in order to gain a reputation.

Shell's reduced motor oil price

first step in broad economy program for motorists

SHELL MOTOR OIL, the highest quality lubricant any car can use, has been reduced from 30 cents to 25 cents per quart. Increased volume and lower refining costs have made possible this price reduction.

This is the first step in a new program of vital interest to every motorist. In the next few weeks Shell will make available to you other important economies affecting the cost of operating your car.

Protection your engine ought to have

Shell Motor Oil, now offered at 25 cents per quart, is premium grade oil. It is made from those fractions of the country's choicest crudes which have the highest possible lubrication value . . . Refined by the most modern methods . . .

From it you get the same ease in starting and smooth engine performance, the same protection against repair bills that you expect from the most costly motor oils.

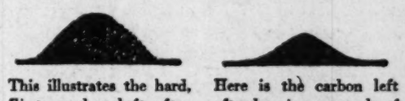

Shell Motor Oil has a low "pour point" for freezing weather, and high heat resistance for torrid summers. Under the toughest jobs your engine can give it, Shell Motor Oil can't break down or lose its penetrating power. It forms only 1/3 to 1/5 as much carbon as the most expensive oils you can buy—and it forms no hard carbon at all.

Try this money-saving plan

Pay more than 25 cents per quart for oil if you wish, pay less if you want to take the chance. But the advice of Shell technical engineers who have tried and tested every known brand of oil is this:

"Keep your car filled with the proper grade of Shell Motor Oil. Change it at the periods specified by the car manufacturer. You'll get all the fine engine-performance your car was built to give, at lowest possible cost, if you observe this simple care."

No Hard Carbon in Shell Motor Oil

This illustrates the hard, flinty carbon left after burning a sample of an expensive motor oil—otherwise a very satisfactory lubricant. The amount of carbon formed in a burning test on this oil was over 3 times that created by burning the same amount of Shell Motor Oil

Here is the carbon left after burning a sample of Shell Motor Oil. It is soft and sooty—unlikely to cake like cement on your cylinder walls in the manner of the gritty hard carbon formed by the oil at the left. And there is only 1/3 as much of it. Shell Motor Oil forms no hard carbon at all

TREASURY ISSUE IS TAKEN QUICKLY

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—A $1,400,000,000 issue of bonds and certificates of indebtedness for the treasury's spring financing program has been heavily oversubscribed.

Secretary Mellon announced tonight the books were closed yesterday afternoon and the amount had been about two and one-half times oversubscribed.

The $500,000,000 issue of 12-year 3 3-8 per cent bonds were oversubscribed more than four times.

Of the one-year 2 per cent issues of certificates of indebtedness, the treasury accepted about $600,000,000 of $1,223,000,000 subscriptions and of the six-month 1 1-2 per cent certificates of indebtedness the treasury received about $400,000,000 in subscriptions and accepted approximately $300,000,000.

The issues were announced by the treasury to provide for the maturing of $1,109,000,000 of five-year 3 1-2 per cent treasury notes and to provide funds for financing loans on the veterans' certificates.

The rates on the combined issue were the cheapest money the treasury has ever borrowed on a major financing issue.

BABIES' EYES OFFER SCIENTIFIC PUZZLE

ed, or was dug up before the public eye, in Chicago when brown-eyed George Adair Longley claimed to be the son of the late Albert W. Longley, who happened to be blue-eyed and incidentally left a million-dollar estate.

Since Longley contends he is the son of the deceased millionaire by his first wife, who also was blue-eyed, according to testimony offered by witnesses for the third wife of the millionaire, chief beneficiary of the will, Longley's suit for half the estate centers on his ability to disprove the Mendelian theory that blue-eyed parents cannot have brown-eyed children, it is contended.

In Atlanta many parents may feel the same anxiety displayed by hundreds of others who have written Longley begging him to prove Mendel's theories wrong. When consulted here, Dr. Robert C. Rhodes, professor of biology at Emory University, responded that "Mendel's laws are just as sure as the laws of gravitation."

This statement by the Atlanta professor might be viewed as cause for further consternation on the part of parents and children affected by the theories. However, Dr. Rhodes relieves the situation when he adds that, the Mendelian theory is involved in strictly speaking, he does not think the Chicago court case.

"I do not think the case will prove anything either way," Dr. Rhodes said of the Longley suit. "They are not attacking the Mendelian laws, which are as sure as those of gravitation. The real question in the Chicago case seems to be whether the parents had true blue eyes or merely apparent blue eyes, sometimes called green or gray. Even if they did have true blue eyes, there is the possibility of a son with brown eyes through the manifestation of mutation. This, however, is rare, possibly one case occurring in ten thousand."

All of which means that the great danger facing blue-eyed parents still remains a threatening one, regardless of what the outcome of the Longley suit may be. For the layman to understand the working of the Mendelian theory requires a lot of explanation and still more faith.

Some of the explanation, as concerns blue and brown eyes, is given by Dr. Rhodes as follows: Blue eyes mean the absence of pigment, and this characteristic is recessive to the presence of pigment. That is, in this case, brown is a dominant characteristic. If one parent had brown eyes and the other blue, the progeny would display the dominant brown, blue being recessive to brown. The likelihood of both parents having been true blue-eyed when the child has brown eyes is excessively rare because of this principle of dominant and recessive characteristics. However, that brings up more talk and more ancestors.

industrializing the present farm at Milledgeville, or, third, turning the convicts over to the highway department.

Representative Taylor, of Richmond, and others introduced in the house a resolution directing the governor to pay any funds now available, "or as soon as they become available," $250,000 to the state hospital at Milledgeville, $100,000 to the state sanitarium at Alto and $50,000 to the schools for mental defectives at Gracewood. The resolution emphasized the need of immediate relief at these institutions and authorized priority of these payments over all other appropriations. The amounts specified, under the terms of the resolution, would be charged off against the unpaid appropriations for the past three years.

Colonel Tate's appeal for support to the Western & Atlantic bill, plus another message clarifying statements attributed to him on the floor by opponents of the discount bill, was the major new development in the third day of senate debate. It was followed in the afternoon by the speech and amendment of Senator Felix Williams, who, while listed as an opponent to discounting the rentals, proposed that they be sold for five years and that the assembly pass the Harvey Kennedy bill placing a tax on public utilities. He contended the five-year rental sale now would relieve the immediate emergency at the eleemosynary institutions and that the Kennedy bill would produce as much revenue as another five-year sale of rentals.

The Tate telegram, sent to Senator Sam Matthews, read:

"If you can see your way clear support the bill to sell rentals of the state road, I feel it is the easiest way out of our troubles now."

In answering charges that he had said the highway board could spend only $15,000,000 a year, Colonel Tate also wired Senator Matthews:

Statement Clarified.

"My statement made as to $15,000,000 being enough to complete the then mileage in a period of years had reference to construction and did not have reference to maintenance. Fifteen millions annually should be spent on highway construction and you may so quote me."

With Senator Pitner, heretofore counted against the bill, about to take the floor in its behalf, the senate agreed to adjourn until today after it had adopted a resolution to adjourn over Saturday and defeating another offered by Senator Zellars proposing that the Saturday adjournment be without pay.

Little new ground was covered in the debate, other than the Tate messages and the Williams amendment. Senator Kidd, opposed to the bill, Senator Emmett Williams, for it, and Senator Ford, against, consumed the morning session.

Senator Vaughn, an advocate, and Senator Felix Williams consumed the afternoon session. Ten more senators are scheduled to speak but a vote before Tuesday appeared improbable as the fifteenth speaker concluded.

Commission Views.

While officials of the prison commission said they would prefer that the senate bill, which temporarily turns over convicts to the highway department, be passed as an emergency measure, they announced Thursday that as a permanent move they favored the purchase of a new state farm in southwest Georgia. The committee substitute, now under debate in the house, authorizes a commission to buy a farm to cost not more than $200,000.

Approval of the house bill has also been given members by Captain J. W. Barnett, chairman of the state highway board. Officials of the board had opposed the original senate bill, requiring the department to work convicts, because of its conflict with regulations for the use of federal aid money in road building.

A third substitute for the senate bill is one by Representative Hubbard apportioning the able bodied convicts of the state among the counties that desire to use them on highways and further providing that the highway board make contracts with counties for roads where convicts might be used.

FIVE CONFESS HOLDUP SERIES

four men, Chief Poole said he assigned two more detectives to the case, the result being the arrests of the six.

"Some of these men we have had for several days," Chief Poole said. "We have been questioning them all closely and did not feel safe in revealing that they were held until we had them all."

The chief indicated that four or five more youths may be involved but would make no statement concerning this angle.

Spratlin, according to the chief, is the only one of the six who has not admitted participation in at least two robberies. He and the others, save Moore and Munro, are being held without bond at police headquarters while the two jailed by the county police are in their custody and are booked at the Fulton tower. Bond for the pair Thursday night was set at $5,000 each, which they have not been able to raise.

Loot Unknown.

Chief Poole said there was "no telling" how much loot the gang obtained, though he announced that a number of watches and other valuables had been recovered from some of them.

"We intend to take written statements from all of the men tomorrow," the chief said. "Then we are going to ask all of the bandit victims of the last three months to come down here and view them. As near as we can find they have been operating since early in December but it may be that they were active even before that."

In announcing the arrests, Chief Poole warmly praised the work of the four members of his staff for their efforts and also lauded Wilson and Vinson.

"The men working on the case were untiring in their efforts and right now have gone 40 hours without sleep," the chief said. "We are especially gratified with the co-operation and assistance given by Wilson and Vinson. Without their help we might not have one of these six men now."

FINDING LOST JEWELS GAINS $5,000 REWARD

NEWARK, N. J., March 5.—(AP)—A $5,000 reward for the return of $101,555 worth of jewels which Mrs. Edgar F. Luckenbach, of Sands Point, Long Island, lost in New York, has been given to Goodwin Jarvis, 24-year-old plumber's helper, and his brother, Martin, of New York, who found them in a taxicab.

The money was turned over to the brothers by a representative of the company which had insured the jewels. Joseph L. Smith, prosecutor, brought about the return of the jewels and payment of the reward after establishing the truth of the youths' story.

RAILROADS PLANNING FREIGHT RATE CUTS

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—In an effort by the railroads to regain some of the traffic lost to water and highway transportation systems in recent years, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced today that lower freight charges on automobiles and trucks would be put into effect early in April. The lower freight rates, the announcement said, would become effective in what is known in railroad circles as "the official territory"—east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river.

J. S. Marvin, traffic expert of the chamber, said similar action probably will be taken by carriers serving automobile factories or assembly plants in other sections of the country.

NEW REMEDY STOPPED MY COUGH WHEN NOTHING ELSE WOULD

"The Best Medicine That I Ever Saw—Nothing Else Helped Me," Says Mr. Duling.

"I had one of those real colds and the cough that went along with it kept myself and the whole family awake nights. It was one of those hacking coughs that stick to you week after week and wear you out. I used different kinds of Cough Syrups but when I bought a bottle of Lin-O-Nine I 'hit the nail right on the head.' It's the best cough medicine I ever saw and I can guarantee it to do just what the Kerr Chemical Co. says it will do," writes T. P. Duling, well known farmer of Elk Garden, W. Va.

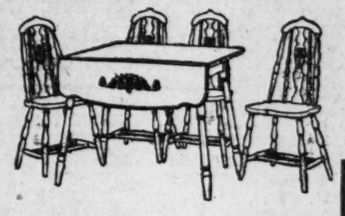

Men and women from Texas to Maine say the same thing. Anybody may easily get the same complete and lasting results so it is foolish to risk dangerous coughs and colds this time of year.

Lin-O-Nine was originated by a doctor up in New England where fishermen, farmers, and everybody suffers a great deal with winter colds and accompanying coughs, irritations, chest soreness, phlegm, mucous, headaches and catarrhal symptoms. Today it is found in the far North woods and rapidly is spreading everywhere. It is so pure and wholesome one may feed it to a baby and so pleasant it agrees with the weakened stomachs of the very old and invalids. Doctors endorse it because the formula is on every bottle and it contains not one drop of alcohol, dope or coal tar derivatives. It is sold by druggists or may be obtained by mail in 50c and $1 size bottles on positive guarantee of complete relief or money back. It contains Flaxseed, Oil, Eucalyptus, Betula, Cassia, Irish Moss, Glycerine, etc. A nice, snow-white, creamy emulsion flavored with wintergreen for the kiddies' sake—you'll like it, too, and results are quick. GEORGIA'S ILLS HIT BY ANDERSON

Macon Editor Links Farm Poverty With Social Problems in Speech.

ATHENS, Ga., March 5.—Social delinquency was described today by W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph and Macon News, as a disease of poverty.

Speaking at the Georgia conference on social work, Mr. Anderson linked the state's poverty-stricken agriculture with its social problems. He said he approved social welfare work, but added that "we must get down to fundamentals and find the cause of this disease . . . We should be taking preventive measures instead of relying solely on correctiveness."

During the morning session, led by Miss Jane Van De Vrede, secretary of the Georgia State Nurses' Association; Miss Ernestine McGill, of Atlanta, conducted a discussion on "The Community Worker." The speakers included Mrs. Leila R. Mize, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, and Miss Helen Bond, of Savannah.

Miss McGill told of the necessity of the social worker knowing the community in which she works. Mrs. Mize explained the necessity of home demonstration agents, having technical knowledge and experience as well as physical and leadership abilities. Miss Bond stressed the necessity of health for making happier and more successful lives.

Social progress depends on child welfare, Dr. Ernest R. Groves, of the University of North Carolina, said in his talk before the delegates. "The test of every society," he continued, "is its treatment of the child."

"Georgia's Children" was the topic of discussion at the afternoon session of the conference. There was an attendance of 600 persons. Dr. G. Y. Moore, chairman of the Georgia Child Health and Protection Council, which met as a special session, presided. Practically all addresses of the session were devoted to various phases of the White House conference on child health and protection held recently. Among those on the program were Dr. H. E. Banard, director of the White House conference; Governor L. G. Hardman; Dr. W. A. Mulherin, of the University Medical College, Augusta; Dr. G. Y. Moore, M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools; James P. Faulkner, head of the state welfare department; Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, of the state department of health; and Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools.

"The work of the White House conference is just beginning, that of interpreting the facts which have been gathered, and that of helping the child of today and tomorrow," Dr. Barnard said.

Dr. Barnard outlined the history and purpose of the White House conference, and asserted "it expects every state, county, city and district to follow with local conferences in order to disseminate all the knowledge on child welfare which has been gathered by the various committees."

Sutton Commends Work.

Dr. Willis Sutton spoke highly of the child welfare work which began with the White House conference, saying that it was not only a school affair but one of the entire community, with each church, school, welfare workers, other agencies, and especially the home.

"The facts gathered by the conference should be used as a 'measuring rod' in evry county and city in the United States if we are to benefit from the Knowledge," said Dr. Sutton.

"We've got to change our theology of thinking that God brings sickness upon us and our friends. We don't have to get sick to die. The attitude of many people, especially among children, is that they have got to be sick during some time of their life."

Outlining a program of health and protection for children, Dr. Sutton said, "There should be three considerations, namely, physical examination and inspection before school age, and remedial and preventative measures.

"To put over a real program of this kind, there must be co-operation with professional men, such as teachers and dentists, social service workers, such as the Red Cross and public health, and administraive groups, such as school superintendents, those who tell the teachers what to do, and most of all, the interest of the child," concluded Dr. Sutton.

Speaking of the application of the White House suggestions to Georgia, Dr. W. A. Mulherin, chairman of the section on medical service of the state council, said that we should ask ourselves the questions which President Hoover investigated, as follows: "What is the present status of child health and protection in the United States; what are the present activities, and what is being done along this line? What ought to be done, and how is the best way to do it?"

"There are 10,000,000 defective children in the 45,000,000 in the United States, according to the findings of the White House conference, and many of these could be prevented or corrected," Dr. Mulherin told the conference. He added that this country has a higher percentage of deaths of mothers than any other country, one-half of which could be prevented.

Duggan Speaks.

Dr. M. L. Duggan told of the work which the department of education has been doing along the line of educational training.

He said that efforts of the department, though handicapped for lack of funds, has persistently worked for the proper education of every child.

Dr. J. O. P. Bowdoin, telling of the work which the state department of health was carrying on, said: "Georgia is indeed fortunate in her organization for health; every county has a county board of health, with full power to administer the necessary rules and regulations."

Governor Hardman said that as far as he knew there was no better equipped department of health in any than Georgia for the carrying on of child welfare work. He also said that "health should come before education."

James P. Faulkner, state director of welfare work, told of the work now being carried on in the state in spite of the lack of proper funds.

An inspection of the nursery school on the campus of Georgia State College of Agriculture was made after the adjournment.

PURCELL IS SPEAKER IN WAYCROSS CHURCH

"A man finds time to do those things he wants to do and even though life goes at a rapid rate and under heavy pressure, the man of the church can find time for religious duties," he emphasized.

Judge Rules Breath Not Necessary To Life

LINCOLN, Neb., March 5.—(AP) County Judge Robin Reid's ruling that breath is not necessary to life meant $10,000 to Mrs. Pauline Stuertz today.

Whether or not a daughter, born to her May 23, 1930, ever lived was the issue. Nebraska law provides a widow who has not been the mother of a living child is entitled to only half of her husband's estate.

Physicians testified the child's heart beat 20 minutes but that the baby never breathed. The court ruled that heart action was sufficient to indicate life and that the baby was capable of inheriting half of the estate of her father, who died September 19, 1929, and of leaving her share to her mother.

The parents of Stuertz had contested the widow's right to the $20,000 estate. It consisted of a judgment she obtained against a construction firm in whose employ Stuertz was when he was fatally injured.

PERJURY CHARGED TO BANK OFFICIALS

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Albert H. Lohm, federal bank receiver, and I. H. Martin, representing the Atlanta federal reserve bank, were said Thursday night by Solicitor-General M. L. Gross, to be under indictment in Washington county court for perjury in connection with administration of affairs of the suspended First National bank here.

Solicitor-General Gross said true bills returned by the Washington county grand jury Thursday charged perjury in testimony given before a referee in bankruptcy regarding dating of a note of the Walker Lumber Company.

Lohm, receiver of the suspended bank at that time, and Martin were charged in the indictments, the solicitor said, with having falsely dated a Walker Lumber Company note to give it prior status in making settlement affecting the amount recoverable to the bank and the amount available to creditors of the lumber company.

Gross said he understood the note was for about $10,000. The solicitor said Lohm and Martin are expected to come in and make bond but that if they did not do so shortly warrants for their arrest would be served on them.

KOSTRER CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE

Companion Testifies German Tourist Shot During Quarrel.

CAIRO, Ga., March 5.—(AP)—Fred Kostrer, Newark, N. J., youth on trial here for the slaying of Rudolph R. Behrends, German tourist, made a statement to the jury Thursday pleading self-defense. He was the only witness for the defense.

The trial opened Thursday morning with Walter Dodson, 17, of Newark, Ohio, as the first witness for the state. He said Kostrer shot Behrends during a quarrel. In his previous statement to officers he said he was notifying them of the crime because his conscience hurt him.

The officers, a restaurant proprietor and Sheriff D. D. Perkins were the other state's witnesses. The officers told of Dodson's informing them, and Sheriff Perkins' testimony primarily was for the purpose of establishing a venue.

Kostrer's statement consumed 20 minutes' time. He told of being attracted to Behrend's automobile because the license tag was from his home state, New Jersey. He said as he, Dodson and Behrends rode along during the night he and Behrends took several drinks of whisky. He said Behrends became intoxicated and threatened to kill him if he did not agree to participate in disorderly conduct. Kostrer said he shot Behrends when the tourist advanced on him with an automobile crank.

Kostrer sobbed as he told the story and expressed regret at having to shoot the man with whom he had been given a ride.

Nearly a hundred veniremen were summoned for jury selection, which was not completed until early afternoon.

Court was recessed until Friday and the case is expected to be given the jury during the afternoon.

WITH eyes for only one man, she attracted all men! When the one man proved faithless, this human tempest jumped the traces of convention and hurled her gleaming youth against the world. Other women's husbands, other women's sweethearts, men who came on bended knee to swear eternal devotion . . . all were fair game to Millie. She made them pay! The mother has been in ill health for some time, and the shock of the Tuesday night incident aggravated her complaint, necessitating hospital treatment, attaches stated. Her daughter, according to a police report made by Patrolman Joe Wiley Tuesday night, drank a portion of acid while in a fit of despondency over unemployment. Both she and her mother are in serious condition, it was reported.

Commercial Students Present New Play

"The Belle of Bagdad," a new play featuring oriental costumes and atmosphere, was admirably presented Thursday night by the students of Commercial High school in the school auditorium. An almost capacity audience witnessed the presentation, which will be repeated at 8 o'clock tonight. Members of the cast are shown in the above picture. The play was directed by Mrs. Kate Rawls, faculty supervisor of dramatics.

4 MORE SHOWINGS FOR "TRADER HORN"

Only four more chances remain to see "Trader Horn" at the Erlanger theater. With matinees at 2:30 and night shows at 8:30, the de luxe presentation of this, most thrilling film production yet seen, will close after Saturday night.

The terrible and cruel spirit of savage Africa, expressed through its teeming wild life, both beast and human, has been perfectly caught, both in sight and sound, by the makers of this picture. With the story of "The White Goddess," "Little Peru" and Trader Horn himself as the framework, a picture that stirs its audiences to breathless participation like none other is to be seen in "Trader Horn."

Unbelievable scenes of death and terror follow one another as the story carries its characters deep into the heart of the superstition ridden continent. How the whites escape, while the throbbing drums of doom and the rushing hordes of cannibals seek to hold them back, is an incident that will never be forgotten by those fortunate enough to see it.

Seats on Sale Today For Butler Lecture

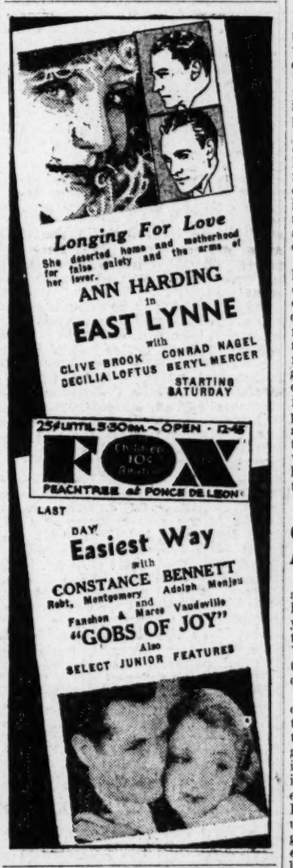

Seats go on sale at Cable Piano Company this morning for the lecture to be given next Tuesday night by Major General Smedley D. Butler at the Wesley Memorial auditorium.

General Butler, most famous officer of the United States marine corps, is to speak on "The Truth About a Lot of Things," and he is expected to "blow off the lid," concerning many social and crime problems of the day.

General Butler has served with the marine corps in practically every foreign service of the last few decades. He was in Mexico, in Haiti, Nicaragua, in China during the Boxer Rebellion and in France during the World War. He also spent a year, on special leave of absence granted by President Coolidge, as director of public safety in Philadelphia when he began a campaign to drive out protected racketeering and vice from that city that shocked old-time city authorities by its drastic fearlessness and the far-reaching effects of its ramifications into politics, graft and municipal corruption.

The general has recently declared that the only way to fight modern organized crookdom is by mobilizing a regular army and waging a war of extermination against all gangsters and racketeers. That he will add to this program during his Atlanta speech is regarded as probable and in any event his inside stories of outstanding world events, past and present, will be pungent and packed with pithy observation.

The lecture is to be given under the auspices of the Alkahest Lyceum and Russell Bridges, manager of that organization, on Thursday suggested that, with the heavy demand for seats already indicated, and the limited capacity of Wesley Hall, it would be advisable for patrons to make early reservations. A prior engagement of the city auditorium made it impossible to secure it for the general's lecture.

'End of World' To Be Compiled By City Editor

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—"The end of the World" is to be written the way the World would write it.

James Barrett, city editor of the paper which was sold to the Telegram, signed a contract today to compile the book for Harper & Brothers, the proceeds to go to an unemployment fund for World workers.

The publishers have established a city desk in their offices with Barrett presiding. Contributions will come by telephone, telegraph and letters, just as they did for the World, from John L. Heaton, F. P. A., Heywood Broun, Frank Sullivan, Elsie McCormick, Ben Franklin, Alex Schlosser and other stars who wrote for the paper.

Tonight former members of the staff in Hollywood are holding a wake and the story of the event "the End of the World," has been assigned to Dudley Nichols. Special features of the wake will be covered by Courtenay Terrett, Oliver H. P. Garrett, Quinn Martin and Louis Weitzenkorn. Another contributor will be Winfield R. Sheehan, president of Fox Film Corporation and once an Evening World police reporter.

Foch's Memoirs Praise Pershing

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—The story of the supreme command of the allied armies of the World War—the memoirs of Marshal Foch—will be published tomorrow.

It was Foch's wish that the memoirs be withheld from print until several years after his death. His family, however, in view of numerous recent controversies over the conduct of the war, decided no good purpose was to be served by withholding the work longer.

The Foch memoirs, painstakingly prepared with each page carefully revised five or six times, reveal the close accord of the generalissimo and the commander of the American forces, General Pershing. The book tells, too, of Clemenceau's effort to drive General Pershing out of his command in France. One letter by Clemenceau speaks of General Pershing's "invincible obstinacy" and declares that this "obstinacy" has succeeded in winning out against Marshal Foch's leadership.

"UNDER SUSPICION" SHOWN AT GRAND

"Under Suspicion," the current attraction at the Grand theater, is a story of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police, in which J. Harold Murray enacts the role of a former British war ace, with a very good tenor voice, who flees to the northwest in an effort to escape the shadow of suspicion, which has fallen upon him because of his alleged betrayal of important war secrets during his confinement in a German prison camp.

His superior officer in the mounted police, ignorant of his past, and his rival for the hand of Lois Moran, throws in his path a good many opportunities for displaying his heroism and disregard of danger; qualities scarcely in keeping with the cowardice he is supposed to have shown during the war.

The climax comes when the young hero, sent out alone on a desperate expedition, returns with his man, only to find that his rival has unearthed the ugly secret of his war record. In order not to make a scene the hero, English to the last, resigns from the service, and, in what is generally referred to as a smashing denouement, saves his future father-in-law (commander of the mounted police) from a raging forest fire, and admits that his past does not belong to him, but to a younger brother, whom, in big brother fashion, he had been shielding from disgrace. But that was only to be expected.

CONQUERING HORDE PLEASING WESTERN

If you liked "Thundering Herd" or any of the others similar that followed after the "Covered Wagon," you will be tickled to a pair of pink tears with Richard Arlen and Fay Wray in "The Conquering Horde" that opened at the Paramount Thursday.

The Conquering Horde is a nice combination of Texas long horn cattle, bad two-gun men, "Injuns" and the hard-riding hero who saves the girl's fortune and wins her love, all in spite of her own self. Fay Wray is not bad to look at as a ranch owner, big hat, horse and all that, while Richard Arlen demonstrates his usual excellent ability. The show is good and it is entertaining, but is no epic. The dialogue writer should learn some day that southerners do not use "you all" when the meaning is singular.

Incidentally, when the short subjects are being shown, it is an excellent idea to slide upstairs and wait for Jimmy Beers, Ann Howe and Hal Scoggins to entertain you with piano and song.

—RILEY McKOY.

Experience Taught Doctor This Fact

Actual medical practice taught a well-known doctor that to drive out rheumatic pain, the system must be cleansed of acid poisons. This led him to originate Prescription C-2223 which is designed to neutralize toxic acids in the joints and drive out poisonous waste matter from the system. For years this doctor prescribed C-2223 to his many patients suffering from rheumatism, gout, neuralgia and sciatica. And now you can get his exact prescription. At all prescription drug stores have on hand generous size bottles of prescription C-2223 which they will sell to you on an absolute money-back guarantee.

Get Rid of PIMPLES

Perhaps you have every reason to be discouraged after trying all sorts of high-priced salves and lotions which failed to bring help to your pimply skin.

One thing's certain—you never used Peterson's Ointment because Peterson's is the one sure method that won't fail to eradicate the worst, most obstinate case of blemished skin.

One application—your pimples and blackheads start to go—in a couple of days eruptions have healed, your face is remarkably cleared! Continued use gives you a complexion utterly free from any irritation—delicately smooth—clear.

Mary Metinko of Rankin, Pa., writes: "Ever since I can remember I have had pimples on my face but after I got a box of Peterson's Ointment I found that it works like magic. I recommend it to all my friends."

Ofttimes pimples entirely disappear in three days and one 35-cent box will prove it.—All drug stores.—(adv.)

U. S. Has Nine Divisions In Second Marne Battle But Still No Real Army

Pershing Now Sees Petain and He Agrees in Principle To Formation of U. S. Army. Pershing Anxious To Take Personal Command—St. Mihiel Sector Due for U. S.

CHAPTER LIV.

American participation in the second Marne offensive which began July 18, 1918, and turned the tide of war in favor of the Allies, was not limited to the operations of the first and second divisions. While this bitter contest was being waged for the possession of the crucial point near Soissons the troops around the rim of the salient had been steadily driving ahead.

The fourth division, (Cameron) less its artillery, fought at first with the French. The seventh brigade was attached to the second corps, French sixth army, and the forty-seventh infantry in reserve, and the thirty-ninth assigned to the French thirty-third division.

In the attack of July 18 this regiment cleaned up the wood in its front, captured Noroy, and extended the line to the south. On the 19th the regiment went forward about two and one-half miles on a front 1,000 yards north of the Ourcq. It was relieved the morning of the 20th and went to the reserve.

The eighth brigade was assigned to the French 164th division, the 59th regiment in reserve. In the attack of the 18th the fifty-eighth regiment assisted in the capture of Hautevesnes and Courchamps, took Chevillon and made further substantial gains. The fifty-ninth regiment was put in the front line during the night of July 18-19, relieving the fifty-eighth, and on the 19th, advancing with the division, gained two miles. On the 20th, with two battalions of the fifty-nint's in line, the advance was carried well to the east of Sommelans. The brigade was relieved from the front line July 21.

Coincident with these advances on the 18th, the first corps (Liggett), serving with the French sixth army and composed of our twenty-sixth division and the French 167th division, also became a part of the movement. The twenty-sixth division occupied the line it had taken over from the second division July 10. The plan for the July 18 offensive contemplated a deep penetration south of Soissons by the French tenth army, supported on the right by the French sixth army, extending the attack as far south as Bouresches.

The 52d brigade, 26th division, captured the villages of Torcy and Belleau, and one battalion reached the base of the dominating Hill 193. Elements of the brigade reached the railroad, but severe flank fire drove them to the starting point.

On the 19th the advance of the 26th was contingent upon the success of the French 167th division on its left, but that division failed to take its objectives and the 26th did not attack. On the 20th the 167th was held up again, exposing the left of the division to heavy flank fire and preventing more than a slight gain. Farther to the right the 26th succeeded in taking Gonetrie Farm, and got a foothold on Hill 190.

When the attack began on the 21st it was found that the Germans had withdrawn the night before and the 26th moved forward with little or no opposition until it reached the new German line at l'Hermitage-Epieds-Mont St. Pere, east of the Soissons-Chateau Thierry highway. On the 22d it captured Trugny and got a foothold in Epieds, but was forced by a strong German counter-attack to retire to Bretuil Wood. The 52d brigade was also driven back to its starting point.

The attack renewed on the 23d was successful, one regiment reaching the Epieds-Mont St. Pere road, but in the afternoon it was forced to retire. That night the 52d brigade was replaced by the 56th brigade, 28th division. When the latter launched its attack the morning of the 24th it was found that the enemy had withdrawn and he was not again encountered until the pursuers, including part of the 51st brigade, 26th division, reached Croix Rouge Farm.

26th Suffers 5,000 Casualties.

During its offensive action beginning with the 18th, the 26th division had progressed nearly eleven miles and had captured 250 prisoners and four pieces of artillery. Since its occupation of the sector July 10 it had suffered about 5,000 casualties. The division was relieved, together with the 56th brigade, 28th division, by the 84th brigade, 42d division, which took over the sector on the 25th. The 84th brigade, 42d division, replaced two French divisions which were pinched out by the shortening of the line. On the 27th the 42d division occupied the entire front of the first corps, about two miles in extent.

The enemy's defeat in front of the Twentieth corps (American first and second divisions and first Moroccan division) was the principal cause of the withdrawal of his armies, but he fought desperately from position to position, and his retirement was being skilfully conducted to save men and material from capture.

In the counter-offensive of July 18 no operations were ordered for French or American troops east of Chateau Thierry, leaving them an opportunity to readjust their lines. On the 20th, patrols from the third division discovered that the Germans had withdrawn across the Marne the night before, and the division at once advanced its line to the river. The night of July 20 the Germans further withdrew to the line Charteves-Ridge north of Mont St. Pere, connecting with their line of resistance in front of our First corps.

July 21 the Fifth brigade crossed the Marne in pursuit, capturing Mont St. Pere and driving machine guns out of Charteves. The Sixth brigade waited for the bridge to be completed at Mezy, and the morning of the 22d one regiment crossed the river and captured Jaulgonne. The Germans were contesting every step, and while the First battalion of this regiment reached Le Charmel it was compelled to retire by successive positions to Jaulgonne.

On the 26th, operations planned in co-operation with the French thirty-ninth and the American forty-second on its left were only partially successful. The forty-second captured the strongly held Croix Rouge farm, but the French thirty-ninth division could not advance. The leading battalions of the fifth brigade entered Le Charmel, but not being able to debouch from the town they were withdrawn after dark. During the night the hard-pressed Germans retired to the Ourcq, leaving machine guns behind to delay our advance.

July 27 the French thirty-ninth division took up the pursuit followed by the fifty-fifth brigade, twenty-eighth division, which relieved the French thirtieth that night at Courmont. The fifth brigade, third division, advanced on the right to protect this movement and occupied a line running southeast from Courmont through Billardelle. During the morning of the 28th the fifth brigade captured Roncheres, and the twenty-eighth division reached the Ourcq, but was unable to hold its gains north of the river. On the 29th the third division occupied an irregular line beyond Roncheres, but neither that unit nor the twenty-eighth division on its left was able to make material progress against the Bois des Grimpettes that day.

The third division was relieved by the thirty-second on the 30th, and retired south of the Marne. It had taken a decisive part in stopping the last German offensive and had advanced ten miles through difficult country stubbornly defended by the enemy. It had suffered casualties to the number of about 6,000 officers and men.

The forty-second division, as we have seen, had come from the French fourth army to the Marne salient and had relieved the twenty-sixth division in the first corps. In the advance that followed it had gallantly captured Croix Rouge farm on the 26th, and on the following day had cleared the Foret de Fere, captured Villers-sur-Fere and had reached the Ourcq. July 28 the forty-second established a line beyond the Ourcq, and on the 29th the fourth division, in support of the forty-second division captured Sergy, while the latter took Seringes-et-Nesles.

Hardest Fighting Along Ourcq.

The enemy made a determined stand along the Ourcq river, and some of the hardest fighting of the period occurred at this time. August 3, the fourth division relieved the forty-second. The third corps (Bullard) with the American twenty-eighth and thirty-second divisions, relieved the French thirty-eighth corps on the right of our first corps. Once established beyond the Ourcq, our two corps advanced rapidly toward the Vesle river, meeting with little opposition.

We had in all nine American divisions, equal to 18 French divisions, engaged in this second Battle of the Marne. This force, together with the staff, supply, medical troops and aviation, amounted to a total force of nearly 300,000 actively employed during that period. We suffered 65,000 casualties.

July 20, I visited the commanders of our units engaged and found all roads west of the salient greatly congested. No one who has not been an eye-witness to traffic conditions during the progress of a great modern battle can visualize the congestion that usually exists immediately behind the lines. One of the most difficult problems is to regulate circulation over the roads and keep them from becoming seriously blocked. This is especially the case at night, when vehicles travel without lights and when frequent halts are apt to occur through accidents of various sorts.

Going from there to the 28th division (Muir), farther to the east, I found that several companies of its 55th brigade, through some misinterpretation of instructions, had been assigned to French battalions and were serving in the front lines at the time of the attack on the 15th. The French gave way before the German assault, but our companies, which had not been told that the French were retiring, gallantly held their positions, and as a result found themselves surrounded and only fought their way to the rear under the greatest difficulties. This was another striking illustration of the danger of having our small units serve in Allied divisions.

Going on to the headquarters of the First Corps I reviewed the situation with General Liggett, and found his lines making satifactory progress. We went from there to the 26th Division (Edwards,) which, with the French divisions comprising this corps, was vigorously attacking the enemy, who was stubbornly fighting to cover his retirement.

While traveling northward through the forest of Villers-Cotterets it was almost impossible to make any headway, over the badly cut up road filled with columns moving in both directions. In the middle of the forest, at the main cross-roads, I met General Mangin, the Army Commander, trudging along on foot, followed by his automobile, which was working its way through the jam of troops, artillery, wagons, trucks and ambulances including some with wounded. Although we talked but a moment, it was long enough for him to speak in high praise of the brilliant dash of the American divisions under his command. In moving on toward the front we soon found ourselves at the command post of the 1st Division, sheltered in an underground quarry west of Couvres. The Chief of Staff, Colonel Campbell King, gave me a full account of the fighting and explained the division's position. Leaving a message of congratulations for Summerall, who was still somewhere on the battlefield, we proceeded on our journey.

Officers Elated By Our Showing.

Arriving later at Taillefontain, we located General Bullard, who, much to his regret and my own, had not been able to organize his Third Corps staff in time to take command of our 1st and 2d Divisions in this attack, but he was just as elated over their work as if he had commanded them himself. Enroute from there to the 2d Division, which had just been withdrawn from the line, we passed the Scottish 15th Division going toward the front to relieve our 1st.

At the headquarters of the 2d we saw General Harbord, who always wore his tin hat, and his chief of staff, General Preston Brown, both in fine spirits.

They could hardly find words to express their enthusiasm over the achievements of the division and I was happy to congratulate them on its splendid conduct. I recall saying to Harbord that even though the 1st and 2d divisions should never fire another shot, they had made themselves and their commanders immortal.

My diary notes the following:

"Paris, Sunday, July 21, 1918. Saw Petain this morning. He said that all French commanders were enthusiastic over American troops. Held conference with him about employment of other divisions and reached an agreement which we jointly presented to Foch this afternoon.

"This being Belgian national holiday, I telegraphed the greetings of the A. E. F. to His Majesty, the King, commanding the Belgian army.

"Chemical warfare service organization officially approved."

With every new demonstration of the efficiency of Americans in battle the French became louder in their praise, and it looked as though there would be no objection to the formation of an American army as soon as the various elements could be assembled.

In talking it over with General Petain, as noted in my diary, I proposed anew that we should now take positive steps to plan for a purely American sector, perhaps near Chateau Thierry, or at some other active part of the front, with a quiet sector of our own where we could send exhausted divisions from the battle line for rest and recuperation and where untrained divisions could go for preliminary line experience. Moreover, it was very important that a sector be chosen at once, in order to plan definitely the necessary installations. To all this he agreed in principle.

I told him I expected to take command of the American first army when organized, and that, while retaining entire independence as to plans and conduct of operations, it seemed best in the beginning to place our army on the same footing as the French armies to secure their full co-operation.

The practical effect of this would be that the French would handle many intricate questions concerning the civil population behind the lines, and would feel under obligations to provide French artillery, aviation, truck transportation and tanks, much of which we lacked, and which could be supplied and managed efficiently only by the most intimate co-ordination between the French and ourselves.

In the first appearance of an American army beside the Allied armies it was clearly my place to take personal command, which I was now in position to do, as our problems of supply were soon to be under efficient direction that would largely relieve me from the necessity of constant supervision. Furthermore, it accorded with my own personal desire from the purely military point of view.

Regarding the rest sector, we agreed that it could be on the southern side of the St. Mihiel salient for the present, both of us having in mind our previous plan to make this the active American front later. With the understanding that we should limit our conversation with General Foch and not go into details about the future, we went to see him at Bombon and laid the proposal before him. After some discussion and assurance from General Petain, he agreed to think the matter over and let me know.

Tomorrow: Allied Commanders show new spirit as they meet to plan great fall offensive.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

A DOCTOR'S Advice for Stubborn BOWELS

"DRINK at least six glasses of water daily — preferably before meals. Eat bulkier foods, such as vegetables, fruits and coarse breads. Use a mild laxative as needed."

That is Dr. Caldwell's advice to people with stubborn bowels. He specialized on the bowels; treated thousands for constipation and its ills. The prescription he used over and over has become the world's most popular laxative! "Syrup Pepsin," as it is now called, was tested by over 47 years of practice.

Today you can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore in America. It is always the same; made exactly according to the original prescription, from laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients. Nothing in it to harm even a baby. It does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. But it moves the bowels; it gets rid of all the souring waste which clogs the system and makes you headachy, gassy, bloated, weak, bilious. A doctor should know just what is best for the bowels. Syrup Pepsin is a famous doctor's choice of a safe, pleasant, effective laxative for men, women, older folks, and children.

Wales Reaches Chief Objective Of Long Journey

BUENOS AIRES, March 5.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales and his brother George reached the principal objective of their South American tour this afternoon when a flag-draped special train brought them into the Transcontinental Retiro station here from the El Palomar flying field.

An hour before, the princes, accompanied by an escort of 25 Argentine army planes, had landed at the El Palomar field from Mar Del Plata.

Thousands of persons who lined the decorated streets obtained only a fleeting glimpse of the princes who were whisked in speeding automobiles from the station to the residence of the British ambassador. Other crowds were packed along the route to the Casa Rosada where the royal party went almost immediately for an official visit to President Uriburu. Later the president returned the visit.

The Prince of Wales and his brother will have four days of entertainment here before returning to Mar Del Plata Sunday night. They will remain at the resort until time to come back to Buenos Aires to open the British trade exposition March 14. This exhibition was the main cause of the brothers' visit to the continent.

SCION OF WEALTH HELD AS ROBBER

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP)—Edward "Toddy" Dillion, 24, scion of a wealthy St. Louis family, was held to the grand jury today in bonds of $145,000 on five charges of robbery.

Dillon was arrested last week as he attended a theater with a young woman whose name was withheld. More than 40 victims of hold-ups have identified Dillon, police said, as the robber who took sums ranging from 90 cents to $15 from them.

His polished manners gained for Dillon entry in the homes of some of the city's socially elite, and because of his politeness, the police were at first reluctant to arrest him. When the flood of victims identified him as a robber, police said, Dillon confessed.

LEGGE FLAYS FARMERS WHO MAINTAIN ACREAGE

Farm Board Head Declares Southern Growers Seek 5-Cent Cotton.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—Referring to the failure of growers to cut acreage, Chairman Legge, of the farm board, said today the cotton farmer "is still trying to put the price down to 5 cents" and the wheat farmer will "quit growing wheat when it gets down to 25 cents."

When it comes to acreage reduction, he said, farmers are too willing "to let George do it."

Asked if he saw any immediate possibility for 5 cents cotton, Legge said "there is no question but if they raise as much this year as they have been, the price will be lower than anything they have seen yet."

He believed, however, there would be some reduction in cotton acreage this year, but "not as much as it ought to be."

Regarding wheat, while reduction this year will be small, the chairman still saw the possibility the acreage would be cut 20 per cent within two years.

Grove at Maddox Park To Honor Memory of Henry W. Grady

Memory of Henry W. Grady will be honored with a grove at the Robert F. Maddox park, in the fifth ward, under action of the parks committee of council Thursday afternoon.

The board also voted unanimously to resist any effort to lease or sell the Bobby Jones golf course on which Fulton county now is engaged in grading.

Alderman James E. Bowden, of the fifth ward, is author of the proposal to establish the Henry Grady grove at Maddox park, and at his request George I. Simons, general manager of parks, will select a stretch in the 77-ace tract to be dedicated for this purpose.

Members of Fulton county commission voted Wednesday to withdraw its forces from the Jones course unless it was assured that there is no intention of leasing the 110-acre tract to private interests or of selling it, and the board session Thursday afternoon was held primarily for the purpose of giving this assurance.

Councilman Homer Foster succeeded in obtaining unanimous recommendation of the parks committee requesting Charles A. Matthews, DeKalb county commissioner, to pave the road leading to and through Candler park.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

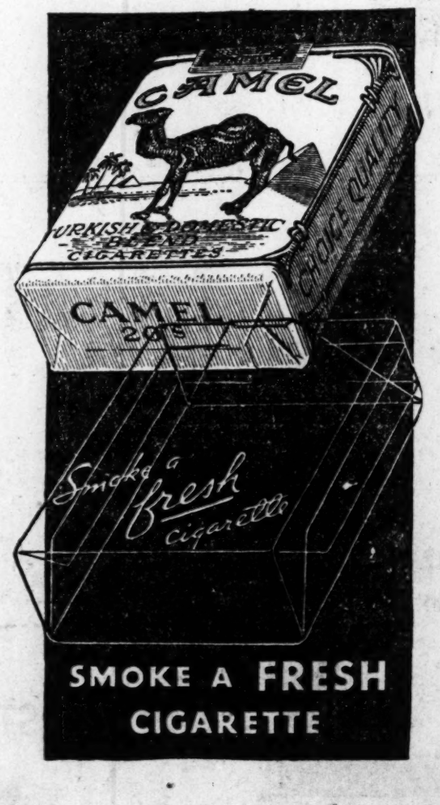

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

(1) Cheap tobaccos.

(2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.

(3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidor and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

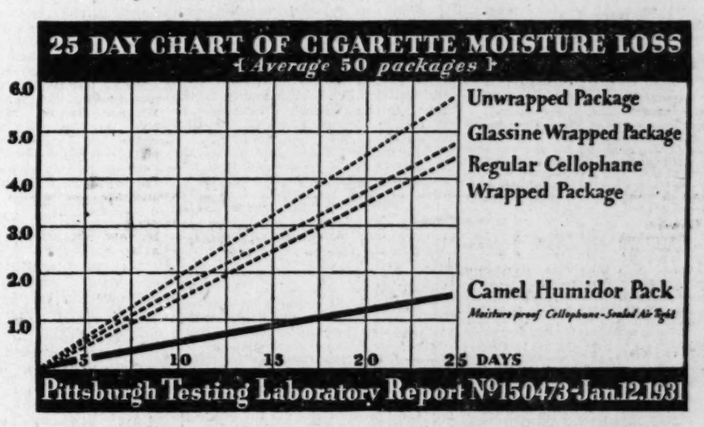

(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.

Receiving a warm welcome from their wide circle of Atlanta friends are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Mercer, of New London, Conn., who arrived Wednesday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Woodruff, who are also numbered among New England's most representative families. This quartet of interesting visitors, who are spending a fortnight at the Biltmore hotel, will be honor guests in the dinner party given at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Dean, cousins of Mrs. Mercer. As the guest of Mrs. George S. Forster at her home on Kennesaw avenue, Mrs. Edward E. Arriving tomorrow from Florida will be Mrs. Henry Jackson, of New York, and Mrs. George Smith, of Michigan, who will spend several days with Mrs. Robert F. Maddox at her home, Woodhaven, on Pace's Ferry road after which they will visit Mrs. James E. Hickey on Wesley road.

Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Smith are former Atlantans and have a wide circle of friends here who will extend them a cordial welcome. They have been sojourning in Florida for the past month after a cruise in the West Indies, being numbered among the prominent members of the personnel composing the passenger list of the palatial West Indies cruiser.

Honors Writer.

Literary department of the Civic Club of West End met Wednesday at the clubhouse to commemorate the life and works of Ernest Hartsock, and Mrs. E. A. Hartsock, mother of the brilliant young writer, was the guest of honor, being introduced by her friend, Mrs. Roger T. Lively. Before reading the poems she had selected from the three books published during his brief career, Mrs. Lively paid high tribute to the character and ability of the author. She stated that he was a finished musician, skilled alike in the use of the piano and pipe organ. "He was a true artist," said Mrs. Lively; "first the musician, his poems being simply the music in his soul expressed in words. His first poems, published at the early age of 22, were more the dreams of the adolescent boy striving to grasp the mystery of life, while the third book, published just before he passed away at the age of 27, expressed the triumph of his indomitable courage." One group of poems would display keen wit and humor, while others showed a gentle love and sympathy for mankind. His prize-winning poem, "Strange Splendor," was read as the climax of his life. Mr. Hartsock was born and grew to manhood in Atlanta, and Mrs. Edward Hardaway Smith gave an interesting account of his school days, which were closely followed by professorships in Tech and Oglethorpe, the latter being held at the time of his death last December.

As the meeting was the last of the year Mrs. W. L. Clarke, chairman, thanked members for their hearty support, and stated that through their co-operation the division had doubled during the year.

Miss Proe and Mr. Thackston Wed at Quiet Home Ceremony

Of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the south is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Lee Proe and Henry B. Thackston, which was quietly solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greer, on Brookridge drive, in Boulevard Park. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Major, of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church, before a group of relatives and took place in the living room before an altar of palms and calla lilies interspersed at artistic intervals by tall lighted tapers.

The bride wore a striking Vionnet model of blue chiffon combined with lace in the same tone. Her hat, a halo horsehair model, matched her gown and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Greer entertained informally at tea after which Mr. and Mrs. Thackston left for a motor trip to Florida. They will fly over to Havana from Miami for a few days' visit before returning to Atlanta to make their home at 737 Brookridge drive.

The bride has enjoyed wide popularity in Atlanta since coming here from Louisville, Ky., her former home and birthplace. Mr. Thackston is originally from Nashville, Tenn., but for a number of years has made his home in Atlanta at the Athletic club. He is an official of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company and like his bride he has a large number of friends throughout the south who will be interested in his marriage.

Out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Greer, of Newark, N. J.; Mrs. Frances Thackston, Miss Frances Thackston, Mrs. George Thackston, Mrs. S. S. Kerr, all of Nashville, Tenn., and H. H. Proe, of Louisville, Ky.

De Madariaga, League Leader, Will Lecture at Emory Tonight

This evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the Theology chapel at Emory University Salvador De Madariaga, former chief of the disarmament section, League of Nations, will deliver an address on "Co-operation versus Competition," under the auspices of the Student Lecture Association.

Economic rivalry among nations is often regarded as the principal incentive to war, as being in fact one form of war, and in much of his writing and public speaking, both here and abroad, Senor De Madariaga has dealt with economic causes of war and what lies behind the spirit of war, De Madariaga believes.

In a recent article Senor De Madariaga maintains that this importance of strictly economic factors, as a cause of war is probably much exaggerated. He thinks such a danger does exist, but the case is not unlike that which complicates disarmament matters by laying undue stress on the danger of armaments in themselves as causes of war. It is not by disarming that we are going to disarm, it is by organizing the world so that armaments may gradually come to be considered a useless nuisance.

There are, in the opinion of this authority, economic causes of war, but there needs to be further elucidation as to the meaning of the word "economic." If the prevailing impression is that economic factors are predominant in the drift toward war, the reason may be due to the fact that the deepest causes of war often take that form owing to the economic atmosphere in which we live nowadays—just as they took a religious form in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and a political form in the eighteenth.

The true cause of war lies in man's natural pugnacity and thirst for power and the spirit may incarnate in religion, in politics, in economics. It so happens that the tone of our life is economic and that is why most wars look like economic wars. It is obvious that the predominant factor in all this is man and the true cause of war lies in man's natural pugnacity and thirst for power. This pugnacity of man may manifest itself individually or collectively. Napoleon was an admirable case of individual pugnacity. Italian by race and heritage he chose France as a mother of armies to satisfy his war lust. There are many similar cases of men who in the absence of wars had to invent them to satisfy their cravings, and along with individual cases we find in history examples of national pugnacity.

The true up-to-date form of pugnacity in states, as in men, is economic. Generals and admirals have become mere bureaucrats climbing in peace up the ladder of salaries and gold braid to reach the pension bag at the end of their career. Our true Napoleons become captains of industry. Ever in harness, ever in danger. Nations do not trouble about territories, they conquer materials and markets.

The so-called economic causes of war result then from the use of economic terms and arguments by pugnacious men and nations, sometimes on their own, other times in mutual cooperation, whether conscious or subconscious.

BLIZZARD ADVANCES ON CENTRAL STATES

DENVER, March 5.—(AP)—A Rocky mountain blizzard which covered Colorado, Wyoming and Montana with a blanket of snow, blocking highways and hampering air travel, subsided somewhat tonight as the storm raced eastward into the central states.

Snow and below freezing temperatures were forecast tonight and tomorrow for parts of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, and Texas with a sharp drop predicted for Colorado and Wyoming. For Friday the weather bureau forecast fair and colder for most of the Rocky mountain states.

Driven by a high wind the storm lashed the entire state of Wyoming today, swept into Colorado and continued on south and southeast, reaching the northern and eastern part of New Mexico this afternoon.

Only snow flurries remained with a moderate wind in the Rocky mountain sector tonight with a cold wave dogging the heels of the storm. Evanston, Wyo., reported zero, while Sheridan had 16 above. Temperatures in Colorado were also falling tonight.

WICKERSHAM GROUP TAKES MONTH REST

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—A month's adjournment was taken today by the Wickersham commission, despite the possibility voiced by members that it may be moneyless before its gigantic survey of crime is completed.

The $250,000 appropriated the commission by congress—regardless of whether it is spent—will expire on July 1, necessitating the abandonment of the extensive commission offices and the release of its clerical force.

More than one member said today that unless the work is pushed to the limit it cannot be completed by that date. Ten reports have been planned, but none has been finally completed or published.

ADVERTISING AGENCY TO HONOR VISITORS

A. J. Kendrick Will Speak on Possibilities of Radio at Banquet.

Visitors in Atlanta today include three men prominent in New York advertising circles, here to attend a banquet to be given at the Capital City Club this evening by Gootschaldt-Humphrey, Inc., Atlanta advertising agency. A. J. Kendrick, who will be the honor guest at the meeting, which will assemble leading bankers and businessmen from all parts of the southeast, is president of Sound Studios of New York, Inc.; Louis H. Frohman is head of the New York advertising agency of the same name, and F. C. Bisbee is in charge of radio work for the transcription division of Electrical Research Products, Inc.

A. J. KENDRICK.

Much interest has been evidenced in Mr. Kendrick's address this evening, for it is to conclude with an actual demonstration of radio and its possibilities. To enable the audience to fully appreciate the place radio advertising holds in any well rounded campaign, special equipment has been shipped here by the Western Electric Company from its New York and Chicago plants. Radio Station WSB is cooperating in the demonstration and has laid a special wire from its studios to the banquet hall.

"The purpose of tonight's gathering," said Allan C. Gottschaldt, who is to preside as toastmaster, "is primarily educational. We have been fortunate in securing men as well versed in radio advertising procedure as Mr. Kendrick and Mr. Bisbee to be with us. And in Mr. Frohman, southeastern advertisers will have the privilege of hearing a man who ranks high nationally as an expert in merchandising methods. Radio is only one media; it is not a complete advertising campaign in itself by any means. But a better understanding of radio, its limitations and possibilities, is bound to help every advertiser's campaign."

Other addresses on this evening's program will be made by Major John S. Cohen, Robert F. Maddox and Winship Nunnally.

Chicago Is Betting Six to One Cermak Will Beat Thompson

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN.

CHICAGO, March 5.—(UP)—Chicago's mayoralty election still is a month away, but politicians, gangsters and police already have begun to worry about what may be momentous after-effects on the voting.

The latter include confident predictions of the murder of "Scarface Al" Capone, either the slaying or the jailing of most of his followers and likely as not the setting up of two or three rival beer barons to take his place.

The predictions all are based on the 6-to-1 betting that Anton J. Cermak, democrat, will beat Mayor William Hale Thompson, republican, who is running for re-election on April 7.

Cermak, immigrant from Bohemia, who rose to power and riches as a Cook county politician, is expected to shear away all of Capone's power, political and otherwise, if elected.

Police will be instructed, said Cermak, to arrest all Capone vice, gambling and liquor workers on sight while the city hall will be swept clean of all politicians favorable to Thompson and the somewhat indefinite political phrase, "Thompsonism."

Under the Thompson regime, Capone and the men believed to be his "higher-ups" have ruled Chicago's underworld with a spiked club. Death has been the penalty for those who have attempted to "muscle in" on the Capone "beer racket."

Should Cermak be elected and carry out his promised war against the Capone forces, the United Press was informed tonight. "Scarface Al's" billion dollar extra-legal business will be swarmed over by scores of plugulies who have been waiting years for just such an opportunity.

The minor racketeers, all hoping to become "big shots," will kill Capone the first opportunity they get, the information added, and then will settle down to killing each other for the millions of dollars involved yearly in the satisfying of illicit thirsts.

The police department is expected to do its utmost to handle the situation, to place gangsters in jail, to break up murder plots and eventually to subdue the machine gunners, the bombers, and the "putters on the spot."

"But there's too much money involved for the 'musclers' to give in to the police without a fight," said an authority close to the machinations of the beer runners, the 'alky cookers,' the panderers, the gambling house owners and the paid killers, known in hoodlumeese as the 'enforcers.'

"If Cermak is elected, Chicago can expect one sweet battle with the gangsters," the informant added, "before the underworld actually is cleaned up—if it ever is."

each occasion suggests a different salad and the right dressing mixed to suit the salad

No one dress is correct for all occasions. And no one salad dressing is suitable for all salad-flavors.
There are dressings for all tastes. Dressings as different as lemon is from honey, or honey from cheese. So, mix the dressing that best suits the salad. Select from the wide variety of dressings that take less than a minute to make. Here are three suggestions. A salad and its appropriate dressing correct for its occasion. Try them.

FOR LUNCHEON

The luncheon salad is often the main course. So it should be rather substantial . . . like this tuna fish salad surrounded by quartered tomatoes and placed in a nest of lettuce. Serve with this a Worcestershire dressing made by mixing together six tablespoons of Wesson Oil, two tablespoons of vinegar, a teaspoon of salt, a fourth teaspoon pepper and one and one-half teaspoons of Worcestershire Sauce. Beat well to thoroughly blend.

FOR BRIDGE

Your bridge guests will prefer a salad that is a happy medium between sweet and sour . . . a pleasant appetizer for their evening meal . . . such as grape-fruit and orange salad outlined with red pimento. Serve with Cream Cheese dressing:
Cream package of cream cheese with four tablespoons Wesson Oil. Add a teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon each of white pepper and granulated sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice. Dust with paprika.

FOR DINNER

Gowns are more sophisticated for dinner—Salads too! Served as a separate course, the simple salad is best . . . asparagus, for instance, on a slice of tomato, ringed with a strip of green pepper. Pour over this Chiffonade dressing . . . Beat together six tablespoons Wesson Oil, two tablespoons vinegar, half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and paprika; tablespoon chopped pimentos, half tablespoon chopped parsley, a minced hard-boiled egg.

WESSON OIL

IF YOU are interested we'll send you the book "Appropriate Salad Dressings" showing more ways to fix salads, new dressings and new ways to serve them; address the Wesson Oil & Snowdrift People, 210 Baronne St., New Orleans, La.

Burgess Children's Stories

A FAIR EXCHANGE.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

A fair exchange to both is fair,
'Twixt Man and Man or Bear and Bear.
—Old Mother Nature.

She didn't say anything about an exchange between Cat and Bear, but the truth of the saying would hold just as good in that case. In fact it did. When Yowler the Bob Cat reached his home in the ledges deep in the Green Forest he received one of the greatest surprises of his whole life. Yes, sir, he did just that. His home was occupied! He didn't even have to look in to know who had taken possession of it. There could be no mistaking those big footprints. And who but Buster Bear could have dug away the snow and ice around his entrance? Besides, did he not know that Buster had been driven from his own home under the big brush-pile? Yowler lost his temper right on the instant he made the discovery.

He screeched, and when Yowler screeches it is a screech. There was rage in it, and there was fear in it, for Yowler is far from being brave. There was more rage than fear, however. Buster Bear, who had just dropped off to sleep, opened one eye and grinned and in two seconds was asleep again.

"Robber! Thief! Get out of my house!" screeched Yowler.

He snarled between screeches. He dug his claws into the snow crust and tore it up in big pieces. His anger almost choked him. He looked like a living fury, if you know how a living fury looks. And all the time Buster Bear slept peacefully. He was quite satisfied with his new home and not even a screeching Bob Cat could disturb him.

Yowler was homeless. Yes, sir, he was homeless. That didn't trouble him, however, as it would trouble you or me. He would find a place to curl up just as he would find something to eat the next time he needed a meal. Unintentionally he headed back toward the big brush-pile. The sight of it reminded him that it is good to have a nap after a hearty dinner. What better place for a nap than under that pile of brush. He went over to the place where he had gone in after Peter Rabbit. There was just room in there for him to curl up. Just as he was going in a thought struck him. Now was a good time to see what sort of a home Buster Bear had had at the other end of that brush-pile.

He stole softly around to the entrance Buster Bear had made, looked and listened to make sure that no one was about, and then crept into Buster's bedroom. It was better than he had expected it to be. It was cozy and warm and there was a better bed, a far better bed than he had had in his own home in the ledges. He didn't like the smell of Buster Bear, which was very strong, but he knew that would disappear after a while. He stretched out on Buster's bed and began to purr.

"This isn't half bad," purred he. "I think I'll stay here. If Buster Bear is satisfied I am sure I am. It's a fair exchange. I always did like a big brush-pile. Buster is welcome to my old home as long as I have this one."

So it was that Buster Bear and Yowler the Bob Cat swapped homes.

The next story: "Yowler Gives Himself Away."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

The Real Issues of Life Are Deeper Than the Currents of Society, and Happiness Comes From the Close Human Relationships and Not From Social Alliances—The Average Woman, If Left Alone, Will Do Her Duty by Her Husband's Family.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am private secretary to a man who lost his wife two years ago. He has two daughters and a son, all grown. He has fallen in love with me and is asking me to marry him. He is all I could ever ask in the way of a husband and I would not hesitate to marry him tomorrow but for one thing. His children go out in society and are very popular and they are not in sympathy with their father's marrying his secretary. My people are as good as they are, but we have always been poor and have not been society people because of that fact. I don't want to put myself in the way of the children's pleasure or their ambition, but I cannot feel that I am justified in refusing to marry a man who loves me and whom I love because his family is opposed to it. At the same time, I don't want to wreck my own chances for happiness by going into a family that will feel resentful toward me. What would you advise me to do? SECRETARY.

ANSWER:

It is the same old story and a perfectly natural one. Three children who have recently lost their mother are unwilling to see anyone taking her place with their father. If you were not a business woman they would have some other objection to fit the case, whatever it might be. If you were a paragon of perfection their attitude would be the same. If you have the opportunity, and the patience, to overcome their prejudice, seize it. But don't jump into the marriage until you have tried the experiment.

Young people are chock full of romantic ideas which they are loathe to lose. They like to regard marriage, and especially their parents' marriage, as an all-consuming, all-embracing affair that continues through this life into the next. When they get older and come to the problems that all marriages involve their attitude is indeed different. They are willing to take them on and throw them off at will; but for their parents they cherish the pure ideal of a romance that cannot be repeated and one that is blasphemed by any second attempt to contract another marriage. It is like many other adolescent beliefs, very pretty but very inconvenient to those who have outgrown them.

A man who has asked his secretary to marry him has weighed up the social equation. He is not blind to the fact that society is not made up of business women. He knows why, too. He knows that it takes money to finance a social career and with rare exceptions a woman who is making her living in an office has no cash to spend in the ways society decrees it must be spent. He also knows that many of these women, given the proper background and relieved of the economic necessity of going to work at 9 and returning, dog-tired, at 5 or later, do shine in society. He knows, furthermore, that a woman accepts her husband's place in the community and if he has entre she will soon have it.

All of which comes to very little in the large affairs of the home and the heart which are the twin stages on which the marriage drama is played. The real issues of life are deeper than the current of society, and the only happiness that really counts is that derived from the close human relationships and not from any social alliances.

There is no problem in your way but the winning of the children, individually, to friendship with you, and to sympathetic understanding of their father's desire to marry you. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have an in-law problem, which I imagine is common to many married couples. My father-in-law has come to live with us. Like all wives do, who love their husbands, I tried to be gracious about it though I confess I wasn't enthusiastic about assuming any new burdens. A husband and two children are enough for the average woman to look after. Don't you think so? Well, I resolved to be as good to my father-in-law as I knew how to be and when my husband told me that he was not satisfied with what I was "putting out" I couldn't believe my ears. He insists that I shall stay at home when his father is here and entertain him as if he were a guest. I am willing to make some sacrifice, but I am not willing to be chained to the house like a slave by his presence in it. When I finish my house work, cook dinner, take the children to and from school, I am ready for some diversion and I think I have earned it. What say you? INDEPENDENT.

ANSWER:

I think you are exactly right, but I am not sure that you are wise in proclaiming your rights or standing on them, alone. You might lose your balance and fall, then who would catch you? It is the same old story of adjustment or rather lack of it. All of life's happiness is hinged on it and it behooves us to make every effort to adjust ourselves to the conditions that surround us.

Here is a father coming to make his home with his son. The son is away from home all day and doesn't realize how much time the wife has to spend in catering to his father's comfort and pleasure. He is so anxious for his father to get adjusted to life in his home that he is willing to make his wife sacrifice all her pleasure to that accomplishment. He doesn't realize that he is throwing her life out of adjustment, as well as his own. He has only one thing in mind: his father's comfort.

He must be brought to his senses, but defiance of his wishes will never accomplish it. He must be made to see his error in some other way. There is no sense in his attitude, there is no justice in his demands, but the problem is to make him see that. The host and guest relation is fine for a short visit, but to undertake such a large order for life would be the best way to make the guest, who has come for life, feel like an intruder.

If the father-in-law has wisdom commensurate with his years, an appeal to him would be the best bet. One might be afraid to go to a mother-in-law with such a problem, but fathers-in-law are different. He is anxious to have a happy home and he knows he cannot get it if the home maker is fretted by his presence.

The average woman, if left alone, will do her duty by her husband's family. She has a good conscience in the matter, but the minute her husband begins to upbraid her and reprove her it puts the very devil into her and she doesn't perform half so well as she did before the scolding. It is the perversity of human nature expressing itself. The reproof indicates to the woman that her husband's confidence in her willingness to do the right thing by him is incomplete, and she resents it. She may have failed to some extent, but in the main her intentions were good. If, in spite of her good intentions, she receives suggestions about how she should treat her in-laws she throws off the obligation she formerly felt and refuses to take orders thereafter from her husband.

Husbands, if you will learn to let your wives alone they will treat your families right. Why? Because they love you and want to please you.
CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

ALABAMA INITIATES FIGHT ON COMMUNISTS

Authorities Move To Combat Propaganda Spread Among Negroes.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 5.—(AP)—Distribution of communistic propaganda among negroes of the Alabama black belt today caused authorities to move to combat it through state and federal investigations.

Representative R. J. Goode, of Wilcox county, who yesterday disclosed activity of the communist party in the United States of America among negro tenants, said he had asked the attorney-general to draft legislation to control the situation.

The Wilcox representative said he had asked that measures be drawn that would not conflict with United States constitutional provisions guaranteeing free speech and a free press.

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industry, today wired Congressman Hamilton Fish, chairman of the house committee investigating soviet activities in the United States, informing him of the situation and asking "Is there anything you can do to help us or anything we can do to help you?"

A probe of the activities of the organizers has been begun by Attorney-general Thomas E. Knight, Jr., who has asked all persons finding copies of the printed matter to send it to him.

Trial of three alleged communist organizers arrested recently in raids in Birmingham on charges of vagrancy have been set for Jefferson criminal court tomorrow. Activities of communist organizers in the industrial district in Birmingham were under investigation last fall, and announcement was made by the then governor, Bibb Graves, that at least 4,000 members of the organization were in the industrial district of the state.

Following a raid on southeastern headquarters of the party in Birmingham, when large quantities of inflammatory printed matter were seized, headquarters were moved to Chattanooga.

In Wilcox county, Representative Goode said, a white man named "Tom Johnson," accompanied by a negro, arrived there more than a week ago "loaded with printed matter."

Johnson left but the negro worked distributing the material for a week before landowners and authorities were aware of it.

Officials here today could not say how widespread the activity had been, until a thorough check had been made.

Titles to pamphlets found in the possession of Wilcox county negroes include "Lynch Justice at Work," by B. D. Amis; "Fighting Against Hunger," by William Z. Foster, and "The Southern Worker," a communist paper published in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Leaping Women Puzzle 'Law' ---For a While

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP)—A puzzled pair of detectives stood on Michigan avenue yesterday, scratching their heads in a fog of mental bewilderment.

Detective Sergeants Frank McNamara and Henry C. McNurney had seen boys play leap frog and they had witnessed lots of other jumping games in their day, but leaping women on Michigan avenue was a sight they had never before beheld.

The peculiar part of the mystery was that all of the leaping was done in front of No. 2626. After each woman would leap she would eye the policemen with suspicion and then hurry on her way.

Then the detectives got busy.

Mounting the stairs at No. 2626 they pushed into a room unannounced and found Beardsley Sperry, 26, who had been taking a correspondence school course in marksmanship and was getting in a little practical experience with his new air gun by using the pedestrians as moving targets.

He'll have to explain certain things to a judge.

RAIL WORKERS' WAGE CUT ASKED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 5.—(AP)—Blanket wage reductions affecting upward of a million railroad workers in the British Isles were recommended tonight by the railway national wage board after hearing arguments from both the carriers and the men.

Employers had sought a reduction but the unionized workers countered with a demand for increases which would bring the basic average wage to three pounds sterling (about $15) a week.

The reduction decreed roughly approximates 2.5 per cent in all classes of railway clerks and workmen, with an additional equal reduction applied to those drawing more than 40 shillings a week (about $9.60) or, in the case of clerks, 100 pounds a year (about $500).

Kotex fits inconspicuously

and it is soft, comfortable, disposable

KOTEX keeps you free of self-consciousness at times when sanitary protection is necessary. It is skilfully shaped to fit securely. It absorbs five times more than surgical cotton—absorbs away from the surface, not in one concentrated area. This method of lateral absorption leaves your protection dry and comfortable far longer than the ordinary pad.

It may be worn on either side with equal protection. There is no chance of getting it adjusted wrong—no possibility of embarrassment.

Kotex has not merely an apparent softness, but a lasting softness. It is treated to deodorize effectively. Hospitals use quantities of Kotex and also the soft absorbent material of which it is made. Kotex is disposable, as you know, quickly, easily—first of all its advantages over old-time methods.

NEW ANGLE PICTURED IN BUCKLEY KILLING

DETROIT, March 5.—(AP)—The defense in the trial of Ted Pizzino, Joe Bommarito and Angelo Livecchi, indicted for the slaying of Gerald E. Buckley July 23, hammered away at state witnesses today in an effort to set up political turmoil in Hamtramck, suburb, as a counter-motive for the assassination of the radio political commentator.

The contention that Buckley's threat to support a movement for the recall of Mayor Rudolph G. Tenerowicz in Hamtramck rather than the earlier similar agitation in Detroit against Mayor Charles Bowles was the basis of the assassination was made by Anthony Maiullo, counsel for Bommarito, in arguments before Judge Edward J. Jeffries. In his opening statement Prosecutor Harry S. Toy charged that Buckley was slain by gangsters who opposed his work in behalf of the movement to recall Mayor Bowles.

Witnesses told of a party held after the recall election in a suite of the La Salle hotel. Buckley looked in on the party shortly after midnight, talked about the election, joked with persons present and left "to get a little air." Shortly after Buckley was slain while sitting in the lobby.

Maiullo argued for the right to draw out testimony concerning the Hamtramck recall. He claimed "that the recall in Hamtramck was one reason, if not the reason, why Buckley was killed."

Judge Jeffries ruled the testimony admissable.

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolff

INSTALLMENT XXV.

Peter felt distinctly flattered. Pete was a distinct promotion, he felt, from fella.

"I don't fit it in just yet, but it belongs, all right," said Charley. "That's what this game is, Pete—gettin' hold of the bits that belong, one after another, and being patient till you have enough of them that fit together so that even twelve boneheads on a jury can't help seein' what it's all about. Benny Rufano, eh? Guess I'll look Benny over."

"What can I do, Charley?"

"Huh? I don't know, Pete. Not yet. That's the trouble. Hold up a bit. Guess I'll do some phonin' an' get the low-down on Ross, if I can."

They'd turned across from Park avenue, now, and, walking to the slot telephones in the long corridor. Peter watched him; marked, with interest, Charley's utterly expressionless face, and the way he spoke without letting his lips move at all.

"They turned him loose, all right," Charley said. "Took him over to the house, and Barclay and the boss worked on him for two-three hours. No line on what he said—they didn't have a stenographer, even. He's bein' trailed. They're keepin' an eye on the Gould woman, too. How much you know about her, Pete?"

"Not very much," said Peter, reluctantly.

"Ross's girl friend—on the side?"

"I don't know." Then, after a moment. "I think so—yes."

"So do I, Pete, so do I. And I ain't in so strong with her?"

"No. She doesn't like me."

"To bad. You couldn't get anything out of her, then. How about Ross? Any chance he'd open up to you?"

"I doubt it."

"No. I suppose you and he'd get along like a couple of strange tomcats. You're too damn simple about your feelings, Pete—that's one of your troubles. All anyone's got to do to know what you're thinkin' is to look at you. Well—I'll tell you what. You show up at Emma's along about 1 a. m. If you see me, act like you didn't know me—see? But watch me, and for Gawd's sake try and get it if I slip you a sign to do anythin'."

"What are you driving at?"

"I don't know. Wish't I did. I just got a hunch comethin' might break around there. Don't ask me why. I wouldn't tell you if I knew, and I don't know, anyway. All right. S'long."

Peter, disappointed, vaguely, and feeling discouraged, because though he didn't quite know how, Charley had disappointed him and let him down, went home and dressed. The more he racked his brain the less could he understand the meaning of what he knew, and the farther did he seem to be from fitting the pieces of the puzzle together. Ross—Benny—Connolly, like a hound on the scent—Tack, lying cold and still—Martha, still free, on sufferance, but facing arrest and the prospect of something that would lie like a pall over her whole life, no matter what the outcome, unless the truth about Tack's death could be proved.

She was beset by hatreds, by veiled and open enmities, it seemed to Peter. Connolly was her enemy; impersonally, perhaps, and only because she had presented herself to him as the most available means of adding to his own reputation, but, none the less, her enemy, and a formidable, a terrible one. Tack's mother hated her already, and was sure now to hold her responsible for Tack's death. Rita Gould was another of her enemies. Ross? He wondered about Ross; wondered if, in some curious and subtle fashion, Ross, too, didn't hate her. Some deep instinct within him warned him against Ross; warned him that Ross was not to be counted among those who were on Martha's side.

Friends she had, to be sure. Himself, and Steve and Carol; Bouton, too—a hired retainer, but a powerful one. Charley, too; by grace of Charley's jealousy of Connolly, and his resentment of the way he had been passed over for promotion. But it didn't matter why Charley was on their side; the fact was all to the good, and he was worth all the rest of Martha's friends put together just now, Peter believed.

He loathed the idea of going to Emma's tonight; of going to any place where he had been wont to see Martha and Tack, any place where gayety and good cheer and laughter prevailed. But he had always been one to obey orders, and he went, doggedly, getting there, as Charley had told him to, soon after 1 o'clock. The bar was almost deserted; people wouldn't be crowding it for another hour. Zach, the big bartender, was sitting down, not more than half awake, the music from the other room could be heard, faintly, through the half open doors; Emma, just then, was singing her blue songs for the outsiders who had to pay a cover charge—something not exacted, for some odd reason, from those allowed to use the bar.

Benny, fat and gross and oily, had been lounging opposite the elevator when Peter came up; he glanced at Peter, momentarily, through his half-closed eyes, which were like a pig's, but only nodded, indifferently, by way of greeting.

Peter took a stool at the bar and ordered a whisky sour; he didn't want a drink, but he had to have some excuse for being there.

"Tha's good stuff, in that drink, Mr. Wayne," Zach said. "We been gettin' pretty good rye lately. Right from Canada, with the government seal. I can get you a case, if you're interested."

"I don't believe I am, Zach," said Peter. "I wouldn't get rid of a case of rye in a year, the way I use it at home."

"You got the right idea, Mr. Wayne. Me—I'm off the stuff. I've tended bar for 25 years, and you don't catch me hittin' it. That poor kid that got his last night—why, say he'd be up and around now if he'd known when to quit."

"What makes you say that, Zach?" asked Peter, only mildly interested in Zach's moralizing.

"Stands to reason, Mr. Wayne. You ever see him get sore when he was lit? Wasn't anythin' he wouldn't say—and mighty little he wasn't apt to do. Many's the time I've been ready with my bung starter under the bar here when he was all set to start somethin'. And now the bulls are tryin' to make out that his wife did it!"

"Why do you think that?" said Peter, startled.

"Say, I can tell, Mr. Wayne. Wasn't they drillin' me for two hours here last night? Askin' me did they ever have a fight that I heard—an' about Mrs. Thayer and this lad Ross? I don't have to read the papers to know what Connolly's after. They's been a dick around here tonight—Charley Mitchell. Say—I guess you must have seen him. You was over there last night, wasn't you?"

"I may have—it seems to me I saw the whole police department!"

"Ain't it the truth? It takes a dozen of them bulls to turn on the light on a job like that. But they're away off if they think they can hang it on Mrs. Thayer. She never done it."

"Oh, of course, she didn't!" said Peter.

Rather to his relief, some people he knew came in just then. The bar began to fill up. Dr. Meyer Zahn appeared; he nodded to Peter, who had met him two or three times. As usual, Zahn sat by himself; Emma sat at his table, when she was free, and they talked, in low tones. There was still no sign of Charley, and Peter grew more and more restless and impatient. He felt Zahn's eyes upon him, two or thre times; once or twice, when he looked around, he caugh Zahn looking at him. And at last, when Peter happened to have been left alone at his table, Zahn got up and came over.

"May I have a word with you, Mr. Wayne?" he said, in his soft voice—which had, though, for all its suave and calculated smoothness, a curiously hard note deeply buried within it. "Will you come over and join me in a drink? They have some old brandy here that most of you don't know about, I think."

Peter, distinctly suprised, a little flattered, too, for that matter, accepted and rose. The brandy appeared, and Peter, though he was no connoisseur, knew that it was not speakeasy stuff.

"I have been shocked by this murder—young Thayer's killing last night," said Zahn. "I understand that you were there soon afterward. I have tried to reach Mrs. Thayer today. She has, as I suppose you know, been a patient of mine for a year or so. Can you tell me how she is?"

Giant Primo Carnera Wins Decision Over Jim Maloney at Miami

CARNERA BEATS JIMMY MALONEY IN MIAMI RING

20,000 Fans Boo Verdict; Score Sheet Favors Jim.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN STADIUM, MIAMI, Fla., March 5. (AP)—The battle of the cracked rib, much after the fashion of a musical comedy, came to a clamorous climax tonight as ponderous Primo Carnera won a disputed decision from Jimmy Maloney, the veteran Boston Irishman.

The big Italian's glove was lifted in token of victory by Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland, of Detroit, after 10 bristling rounds.

The decision which officially evened the Carnera's score with Maloney in two bouts was greeted by a sustained outburst of booeing from the crowd, estimated at 20,000, most of whom apparently believed the Boston Irishman had earned the verdict, even though spotting the Italian 73 1-2 pounds, two doctors and a cracked rib.

CLOSE, EXCITING.

It was a close and frequently exciting battle between the game Irishman and the black-haired giant from Italy. There were no knockdowns, although Jimmy was wrestled to the floor once by his ponderous foe, and Carnera himself went to his knees on another occasion on losing his balance, backing away from a punch.

Ringside critics were somewhat at variance in their conclusions, even though there was no mistaking the crowd's sympathy. Most of the experts, crediting Maloney with a stronger and more effective finish, apparently believed the worst Jimmy could have received was a draw.

The Associated Press score sheet gave Maloney five rounds, Carnera three and two even. Jimmy was credited with the fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth, Carnera with the first three. The fourth and eighth appeared even. From the same side of the ring, Ben Davis, veteran member of the Miami boxing commission's staff of judges, unofficially scored five rounds for Maloney, four for Carnera and one even.

PRIMO PUNISHED.

Carnera took considerable punishment in the region of his damaged side but it was not necessary at any stage of the bout to administer medical aid to the 273-pound giant in his corner. The Italian winced frequently under Maloney's body punching but did not appear badly hurt at any time. He was fast and blocked well but he missed three or four punches for every one he fired in the direction of his elusive rival.

Carnera after an impressive start, in which he staggered Maloney several times with wallops to the head, lost some of his aggressiveness as well as most of his punching aim.

From the fifth round to the finish, with the exception of a few spurts, Carnera was outboxed, outsmarted and frequently outpunched by his much smaller foe.

Maloney's best round was the seventh, in which he forced the fighting, pushed the big fellow off balance with lefts to the head and dug both hands to the sensitive right side of his opponent. Carnera was bewildered trying to pin Maloney down to any hand-to-hand battling in one spot.

Blows Not Hard.

The mere momentum behind Carnera's blows, when they landed, jarred Jimmy but he showed very little fear of mixing. Maloney's chief trouble was in offsetting Carnera's tremendous reach and the Irishman frequently left his feet in seeking connections with the Primo's chin.

The show promoted by Frank J. Bruen faced financial failure, after being staged despite a flock of obstacles, but the crowd, as well as the gate, estimated at between $60,000 and $75,000, was somewhat above expectations. Notables from the winter colonies of Florida were prominent at the ringside, bundled in heavy coats, furs and blankets for protection against the chilly and only partially moonlit night.

SECOND PRIMO KAYOED.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 5.—(AP)—Jose Santa, Portuguese heavyweight and a rival of Primo Carnera in size, was knocked out after 33 3-5 seconds of fighting in the second round of his bout with Salvatore Rugirello, of Italy, here tonight.

Sam Fuller Meets Canzoneri Tonight

BOSTON, March 5.—(AP)—The seven-year ambition of Sammy Fuller, rugged Boston battler, will be realized here tomorrow night when he clashes with Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in the Boston Garden's feature bout, a non-title affair.

Since Fuller turned professional, after winning the national A. A. U. featherweight title back in 1924, he has been chasing title honors without success.

Dempsey's Father, 73, To Wed Again

SALT LAKE CITY, March 5. (AP)—Hiram Dempsey, father of Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, obtained a license here today to marry Mrs. Hannah Lyle Chapman.

He gave his age as 73 and said the present is his third marriage. The bride, a neighbor, gave her age as 82.

Hiram Dempsey is divorced from the ex-champion's mother, Mrs. Cecelia Dempsey, who also resides here.

Without invitation or apology, I have nudged into any number of groups of disappointed sportsmen this winter and listened to them tell of their bad luck bird hunting.

The country should have been teeming with our feathered friends, the dogs were the best dogs in the county and the weather was fine—but the birds were off somewhere attending a convention.

And in every group I heard various sound reasons given for the lack of birds. None blamed the dogs. The birds were just not there. But why? Not even the state game and fish commissioner can tell exactly. He has heard all the answers and has some of his own to proffer if you do not care for the current theories.

THE THEORIES.

One reason for the shortage in quail this year is given as the drouth. When hatching time came last spring, the country was in the midst of the old-fashioned dry spell. The young birds died by thousands for lack of water. Those reaching maturity were delicate, it is said, and could not survive the winter.

Another idea is that the greatly increased number of foxes in the land resulted in a slaughter of the innocents. Many hunters testify to finding traces of the depredations of Sir Reynard everywhere.

Another theory is that birds have died by poison. They have eaten of the stuff used to spray cotton to combat the boll weevil. Many dead birds have been found with no shot wounds on them.

And another alarming idea is that the birds have migrated to some unknown land; that they simply have deserted their old haunts for some vague reason.

Perhaps it is a combination of all these causes. Anyhow birds have been hard to find. A hunter told me that on a well-guarded game preserve of some 5,000 acres, not far from Atlanta, where usually one can walk up six or eight coveys in an afternoon stroll, he was unable to locate a single covey after a day behind two fine dogs.

Another hunter said that on a preserve in south Georgia, where one could find 10 or 15 coveys in a day, he had been able to locate but two after a long hunt.

Depredations of game hogs and trappers could not have reduced the number of coveys in Georgia to such an extent as hunting reports have indicated. It is a matter for alarm and investigation. The state game and fish warden is making a thorough probe of conditions.

TRY THIS ON YOUR PIANO.

A financial bulletin issued by the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, of New York, on current business conditions says in part:

"Confine your newspaper reading, when cheerful, to the sports columns; and when depressed, to the obituary columns. Leave all financial columns alone. In all this depression not one publication, economist, financial writer, tipster or soothsayer has guessed right or even nearly right."

This might be revised to read: ". . . when depressed, to the obituary columns, if you insist on enjoying misery. A great tonic for depression can be found in the sports columns. There are no hard luck stories there."

HOT DOG!

There is no need to go to New York to see the sights. Just travel around the state and be entertained and astounded. He who imagines life in the smaller communities is slow and tiresome may read this item and learn something:

"An unusual visitor, accompanied by a woman, supposedly his wife, appeared on our streets Monday afternoon of last week, and after taking up some time by announcements, calling all the 'bootleggers' to come over, gave an entertainment to 75 or 100 people. He claimed to have been in the World War, saw service in the Argonne, and had traveled from coast to coast. His performance consisted of acrobatic stunts, working himself in such a position as to represent a rocking chair, the drawing in of his lower stomach and the chewing up and swallowing the neck of a Coca-Cola bottle and doing other unusual things. He claimed that he could not only eat razor blades, knives, safety pins, but could do other miraculous features."—Walton News.

Now, when did you ever see an act like that on an Atlanta stage for even at considerable outlay of money?

SOMETIMES IT HAPPENS.

A matter of a year ago, one cold March afternoon, a gaunt, ragged, hollow-eyed man came into the office and told me a hard luck story. He was an ex-water tender in the navy, had been injured in a boiler explosion, etc.

It so happens that in the course of a long and at times disorderly existence, I have made contacts that had and still have no visible means of support. Offhand I have a speaking acquaintance with many dozen of the tribe of pan-handlers; by speaking acquaintance, I mean they deliver the old oration and I say "No"—sometimes.

So a year ago when this derelict came into the office and began his story I warmed up for a fast "No" over the outside corner of the plate. But something about his story sounded clear as a bell.

The upshot of it was I passed over two pieces of folding money, thereby breaking all records for generosity. Ten minutes later I was kicking myself for being a soft-hearted chump.

Today, one year later, a clear-eyed, neat, powerful looking man weighing close to 180 pounds, came in and laid two pieces of folding money on my desk. He had been rehabilitated at the veterans' hospital and was now working regularly.

It all goes to show . . .

Stanford Athlete Sets Discus Record

WAIMAITE, New Zealand, March 5.—(AP)—Harlow Rothert, of Stanford, touring the antipodes with George Simpson, of Ohio State, and Rufus Kiser, of Washington, today broke the Australian-New Zealand record for the discus with a throw of 144 feet 6 1-2 inches, five feet four and a half inches better than the old mark.

Simpson won the 100-yard dash in nine and four-fifths seconds, equaling the local record.

BIG 10 FIGHTS FOR CONTROL OF ATHLETICS

Battles Association Which Dominates College Prep Sport.

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP)—Battle lines were being drawn in the western conference today for a fight to the finish with the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools over the issue of athletic control in the Big Ten.

The issue flamed to a breaking point yesterday when Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern University, issued a call for the presidents of all the Big Ten universities, together with directors of athletics and faculty representatives, to meet in Chicago, within two weeks, to consider the Western conference relation to the North Central in regard to athletic control. This committee will number 31, including Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the Big Ten.

The North Central Association, an organization in which practically every college and university between the Alleghenies and Rocky Mountains is a member, was organized to bring about uniformity in scholastic standards that affected transfer of credits of students migrating from one school to another.

OTHER POWERS.

Recently, however, the North Central assumed other powers, one of which was a ruling that universities should not sponsor any interscholastic track meets or basketball tournaments. Because of this, Amos Alonzo Stagg was forced to give up the national interscholastic basketball tournament conducted by the University of Chicago, which, in former years, had attracted teams from almost every state in the Union.

Then the North Central began athletic investigation of five Big Ten universities—Chicago, Minnesota, Illinois, Ohio State and Northwestern. President Scott, of Northwestern, learning of the visit of the paid investigators of the North Central Association, called the meeting.

Whether the interference of the North Central in the Big Ten affairs will cause a rupture between the two organizations which might result in the Big Ten withdrawal from the North Central group, cannot be determined until the conference committee of 31 meets to decide on its policy.

INCONSISTENT.

Major Griffith pointed out today that the North Central Association, in atte pting to supersede the authority of the Western conference in its internal athletic problems, was inconsistent.

"The situation must be settled at the meeting of university presidents," Major Griffith said. "The Western conference is stronger today than ever, but in my judgment, if eligibility issues and questions of intercollegiate relationship which in the past have been handled by the conference are to be passed upon by another group the Western conference will have surrendered its sovereignty to the North Central Association."

Professor O. F. Long, faculty representative at Northwestern, said there can be no middle ground in the conflict between the conference and the North Central. Either the Big Ten must surrender its control of athletics, or fight to retain the position it has held since the conference was organized 33 years ago.

Six Clubs Seeking Dixie Golf Tourney

Ballots were mailed out yesterday to directors of the Southern Amateur Golf Association to determine which of six country clubs in the south would be awarded the 1931 Southern Amateur tournament.

President Lowry Arnold, of the association, mailed the ballots from his office here and said he expected the question to be settled and a definite announcement made within a week. The tournament is to be held the last week in June.

Mr. Arnold said the Birmingham and Chattanooga Country Clubs had been most active in seeking the tournament and that the former had recently withdrawn from competition for the meet.

Mr. Arnold said the other clubs seeking the tournament were: Belle Meade Country Club, Nashville; Colonial Country Club, Memphis; Radium Springs Club, Albany, Ga.; Miami Golf and Country Club, Miami, Fla., and Tulsa Country Club, Tulsa, Okla.

The directors of the association are scattered from Greensboro, N. C., on the north to Ocala, Fla., on the south and from Atlanta to Dallas.

Upsets Feature Women's Tourney

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 5. (AP)—Two great upsets today eliminated from the Florida east coast golf championship the pair who had been counted as finalists, Diana Fishwick, British champion, and Virginia Van Wie, Chicago.

Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Detroit, brought defeat to Miss Van Wie when she laid the Chicago girl a dead stymie on the 18th hole, preventing her from squaring the match.

Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kan., took the match from Miss Fishwick, 4 and 2. Mrs. Sterrett, playing great golf, was out in 38 to be one up at the turn. She piled up her added advantage when Miss Fishwick three-putted two holes and was short on another.

Miss Van Wie's long game was sadly off and she was four down to Mrs. Hanley at the midway point. However, the Chicago sharpshooter staged a great comeback, starting on the 12th to become only one down going to the 18th.

Camera! Bob Begins Golf Pictures

Bobby Jones, who gave up his amateur standing in the world of golf so that he could show, by means of the silver screen, every duffer the game as it should be played, is seen above at the Lakeside Country Club, Los Angeles, making his initial bow before the moving picture camera and microphone. Jones is making a series of 12 reels, illustrating how he uses each club in the bag. High speed cameras which will follow the golf ball on its flight will be used in making Bob's series of pictures. Experimental tests show that with these cameras it is possible to follow the ball on short iron shots from the time it is hit until it comes to a stop. Bob will work Monday.

STATE TOURNEY OPENS IN ATHENS

Vienna, Canton, Carnesville, Carrollton Win in First Round.

ATHENS, Ga., March 5.—Four high school basketball teams representing the third, fourth, eighth and ninth congressional districts of the state survived the first round of the state high school basketball tournament here today. The survivors and the four teams which drew byes will enter the quarter-finals Friday.

Vienna, Canton, Carnesville and Carrollton will go into the quarter-finals here tomorrow as a result of their victories today. Rome, Gordon, Brooklet and Albany were eliminated in the first round.

Vienna High school, three times champions, romped their way to an easy 34-26 victory over Rome High as Hargrove and Mitchen alone found the basket for enough points to beat the Rome team. The former champions displayed another strong team as they went into the quarter-finals.

Led by Rowe and Fleeman, center and guard, Carrollton came back to take a 28-20 verdict from Albany High. Byars, center, led the way for Albany with 12 points as his total.

Canton High school, conquerors of Braselton, last year's champs, in a pre-tournament game, had an easy time defeating the Gordon High team, representing the tenth district, 28-21. Ponder, of Canton, led the attack with 16 points.

Carnesville eliminated Brooklet, of the first district, 26-17, to close the day's play. South, forward for Carnesville, and Beall, Brooklet guard, provided most of the game's thrills.

Pairings for Friday games are: Vienna vs. Chamblee, Thomaston vs. Canton, Carnesville vs. Carrollton, Waresboro vs. Perry.

Griffiths, Levinsky Will Fight Tonight

CHICAGO, March 5.—(AP)—Along with fighting to settle Chicago's West Side heavyweight question tomorrow night, Tuffy Griffiths and King Levinsky will battle for a bout with Tommy Loughran, former world light-heavyweight titleholder, April 19 in the Chicago stadium.

Both the Tough One and the Kingfish have finished the serious part of their training for the bout and both, to hear them talk, are certain of winning. Levinsky, the former fish merchant, is sure his murderous right hand will tip Griffiths over. The latter doesn't see how he can miss at least outpointing the king.

Griffiths is expected to be a slight favorite, and advance sales indicate an attendance of as many as 19,000, with gross receipts of $65,000.

Rockne Arrives At Miami Home

MIAMI, Fla., March 5.—(AP) Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, arrived here today aboard an Eastern Air Transport plane from Atlanta. Rockne went immediately to his winter residence in Coral Gables to join Mrs. Rockne, who has been here several weeks.

Rockne may have to wait a day or two, however, before enjoying complete relaxation from his countrywide travels. He was met at the airport by Mayor C. H. Reeder, accepted an invitation to be the mayor's guest at a luncheon of welcome tomorrow and agreed to give a radio talk.

Among those expected to greet "Rock" tomorrow will be one of his prize pupils of 1930, Bert Metzger, of Chicago, 158-pound All-America guard.

Londos Says Stribling Will Kayo Schmeling

Wrestling Champion Impressed After Seeing Georgian; Praises Ability.

By Ralph McGill.

CHRISTOPHER THEOFELES, the ebullient Greek, known to the trade as Jim Londos, thinks that W. L. Stribling will knock Max Schmeling very horizontal indeed when they meet in June, if W. L. Stribling will fight from the bell.

Londos saw Stribling work in Florida and was greatly impressed. "He is one fine boy," said Londos. "He can fight and he can box. I hope I can see the fight in June."

Londos, who is featured in Grantland Rice's column in Collier's today, is one of the greatest champions wrestling has ever had. He is largely responsible for the come-back by wrestling which is forcing boxing out of the picture. The best man wins in wrestling today and the fans have learned to like it.

It is probably safe to say that no athlete has kept in training as has Jim Londos. Somewhere in the back of his head an atavistic idea that the old Greeks had—that a perfect body was worth while.

The last time Londos went back to the old country he kept in training. Each day saw him running up and down a mountain road. The natives wagged solemn heads. It looked crazy.

"I started out when I was just a boy," said Londos. "They tench wrestling in the schools over there just as they do football and basketball over here. I saw the wrestlers in the city and I knew then that I would have but one ambition throughout my life and that was to be a great wrestler.

PARENTS DIDN'T LIKE IT.

"My parents didn't like it. They wanted me to get into a profession. That's why I changed my name to Jim Londos. When they read where Jim Londos was wrestling they did not know it was me. That was years ago."

Londos is a great hero to his countrymen in America. One of the hardest tasks Ed White, his manager, has is keeping Londos from being feted to death in each city they visit.

"Jim is one of the finest characters in sport," said the chunky, gray-haired man who is piloting Londos to a fortune. "I have been connected with boxing or wrestling all my life and this boy is the best I've seen. He has no bad habits and no enemies. He has more real friends than any champion I've seen."

THE WORST PART.

The worst part of the evening to Ed White is rubbing Londos' shoulders with olive oil. Londos spends a half hour before each match rubbing oil into his legs and his body. Ed White then takes over the shoulders.

"I think I'll hire a trainer to travel with you," he grumbles.

"I don't like this oil."

"I wish you would," kids Londos. "I would like to have someone who knew something about rubdowns and putting on oil."

PLANS TO RETIRE.

Londos plans to retire after a few more years. "Actors and wrestlers never know when they are through," he said. "I've seen old-timers 60 years old who thought they could still become champions. What I want to do is put by enough so that I will be fixed when I get ready to retire. I don't want to look into the future and see Jim Londos walking on his heels and still trying to wrestle."

Londos says that Pete Sauer is the toughest man he has met. He rates Jim McMillin next. "That boy has come faster than any young fellow I've seen," he said. "Two years ago when I was working for the Shikat match I worked with McMillin. He wasn't so good then. But in two years he has become a real wrestler. He has plenty of courage. That's what helps him."

Court Tourney Set For Walton County

LOGANSVILLE, Ga., March 5.—Basketball teams of Walton county will meet for the county championship in a tournament to be held here starting tomorrow.

Sasse Will Visit Alabama Today

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., March 5.—(AP)—The athletic authorities of the University of Alabama announced today that Major Ralph Sasse, head football coach at West Point, will arrive here Friday to watch the Crimson Tide in spring workouts.

The army mentor expects to spend Friday and Saturday with Coach Frank Thomas and "Tiny" Hewitt, former Army fullback and now assistant coach at the university, watching the Tidesmen prance through their paces.

GEORGIA OPENS DIAMOND WORK

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., March 5.—Baseball practice at the University of Georgia started today with 45 men reporting to Coach Bill White for one hour of work under a hot sun.

The youngsters tossed baseballs around old Stanford field most of the afternoon. One section of the squad spent the afternoon in the outfield chasing flyballs, another group played "catch," and still another bunch indulged in first batting practice.

Coach White seemed highly pleased with the number and quality of the candidates, which include material worthy of any college nine. Several others are expected to report for varsity practice when Harry Mehre releases his football warriors from the spring grid work.

Seven letter men, all that remain of last year's squad, were out for the opening session. They were Captain Cliff McGaughey, shortstop; Carter Tate, catcher; Austie Downes and Catfish Smith, outfielders; Spurgeon Chandler, Lefty Simpson and Joe Costa, pitchers.

Johnson Reported Sinking Slowly

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—(AP)—Ban Johnson, former head of the American league, was sinking slowly and his condition was described as "low" tonight. Johnson was weaker this morning than he had been at any time previous.

Adair Athletic Club Beats Southern Five

The Adair Athletic Club basketball team won a 34-20 victory over the Southern railroad five last night on the Calvary court.

Davis and Flury led the Adair attack, scoring totals of 10 points each. D. Stewart and Pickett were best for the losers.

CARLYLE SIGNS 1931 CONTRACT; AUTREY ON WAY

Dobbs Believes Leo Bader Will Stage Great Battle for Shortstop.

By Ralph McGill.

Macon is practically assured of a berth in the new Dixie league, organization of which will be completed within the next few days, it was announced from the Cracker office Thursday.

The territory has been reserved, according to R. J. Spiller, who is one of the moving spirits behind the new Dixie league. Brooklyn pulled out of Macon officially Thursday with the announcement that the Robins were considering putting a farm in at Hartford in the Eastern league.

"Strang Nicklin, the former owner and manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts, is interested in the city," said the Cracker official. "We expect to do something about it at a meeting there today."

CARLYLE SIGNS.

The Cracker office saw the first of the serious holdouts capitulate Thursday. Roy Carlyle, the Norcross Nestor, walked in and signed. This leaves but three outfielders still unsigned. They are Si Rosenthal, Red Barnes and Doug Taitt. Carlyle was the first of the holdout quartet to sign. Red Barron, the fifth outfielder on the roster, signed several weeks ago.

"Chick Autrey, the catcher, is bringing in his contract to argue about it here," said Spiller, "and Si Rosenthal is in a compromise mood. We will sign all our players. That's why I have insisted that they were not holdouts. Ernie Kreuger will be in. His contract is a holdover from last season."

REPORT MONDAY.

The Crackers, pitchers and catchers, will report on Monday at Spiller field. The remainder of the squad is expected on Thursday. There will be a few tardy ones but Johnny Dobbs is hopeful that they will all reach the city by the end of the week.

"Our punch is in that outfield," said Dobbs. "I want them to get here on time so that they will be in shape. Much depends on a good start. We want none of what we had last year when we opened the season with our players not in condition and their ability unknown."

Dobbs thinks his young players will give the veterans a battle. He is especially pleased that Leo Bader is returning. Bader writes that his arm, which bothered him all last season, is well now and he is ready to go.

"Bader is a real ball player when that arm is good," said Dobbs. "I'm glad he is coming back. He will make someone hustle for that shortstop job."

The more important players as yet unsigned are: Autry, catcher; Rosenthal, Taitt, Barnes, outfielders; Lamotte, infielder. Several pitchers are also out of the fold but optimism reigns at the Cracker office.

Trainer Mickey O'Brien is to report back with the club this year. O'Brien spent the winter in Florida, where he learned to box. Crackers are hereby warned.

Dodgers Drop Macon Farm.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—President Frank B. York, of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, of the National league, today said Brooklyn was abandoning Macon, Ga., as a baseball farm. Negotiations are being carried on for establishment of a new farm at Hartford, Conn., in the Eastern league.

Mr. York said an announcement might be expected within the next day or two whether Brooklyn would put a team in the Eastern league from Hartford.

Lookouts Start Spring Practice.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 5. (AP)—More than 80 players, by far the largest number to report at a Chattanooga field, held their first practice of the 1931 season at Engel stadium this morning.

Majority of these were rookies as only half of the regular squad has reported. More than 100 players will be here before Monday.

Bert Niehoff officially started his Lookout managerial career by holding a four-hour workout, including a two-hour batting practice, something usually held up for a week or more. Zinn Beck, manager of Selma last season, gave the rookies a five-hour session.

Thomas Banks, fly chaser from Ontario, wired that he was being held up at the Canadian border.

Ray Brosnan Lost To Tech Baseball

Georgia Tech's baseball team suffered another severe blow from the faculty Thursday when Captain Ray Brosnan was ruled ineligible. Brosnan's loss follows that of Scot Pullen, who recently signed a St. Louis Brown contract after he had been ruled ineligible.

It was a big loss to Coach Clay, as Brosnan was the only hurler left from the 1930 staff. He was counted as the main dependence to carry the Jackets through the new Dixie College baseball schedule.

Two substitute hurlers and two sophomores make up the list of pitching candidates for the 1931 team, as Coach Clay starts to prepare for the opening of the new league early in April.

Players Find New Baseball Has Lost None of Its "Rabbit"

SOME PITCHERS HOPE FOR AID ON CURVE BALL

Herb Pennock Says No Change Will Be Noticed in Play.

By Dixon Stewart.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(UP)—Training camp tests have provided little definite light regarding the effect the major league's new "dead" ball will have on pitching and batting. The players themselves are divided in their opinions, some contending that the effect of the new ball will be negligible and others believing that pitchers will have a decided advantage.

In the American league, where the only change in the ball is the raising of the stitches, batters declare the ball is as lively as the jack rabbit of 1930. Pitchers say the raised stitches provide a better grip and will improve curve ball hurling, but that the change will not prove a cure-all for pitching difficulties.

JUST THE SAME.

"It will be like it always was," said Herb Pennock, Yankees' star. "The good pitchers will get by and the others will not. Personally I find little change. The ball acts like it always did."

The National league went a step farther than its rival in attempting to curb hitting and the ball now in use at its training camps has a heavier cover than has been used in the past. The heavier cover is expected to make the ball less lively and many of the hitters ruefully declare it has done so, although training camp news, such as the report of Lefty O'Doul hitting 12 successive drives over the fence in a batting drill, indicate that the ball still has plenty of pep.

ALL MENTAL.

Apparently the raised stitches are the important feature of the new ball, except for its psychological effect. The pitchers are pondering the effect of those raised stitches and wondering how closely the umpires are going to watch baseballs this season.

Before freak deliveries were barred some of the pitchers were able to do a lot of things to the stitching. Even after freak pitching became illegal, Dave Danforth kept the American league in a turmoil because he could raise the stitches with this thumbnail's and make the ball do everything but talk. Batters suspected every ball Danforth pitched and the suspicion that he was "doctoring" the ball kept the batters' minds so occupied that they failed to concentrate on hitting the ball. Danforth took every advantage just to get opposing teams "up in the air."

EMORY GAMES.

Emory's theologs made a determined but futile bid to win one game in the Emory intramural basketball tournament but failed to keep the lead that they had at the half, losing to the graduates, 27-25. In the other two games of the 13th round, Virlyn Moore, senior center, was responsible for 17 points in his team's 35-20 victory over the sophmores. In the med-theolog game, Logan, with 21 points, and Venable with 16, were too much for the theologs.

The 14th and last round of the tournament will be played Friday, but the games will not have any particular bearing on the standings, for the seniors are perched at the top, two games ahead of their nearest opponents, the juniors.

Two Entries.

Whelped in the bitter flame,
Trained for the harder game,
Caught in the rougher wake,
Taught how to give and take,
Here is the favored son
When the big race is run.

Born to a softer fate,
Ease, comfort, wealth and state,
Too well protected where
Here is the broken lance,
Robbed of his fighting chance.

Jack Quinn's Start.

A SPRING fanatic wishes to know just when and where Jack Quinn, now of the Dodgers, started pitching and how long he has been around. According to the records Quinn was born at Hazelton, Pa., on July 5, 1885, which makes him nearly 46 years old.

At the age of 18 he broke in with Connellsville, in the Pennsylvania State league, which means that he has been tossing a baseball professionally for 28 years. His first big league turn came with the New York Americans in 1909, which means that he began his big league career 22 years ago. So far the veteran has drawn his pay from 12 different teams and from eight different leagues.

His main record is 28 consecutive years of professional pitching, with his 29th season just ahead.

Ty Cobb had 25 years of professional baseball, including his minor league career, so Quinn has proved that an arm can last longer than a pair of legs.

Looking Ahead.

"WITH growing interest in the coming Olympic games," writes Old Timer, "where the competition over here will be the hardest ever known—where there will be larger fields facing longer training periods—

"I'd like to make a forecast or a guess as to some records you will see developed.

"Here they are:

"Half-mile—1.50.
"Mile—4.10.
"High jump—6 feet 8.
"Pole vault—14 feet 4 inches.
"Shot put—53 feet.

"I doubt if the 100 or the 220 records will be broken. And probably not the quarter. But there will be still others smashed before September, 1932, arrives."

Columbia and Maryland.

COLUMBIA, the gem of the ocean, and Maryland, my Maryland, may not have swept the gridiron after the manner of Notre Dame and Alabama, but they have done well enough at basketball, which is an even faster game. Columbia has the eastern intercollegiate league race all wrapped up and Maryland finally survived a smashing hand-to-hand conflict in the Southern conference race.

In addition, a Columbia crew is getting started—a crew which expects to have something to say about the Poughkeepsie returns later on.

Which recalls the fact that St. John's college won the unofficial basketball championship of the east with a great outfit.

Back in Circulation.

A new-found happiness is on the land;
The amateurs and pros show their elation
Now Bobby J.'s deserted green and sand,
Golf championships are back in circulation.

That famous Alexander of the links
Ran out of worlds to conquer with his irons;
Each hopeful with his clubs no longer shrinks
Like one who's being fed unto the lions.

Those galleries that followed fast and far
Will doubtless not applaud this dissertation
But there are those who'll thank their lucky stars
That championships are back in circulation.

What has become of the old-fashioned baseball holdout who used to quit the game for good and remain a holdout until almost as late as the middle of March?

Why not raise the baseball seams high enough to enable "pitches masterly ball" to break back into the language again?

Training Camp News

LIKE NEW BALL.

BILOXI, Miss., March 5.—(AP)—After having handled the new ball for more than a week, a majority of the veteran pitchers of the Washington club are inclined to think it will add materially to the effectiveness of a moundsman. The raised seams, making for wider hooks, are believed responsible for the fact that several of the young flingers were suspected of trying benders when they were supposed to use nothing but straight stuff in serving them up in batting practice.

Walter Johnson, on the other hand, doesn't see much difference in the ball.

EVEN SWAP.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—One man was added to the Phillies' squad today and another was subtracted. Pinkey Whitney, star third-sacker, was the new arrival, Chet Nichols the player who left. Nichols, who has had trouble with his arm since last summer, became discouraged, and obtained permission from Manager Shotton to return home.

SUN AIDS A'S.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—After an early morning downpour which threatened to do the Athletics out of another badly needed workout today the sun broke through and by afternoon Terry field was in fair condition for two hours' hard practice. Coach Gleason kept the youngsters stepping for his choppy grounders and sudden drives.

COMISKEY SILENT.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 5.—(AP)—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, had his first look today at the 1931 edition of the club. Whatever his opinions were, he kept them to himself, but asked lots of questions. Smead Jolley, the big outfielder, arrived in camp and immediately started blasting the baseball.

RED SLUGGERS SAG.

TAMPA, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Far behind several other major league clubs in spring training advancement due to inclement weather, the Cincinnati Reds today had their first batting practice of the season on a damp and chilly field. The sluggers, if any are in camp, were a distinct flop on their initial appearance at the plate.

VELTMAN ON WAY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Arthur Veltman, recruit catcher and the last of the Boston Braves' holdouts, today notified Manager Bill McKechnie that he had left his Texas home and was en route to the training camp. This youngster was dissatisfied with his salary terms. McKechnie drove his squad through two and a half hours of batting and field practice.

READS "RIOT ACT."

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 5.—(AP) The Boston Red Sox practice session was cut short here today to give Owner Bob Quinn a chance to get acquainted with his hired hands. The usually genial prexy gave his players a stern lecture, which included a warning that all must obey Manager "Shano" Collins to the last letter. He advised the latter to draw up a list of strict training rules.

NEW BALL BEST.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Gabby Street and the Cardinals tested the new National league baseball for John A. Heydler, league executive, today, and informed him after experiments that they considered it far superior to the old model. Street said the new ball carried as far as the old one. Cardinal pitchers agreed the new ball was easier to curve and control.

PIRATES SLIDE.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 5.—(AP)—The spring course in baseball offered at the camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates has advanced to base sliding. Manager Jewel Ens today sent his charges through a long workout in which the art of "hitting the dirt" was stressed. Bill Reagan, infielder, has joined the casualty ranks, with a wrenched ankle.

ROOKIES GET CALL.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 5.—(AP)—Two rookie outfielders appear in the first official New York Giant lineup of the training season.

John McGraw today picked Jim Bryan, youngster from Dixon, Tenn., and Joe Moore from Gause, Texas, to start against Dallas of the Texas league in the Giants' first exhibition game on Saturday.

McCARTHY ENTHUSIASTIC.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy gets more and more enthusiastic about his New York Yankees as the days go by. He was talking today about the pitchers.

"I am not talking about the speed and curves they have," said Marse Joe, "but I have been impressed by the way they do their work. Even the young pitchers perform as if they know what it is all about. I must say I like the looks of these pitchers."

CUBS' LATE RALLY WINS.

AVALON, Cal., March 5.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs today looked like the Cubs of two years ago in scoring five runs in the ninth inning to defeat the irregulars, 9 to 6, in a practice contest.

Jess Petty was the victim of the rousing finish and before the game was won had given up two singles, a walk, a double and a homer. Sheriff Blake pitched the first four innings for the irregulars and gave only four hits, and Leroy Hermann, who finished for the regulars, got credit for the victory.

BUCKY HARRIS INJURED.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 5.—(AP)—Manager Stanley R. Harris of the Detroit Tigers joined his own casualty list today when a batted ball struck him on the leg and he had to be carried from the field.

Although X-ray reports will not be available until tomorrow, the attending physician said he did not believe a bone was fractured.

QUINN BREEZES 'EM BY.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Jack Quinn exhibited that ancient spitter of his today and had the Brooklyn Robins' rookies breaking their backs swinging at it.

John Picus was touched up for two runs and six hits in four innings but whenever he called on the spitter the boys could do nothing but swing wildly at it or lift pop flies.

'Rajah' Sees Bob Smith As Great Aid to Cubs

AVALON, Cal., March 5.—(AP)—If the race is to the swift in the National league the Cubs probably will not win the pennant, for speed is one of the baseball ingredients missing from the Chicago equipment. But fortunately for Rogers Hornsby and his crew power is placed ahead of speed and deception in the modern game.

With the pitchers left out of the calculations, the Cubs as a club have a batting average of over .300. The stalwart outfied shows the way, Riggs Stephenson, an "aged veteran" at 32, leading the trio with a mark of .367, followed by Hack Wilson with .356 and Kiki Cuyler with .355.

The Cubs have two speedsters, Cuyler and Elwood English. There are a few fair steppers in the lineup and some downright slow.

The players, one and all, think Hornsby will pick up his managerial triumph where he left it off in 1926 when the Cardinals, under his direction, made baseball history by winning the pennant.

"Sure we will win," said Wilson, the solid home run hitter. "We've got the pitchers and we can hit. That's the ticket."

It was somewhat timidly suggested the club has few speed merchants.

"Don't need 'em," was the reply. "We hit in our runs."

Hornsby, himself, is a bit more conservative, but it is certain his satisfied smiles are not caused by the beautiful scenery surrounding his island training camp.

He likes his pitching prospects and takes the rest of the team for granted.

"We have been strengthened by the pitchers we got from other National league clubs," he said.

"Bob Smith not only is a good pitcher but he can hit—he's the ninth man on your ball club. And in a pinch he could play the infield or outfield. Jake May and Lester Sweetland have their points, too."

The outfield contest between John Moore and Vincent Barton may develop into a driving finish. Their batting averages last year were the same, .342, Moore compiling his with Los Angeles and Barton with the Baltimore Orioles. Barton won the dual home run derby with 31 to 26 for Moore.

BY JOHN J. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—After a week of decline, the stock market felt entitled to a rally today and came back vigorously.

The new short interest created during the recent weakness of the rails and industrials was prodded into covering by bullish operations in the steels and utilities and with the exception of the first hour or so the market was higher all day. Net gains of one to four points were liberally sprinkled through the prominent leaders. Trading, however, was relatively quiet, and the turnover of 2,700,000 shares was the smallest in a fortnight.

Industrials made a tardy response to yesterday's steel trade news, while the utilities more emphatically expressed their relief at the adjournment of congress. Furthermore, the market heard encouraging reports of increasing steel mill activity in the Youngstown area. With Wednesday's large batch of unfavorable dividend actions out of the way and with the edge taken off the railroad statistics, bear traders encountered substantial resistance and stood aside after rather ineffectual attempts to dislodge further liquidation of carrier shares.

American Can stood out with its net gain of 4½. Important stocks up at least 3 included American Telephone, International Telephone, and Consolidated Gas. Coppers and oils dragged. Activity in bonds was less pronounced, but prices improved, especially the foreign listings. The syndicate purchasing New York city's $100,000,000 issue announced shortly after noon that the big block had been taken by dealers and market circles reported a lively demand. Brokers loans promptly reflected the easiness of stocks during the week ended March 4, declining $8,000,000.

Unconfirmed reports that Italy would soon seek a large international loan sent the lira to a new high for the year, but otherwise there was little change in the foreign markets.

BY DONALD C. BOLLES.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—A brisk demand for foreign bonds such as the group has seldom enjoyed in recent months carried a wide list of European and South American obligations to new highs for the current recovery today. Domesties were slightly improved.

Encouraged by signs of returning stability in foreign countries investors have shown increasing interest the last three weeks in new commitments.

In a turnover of nearly $800,000, the German International 5 1-2s offered in this country last year advanced 2 points to close at 81 1-4, or 13 points above the low touched last year.

Announcement of the settlement of the controversy over American petroleum concessions in Colombia, together with calling for sinking fund payments on outstanding issues by Argentine, Colombia, Brazil and Peru in the past few days helped Latin American obligations.

The first advance in call money rates in two months attributed to calling of loans to pay for the $100,000,000 city of New York bond issue marketed today failed to affect the market. Liberties held steady.

American Telephone bonds were under accumulation following publication of its annual report. Public utility obligations moved slightly higher, and some of the industrials gained with the rise in shares. Rails were irregularly higher.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(NANA) The news—exclusively announced in this column yesterday—that automobile companies' sales of low-price cars were being materially stimulated because of purchases by ex-service men who have secured loans on their certificates, was confirmed from all parts of the country today and served to impart strength and activity to the market. Banking interests are practically unanimous in asserting that the release of $791,000,000 through the veterans' loans will result in inflation and inflation always results in higher prices for stocks.

Another important bullish influence on the stock market was the material change for the better in the European political news. The important developments announced with regard to India and the news that France was contemplating lending Italy money, thus eliminating strained relations between those two countries, also stimulated buying of stocks inasmuch as the unfavorable European situations have for months been a depressing influence on the market. The change for the better in political conditions over there is expected to open the flood gates of the reservoirs of gold in America and France and result in the resumption of big loans to European countries by these two countries, which together hold about 80 per cent of the world supply of gold.

GOOD BOND MARKET.

The expectation of inflation also stimulated the bond market where the demand was reported to be the greatest for months. An indication of the urgent demand for bonds was reflected in the rapid sales of the big New York city issue offered by a syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co. The expansion in the demand for bonds will accelerate the offering of quite a number of new bond issues. So impressive has been the demand for bonds that important banking interests plan to begin offering immediately a total of $176,000,000 of port of New York securities.

A NEW ACT IN AMUSEMENTS.

Important interests sponsoring a number of the amusement company securities are making strenuous efforts to attract public interest in those securities. This is especially true with regard to the banking group behind Fox Film. Rumors were again current today that $75,000,000 of both long and short term financing had been practically arranged for the Fox Film which has $55,000,000 of obligations maturing in April. Strenuous efforts were made to cause activity in the amusement stocks last week, but met with little success owing to the heaviness of Warner Brothers Pictures which from the market point of view is recognized as the leader of the moving picture group.

PUBLIC UTILITIES STRONG.

As had been predicted, public utilities lifted the market out of the rut in which it has been moving. Transactions in these stocks were on an enormous scale, especially in United Corporation, of which nearly 200,000 shares changed hands on advancing prices. The biggest people in the Street were mentioned as buyers of the issue.

American & Foreign Power and International Telephone were also in urgent demand. There is a large short interest in both of these stocks growing out of the prevalence of unfavorable European political conditions for months. Naturally the material betterment reported in European political conditions stimulated buying of those issues.

In connection with United Corporation, reports are current that in exchange for each share of Consolidated Gas it will give two shares of United Corporation common, and one share of preferred.

Now that congress has adjourned without appointing any committee for the investigation of the public utilities, those corporations plan to go ahead rapidly with their comprehensive plans for huge consolidations.

A cut in the price of Mid-Continent Crude Oil acted as a brake on the oil stocks.

NO TAX RAISE.

Another favorable piece of news was the statement by Senator Smoot that there would not be any increase in taxation. Inasmuch as much has been said recently about increased taxation to result if the veterans' bonus legislation was passed, Senator Smoot's remarks had a cheering influence in the Street and helped improve the bond market.

Ohio Bank Closes.

CLEVELAND, March 5.—(AP)—National bank examiners here announced today the Citizens National bank at Wilmington, Ohio, has been closed because of frozen assets.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE No. 23

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Soaked with water, Stimbol slopped along the muddy trail—completely lost. At a sudden turn in the path he came suddenly upon a fallen branch that blocked his way. Beneath it he saw a man's body. When he recognized it as Tarzan's, Stimbol congratulated himself upon his luck. With the ape-man dead, he could now do as he pleased.

Stimbol, kneeling, placed his ear to the breast of the prostrate figure. An expression of disappointment crossed his face. Tarzan was not dead. Stimbol glanced quickly about him. He was alone. A cunning look came into his eyes. He drew his hunting knife. How easy to slip its point into the wild man's heart! Who would be the wiser?

He thought he was alone. He did not see the shaggy figure that had silently arisen from the ground as its sensitive ears caught the sound of Stimbol's approach. Now it was peering at him and the ape-man through the foliage. Tarzan moved. Consciousness was returning. Stimbol realized that he must act quickly. He raised the gleaming blade.

At the same instant a great, hairy arm reached out through the foliage and a mighty hand closed upon Stimbol's shoulder. Screaming curses, the man turned and saw the hideous face of Bolgani. He tried to strike at the shaggy breast with his knife. The gorilla's great, yellow fangs were bared against Stimbol's throat as Tarzan opened his eyes.

Are You Embarrassed By Your Debts?

DO YOU regret the first of each month because the bills start arriving at that time.

WHY not let us pay every one of them for you. That will leave you owing only one bill, and the payments on that one will be so small that you will hardly miss it each month.

JUDGE BUFORD TO HEAD FLORIDA HIGH COURT

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Judge Rivers H. Buford was elected chief justice of the Florida supreme court today to replace Judge Louis W. Strum, resigned.

The members of the supreme court did not reorganize the two divisions today but decided to wait until the new justice, Fred H. Davis, moves to the court bench from the office of attorney-general.

Davis was appointed Tuesday by Governor Carlton to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Chief Justice Strum. Judge Strum accepted the federal judgeship for the southern district of Florida.

The new chief justice was born in Pulaski, Tenn., in 1878. His parents moved to Calhoun county, Florida, and he was educated in the public schools there. Before taking up the study of law in the offices of the late Fred T. Myers, of Tallahassee, Judge Buford worked as a laborer in log camps along the Apalachicola river.

He was admitted to the state bar in 1900 and practiced law in several sections of west Florida. He has been a member of the state house of representatives, a state's attorney, attorney-general of Florida from 1921 to 1925 and a member of the supreme court since 1925.

His term of office will expire in 1933 and he will be chief justice until January of that year.

STRUM TAKES OATH AS FEDERAL JUDGE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 5. (AP)—Louie W. Strum, who rose from the ranks of practicing attorneys to justice of the state supreme court, came home today to receive a still higher honor.

Surrounded by a score of colleagues Mr. Strum took the oath of office as federal judge for the southern district of Florida from E. R. Williams, clerk of the court.

Raskob Speech Ignites Dry Law Powder Keg

Democratic Committee Chairman Breaks Political Precedent in Comprehensive Address.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—What the future meaning of the controversy now is, how it will affect democratic party fortunes in 1932, and how it will affect prohibition—all that it is too soon to say. Chairman Raskob, of the national committee, went through with everything he had planned to do. To say this might seem to imply he was truculent. Throughout his conduct of the morning session, he was shy to the point of diffidence. He was nervous. He licked his lips with his tongue. He gulped. He mispronounced familiar words. His shyness did not arise merely out of apprehension that later in the day he was going to do a daring thing. His shyness was that of a man attempting an unfamiliar function in unfamiliar surroundings. He was a businessman trying to run a gathering of politicians and orators as he would run a meeting of the directors of a corporation.

After clearing up the morning business of the meeting, Mr. Raskob read his piece. It was long, consuming more than an hour. He announced a platform not only about prohibition but about the Sherman anti-trust law, the tariff, farm relief. It was a very comprehensive document covering about everything that would ordinarily be covered in a formal party platform.

To understand what followed, it is necessary to know that among politicians it is commonly held that there are certain limitations on the office of chairman of the national committee. He is supposed to be neutral, strictly neutral, acting as a presiding official who holds the balance even between factions. Certainly a chairman of a national committee must be neutral as between candidates for the presidential nomination. It now turns out, as a result of today's experience, that a chairman will be wise if he is also neutral and silent about controverted issues.

Powder Set Off.

As soon as Mr. Raskob finished reading his speech he asked for discussion. The first to step to the platform was the very scholarly and very genuinely respected senator from Tennessee, Cordell Hull. Senator Hull's contribution, while strongly opposed to Chairman Raskob, was completely courteous and aroused no feeling of strife. Senator Hull said, very strongly, that he disagreed utterly with not only what Chairman Raskob had said about prohibition but what he said about trusts, the tariff, and other reform issues. The fact that Chairman Raskob had not confined his speech to prohibition, that he had included the tariff and the Sherman law left him open to attack from several angles. What he said about trusts and the tariff did not conform to orthodox democratic doctrine.

It sounded not sufficiently different from what one might have heard in a republican gathering.

Senator Hull disapproved what Chairman Raskob said on the economic issues, and said so very plainly. Then, turning to prohibition, Senator Hull and subsequent speakers also, took a position on prohibition in which one might find some defects. Senator Hull said, in effect, that the democrats ought to let the prohibition issue alone, that they ought to confine themselves to issues upon which they are not divided, and upon which, therefore, they have a chance to win the election next year. To a degree Senator Hull and several of the subsequent opponents of Chairman Raskob, seemed to be advising silence on prohibition merely for the sake of harmony. It should be added, however, that Senator Hull defended this course by making a distinction between prohibition and the other issues. He said, and obviously believed, that prohibition is not a political issue. Not all the audience were able to follow him in this distinction.

Robinson Gains Floor.

Senator Hull's part of the opposing Chairman Raskob ended without a ceremony or excitement. Then Senator Joseph T. Robinson, dry, of Arkansas, took the platform. He was the candidate for vice president when ex-Governor Smith ran for president in 1928 and he is the present democratic leader of the senate. Considering Senator Robinson's former association with Governor Smith, his reply and reproof to Chairman Raskob seemed rather pungent. He said, in effect, that Chairman Raskob, by his proposal, had "needlessly and unwisely precipitated a crisis in the life of the democratic party."

Senator Robinson is a seasoned orator, as Chairman Raskob was not. Oratorically and emotionally Senator Robinson had by far the best of it. Senator Robinson also had clearly the best of it when he was able to say that the views on economic questions which Chairman Raskob had enunciated "cannot be distinguished from the policy of the party now in power."

One had slightly the feeling, however, that in so far as Chairman Raskob was being blamed about prohibition, his faults were merely the faults of candor, the fault of bringing the subject up. Practically all the opponents of Mr. Raskob had this defect. The burden of their reproof seemed to be that it was a mistake to introduce a question on which the party was divided.

Speeches Plentiful.

Chairman Raskob, after each of the speakers had strongly disapproved his action, and after some had almost denounced him, came forward each time in his role of chairman to ask if any one else wanted to say something. Plenty did. The speech that Senator Morrison, of North Carolina made reproved not only Chairman Raskob, but threw some oratorical "dirty looks" in the direction of Governor Smith, who sat on the platform beside Mr. Raskob. Senator Morrison said something pretty barbed about a candidate for president, meaning Smith, who repudiated his party's dry platform. Through it all, the opponents of Mr. Raskob had at least one sound, technical argument. Here was the official chairman of the democratic national committee, Mr. Raskob, together with his assistant, Jouett Shouse. These two had prepared and were presenting to the national committee a formal detailed program on prohibition and other subjects. Behind what they said was the force of their official positions. It was vain for them to claim and rather vain for Ex-Governor Smith to claim on behalf of them, that they were merely speaking as individuals and merely inviting discussion.

Women Praise Mrs. Mary Norton For Speaking Up

BY MARGUERITE YOUNG.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP)—Democratic women tonight paid tribute to one of the first of their sex to strike blow for blow in a give-and-take conflict of national political leaders.

They gathered about Representative Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, in a hotel suite just above the great hall in which she had spoken her mind on prohibition at the height of the tumultuous session of the democratic national committee.

Not even a committeewoman, but holding the proxy of one, she was swept almost involuntarily into the dispute by the very emotion of moment to voice the vigorous defense of Chairman Raskob.

"Someone had to say something," she observed as men and women congratulated her afterward. "I thought I ought to do it."

The outstanding part played by Mrs. Norton signalized the growing activities of women in the party. In the absence of most of their southern colleagues, about 300 committeewomen and proxy-holders joined actively in the proceedings. It was said they were the greatest number of women with full voting power ever assembled in a party meeting aside from conventions.

OCHS AND HOWELL RETURN TO U. S.

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—(AP) Clark Howell, publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, and Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, arrived today from a Hawaiian vacation.

Mr. Howell, interviewed, expressed the opinion that "the two major parties will have to take a definite stand on prohibition."

Mr. Ochs had a word of cheer for American business. The country is steadily recovering, he said. About congress he was critical.

"They have dipped in too much," he said. "This we will discover when we receive our income tax reports. We are facing a tremendous deficit, larger than has been estimated."

With Mrs. Ochs and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Milton B. Ochs, he will spend two weeks in southern California.

Police Broke Her Arm In Raid, Woman Says

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—Mollie Rosenblatt told today how two vice squad cops raided her apartment, seized her arm through a half-opened door and twisted it until the bone snapped.

Referee Samuel Seabury, investigating corruption in magistrates' courts, then called a policeman, Robert E. Morris, who remarked he did not remember any such incident.

"Liar!" screamed Molly, a Bedford reformatory girl who though only 26, has had 10 years of contact with the magistrates' courts.

She said that after breaking her arm, the policemen tore slats from a laundry machine, used them as splints and sent her to a hospital.
